CARVE NAZI STATE IN POLAND

Asks Arms Debate Halt to Aid Peace

SENATOR URGES ROOSEVELT ACT ON HITLER OFFER

Coloradoan to Press His Motion Today.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—Senate Democratic leaders manifested concern today when a supporter of the administration's neutrality repealer moved that its consideration by the senate be suspended as a contribution to peace in Europe.

Edwin C. Johnson.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.], who had declared himself for repeal of the arms embargo, proposed a series of senate recesses to give President Roosevelt an opportunity to consider and act upon Adolf Hitler's peace overtures. The Nazi government has been urging informally that Mr. Roosevelt propose an armistice with a view to a general European settlement.

Vote Today on Split Bill.

Meanwhile the senate agreed to vote by 2 p. m. tomorrow on the motion by Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.] to recommit the administration bill for the purpose of separating the arms embargo repealer from the cash and carry provisions. Senator Tobey contends that congress should act immediately upon the provisions of the bill intended to keep American ships out of the European war zones without waiting for the final decision on the arms embargo.

Senate noninterventionists take the position that defeat or abandonment of the administration's arms embargo repealer would result in immediate peace in Europe. The only thing that is delaying peace, in their opinion, is the expectation on the part of Great Britain and France that they will get help from the United States.

Johnson Is Persuaded.

Senator Johnson's intimation that he has been persuaded by this reasoning encouraged the noninterventionists, who felt that a successful move to sidetrack the neutrality repealer would cut the ground from under it.

Senator Johnson formally moved that the senate take a three day recess—the longest recess permissible under the constitution without the consent of the other house—but was persuaded by Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.] to withdraw it temporarily. Johnson intended to renew his motion, which is not debatable, later today, but was persuaded by his friends among the noninterventionists to wait until tomorrow to give them more time to round up support for it.

Would Embarrass President.

Barkley's pretext for urging withdrawal of the Johnson motion was that action upon it would cause Senator Sheridan Downey [D., Cal.], who was speaking against repeal of the arms embargo, to lose the floor. Privately, administration leaders denounced the Johnson proposal as one which could do nothing but embarrass President Roosevelt.

Barkley virtually conceded the contention of the noninterventionists that Mr. Roosevelt would do nothing about the Hitler peace proposals unless asked to do so by Great Britain and France. He told reporters he was interested in peace, but not on Hitler's terms.

"The matter is before the other belligerents and the decision is up to them," Barkley added.

Thomas Assails Hitler.

Senator Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.], another administration supporter, opposed the Johnson motion on the senate floor, arguing that no confidence could be placed in Hitler's peace overtures.

"It is significant that we have had reports in the press, undenied, that one of the belligerents has suggested that the President of the United States should make a move toward stopping the war," said Senator Johnson. "It is significant that that suggestion came from the so-called aggressor nation.

"I should not have been surprised

AMERICA DURING THE WORLD WAR AND NOW

But not the right kind. (From The Tribune of Dec. 29, 1914.)

We are headed in exactly the same direction "and don't let anybody tell you different."

Expect Church to Get Estate of Mundelein

BY ARCH WARD.

Although no churchman added more to the material possessions of the Catholic church, Cardinal George Mundelein had only a small personal fortune at the time of his death Oct. 2.

It was learned last night that when the cardinal's will is read it will be found to be "brief, simple, and beautiful as an expression of enduring belief that the goods of the world are as nothing compared with the resources of the spirit."

Church to Be Beneficiary.

The will, it is said, will leave Cardinal Mundelein's personal possessions to the bishop of Chicago [Cardinal Mundelein's successor] to be used for the needs of the archdiocese.

The will is said to express Cardinal Mundelein's attitude that during the 24 years of his service as archbishop of the Chicago diocese—15 of them as cardinal-archbishop—he merely was a steward for the Catholics of Chicago and that death would leave only the duty of providing for the execution of his trust.

Accomplishments Creative.

Finances that came under Cardinal Mundelein's control were transferred into creative accomplishments. The $20,000,000 St. Mary of the Lake seminary in Mundelein, Quigley preparatory seminary at 103 East Chestnut street, Mundelein and Rosary colleges, and the erection of 205 new churches and 140 new parochial schools are among the evidences of his tenure.

The Most Rev. Edward F. Hoban, bishop of Rockford, and the Very Rev. Msgr. [illegible] of St. Catherine of Siena parish, Oak Park, were named by Cardinal [illegible] of his will, which still is sealed and is yet to be filed in the Probate court.

GERMANS FORBIDDEN TO WRAP GOODS WITH PAPER; IT'S PRECIOUS

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—When German housewives go shopping they must bring their own carrying apparatus because it has been forbidden to use paper to wrap up purchases. Paper is precious and must be saved, it is explained. Henceforth purchasers of textiles or shoes must make written application to the authorities. An agent will see if the prospective buyer possesses an amount of the particular thing he applied for which is legally allowed. If the application complies with the law, permission to buy the required items will be given. This process will take about a week.

230 YEAR HAIRPIN SUPPLY WRECKS A BUYING SPREE

Boston, Mass., Oct. 9 [Special].—After learning the Walter E. Fernald State School for Feeble Minded at Waltham had 15,266 sets of hairpins on hand, enough to last about 230 years, Gov. Leverett Saltonstall has issued orders that all purchases for supplies in state institutions be made for only two months in advance.

The governor revealed today that while the hairpin case was the most striking it was only one of several discoveries which caused him to issue the order through Patrick J. Moynihan, state commissioner of administration and finance. Commissioner Moynihan had reported the purchases to him.

A survey showed that every state institution had on hand an excess stock of materials and supplies. The Boston State hospital has enough dried peas to last more than eight years and enough salt for three years, and the Northampton State hospital has a two year supply of canned cabbage.

Price for Italian Gasoline Raised to Over $1 a Gallon

ROME, Oct. 9.—The price of gasoline was increased again today from 25.25 cents to 26.36 cents per litre. That comes to the equivalent of a little more than $1 per gallon. Gasoline is one of Italy's major problems. Nearly all of it must be imported.

Chicago to See Guns Repel Air 'Raid' Tonight

Chicago will be "attacked" by a high flying bomber this evening, but all arrangements for repulsing the "enemy" have been made.

The occasion for the make-believe attack is the antiaircraft exhibition to be held this evening on the 12th street beach in Grant park. Officers and men of the 202d coast artillery of the Illinois National Guard will set up their huge searchlights and guns this afternoon. Men and women skeet shooters of the Lincoln Park Gun club, who will demonstrate clay target shooting, are ready.

Officials of the Chicago park district have made final arrangements to handle the crowds. If the weather is unfavorable for the exhibit it will be postponed until Friday.

Starts at 8 P. M.

The antiaircraft demonstration, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE in conjunction with the Illinois National Guard unit, the gun club, and the park district, will start at 8 p. m. The public is invited and admission is free.

THE TRIBUNE is sponsoring the antiaircraft demonstration to show the public how modern guns are used to protect cities against attacks by air. The skeet shooting part of the evening program is to demonstrate the skill and potential value of America's 600,000 trained skeet shooters.

An observation plane from the 108th observation squadron will play the rôle of the enemy bomber. The target to be fired upon by the National Guardsmen will be a sleeve, 40 feet long, towed by the plane.

Use Secret "Brain."

Four giant searchlights generating 800 million to a billion candle power will pick up the target, and the army's secret new altitude finder and "mechanical brain" also will be utilized. These new developments show the gunners the height and distance of their target and calculate firing data. About 200 shells will be fired from the 3 inch guns.

Another plane will be used for towing a target for the eight machine guns which will be set up on the beach. These .30 caliber guns will fire at a target only 1,500 feet in the air to show how the chattering rapid fire guns are used against low flying combat planes.

THOUSANDS WILL BE MOVED BY HITLER; SWEDEN ARMS AS RUSSIA PRESSES FINNS

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 9 (AP).—The first bombproof shelters in Sweden were under construction in Stockholm tonight and about 100,000 Swedish army reserves were ordered to remain in service as disquiet developed in northern Europe.

The neutral countries about the North and Baltic seas strengthened their ties in a view of a threat to their Baltic trade and showed sharp concern in the impending conversations between soviet Russia and Finland at Moscow.

"Because of changes in the foreign situation the government has ordered that those military men who should have left the service Oct. 15 shall remain in service until further notice," a Swedish government communique said tonight.

Can Mobilize 600,000 Men.

The order concerns the class of 1938 and other men mobilized on Sept. 2. Swedish authorities estimated they could place 600,000 men with different degrees of military training in the field if necessary.

The air raid shelters, 10 to 12 of them ordered by Stockholm civil authorities, were the first ever started in Sweden.

On the Swedish-Finnish frontier tonight, the whole Torne valley, an area of about 4,000 square miles, was blacked out in air raid practice.

Reports from Haparanda, in northern Sweden, said Finnish aviation forces practiced bomb attacks and antiaircraft exercises all day on the Finnish side of the frontier.

The Swedish authorities followed suit in Haparanda and in scattered villages. The blackouts will continue until further notice, it was said.

"Problem for Whole North."

In Copenhagen, the newspaper National Tidende asserted the Finnish-Russian negotiations are "not a problem for Finland only but for the whole north."

"The problem is so much more dangerous because negotiations with Moscow are only a link in a bigger process which is of greatest danger for the north and for the whole of Europe."

The paper said the Nordic people owe thanks to Finland because it once stopped a "bolshevik expedition into Europe."

Bid Envoy Farewell.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 9 (AP).—Grim faced citizens of this northern republic thronged Helsingfors' railway station tonight to say farewell to the Finnish delegation, Moscow-bound for "economic and political negotiations."

When Dr. J. K. Paasikivi, who heads the delegation, appeared on the platform, the crowd with bared heads began to sing the words of the Finnish patriotic hymn "Never shall our land bow before the foreign tyrant."

The Finns were inclined to make a point of the fact that Dr. Paasikivi's plans called for a trip by train rather than plane. Airplanes were used by representatives of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania in their journeys to and from Moscow after they were invited by the soviet union for conferences which resulted in Russia winning military and trade concessions.

Continue Fortifications.

The Finns pointed out that they were going ahead in the meantime with their border fortifications. Finland last week called up additional reservists for "extraordinary service to strengthen the national neutrality."

Delegates from Norway, Sweden, and Denmark arrived here today to discuss ways of maintaining their commerce.

They sought a way to circumvent war dangers to commerce in the Baltic and North seas and to maintain trade as close as possible to the normal level.

A County of 9,500 Gets First Phone in 10 Years

Sneedville, Tenn., Oct. 9 (AP).—Business is picking up in Sneedville. A telephone was installed in a drug store today, giving Hancock county its first telephone communication with the outside world in ten years. The county, in the eastern Tennessee hills, has a population of approximately 9,500. A small telephone line into the county was discontinued about ten years ago.

FINDS CAREFREE FOLKS IN CITY ON SIEGFRIED LINE

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ON THE LUXEMBURG-GERMAN FRONTIER, Oct. 9.—As casually as I would have made a trip in peacetime, I motored today to Treves [Trier], for more than 100 years the seat of Roman rulers and now the key city of the Siegfried line in the Luxemburg sector.

Map locates Treves [Trier]; broken line and arrow show route taken by writer to get there.

My purpose was to learn how the Germans were taking the war. If they were jittery, Treves, a front city, would show it. My visa was granted without questions and I encountered only normal formalities at the frontier, the Germans even taking my word for the amount of money I was carrying.

Spies, Take Warning.

I was somewhat discouraged regarding the possibilities for free conversation by large posters, one in the custom house and the other in a bank, warning the population against spies. The posters defined a spy as any one seeking information regarding war defenses, plans or materials with a view to injuring Germany, and warned that the penalty is death.

Although the road I traveled from Wasserbillig to Treves follows the Moselle river and penetrates the Siegfried line, no effort was made to conceal the construction going on.

New fortifications, pillboxes, cannon, and antiaircraft and antitank emplacements are being built in that region.

Chooses from Five Meats.

I had difficulty in getting a table for lunch in the spacious Porta Nigra restaurant and then learned that a ration card was necessary. I had neglected to get one at the frontier, and so I hired a waiter who arranged to let me have my choice of the menu, which offered five varieties of meat. I ordered oxtail soup and the 150 grams [about five ounces] of boiled beef to which I was entitled according to an explanation on the menu. As dessert I had ice cream and coffee. One-third of the guests in the restaurant were officers and their ladies, the others civilians.

I took a long walk in the shopping district, but was cautious about asking questions. I could see well stocked meat markets and groceries doing more than a normal business. In the open market, where fruits, vegetables, and flowers are sold, unlimited quantities were available without ration cards.

Style Shops Kept Busy.

The modiste shops displayed the latest modes and obviously were doing a good business. Radio stores were selling all of their portable sets to officers going to the front. The civilians were well dressed and the women, accompanied by children, seemed indifferent to the nearness of the war and its guns. Only the presence of soldiers in the streets indicated that a war was going on.

Unacquainted with any one in Treves, I called on a newspaper editor. With two of his colleagues we went to a large wine store, where unoccupied tables were so scare that three officers asked permission to use the end of our table.

None Worried Over War.

One officer, fresh from the Polish campaign, said that the thing that impressed him most in Poland was the extreme poverty of the peasants. No one at our table seemed hopeful about peace but, as far as I could see, was not worried about whether a real war starts.

Despite blackouts, all movies, even legitimate theaters, were running on their regular schedules.

I left Treves with the impression that the empires' hope to starve the Germans into submission is extremely far-fetched, and that reports that the population already had felt the effects of the British blockade were untrue.

Germans Quit Baltic Nations in Mass Migration.

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, Oct. 10, Tuesday (AP).—Posters appeared on all billboards today signed by the chief of police stating that the classes of 1911 and 1912 had been called up "without public notification." The posters said that all those who had not received the order by today must nevertheless report immediately to police stations.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—Adolf Hitler and his lieutenants tonight were sketching a new map of newly conquered territories in Poland. The Fuehrer has set aside part of the area as a "fatherland" for German minorities scattered throughout Europe—Germans whom he proposes to transplant.

Hitler's new map also will establish a new Poland state as well as a district for Jews.

He has summoned hundreds of thousands of Germans now living in eastearn and southern Europe to join the new Nazi empire. He plans to settle many of them east of Posen [Poznan] in what once was Poland. The Nazis described this region as an "ideal granary" for the repatriated Germans.

Program in Full Swing.

Hitler's vast repatriation program is in full swing. The Fuehrer, in his speech to the reichstag last Friday, said the problem of German minorities constituted one of the sore spots of Europe. He demanded an immediate settlement. The summoning home of Germans in the Baltic states followed.

There are about 110,000 Germans in the Baltic states—56,000 in Latvia, 40,000 in Lithuania, and 14,000 in Estonia.

The Nazi government eventually hopes to return several million Germans to the reich from other nations.

Official Nazi quarters said that removal of Germans from central and southeastern Europe will take years. If immediate action is taken to return the Germans, the migration, according to Nazi figures, will involve some 3,500,000 people as follows:

Russia, 1,185,000; Russian Poland, 80,000; Rumania, 860,000; Jugo-Slavia, 750,000, and Hungary, 600,000.

[Reports published in Budapest, Hungary, said secret discussions on the transplanting of southeastern minorities to western Poland and Czecho-Slovakia had been conducted by Germany and Balkan nations for several weeks. German efforts to repatriate 90,000 Italians of Germanic origin from South Tyrol hit a snag. A dispatch from Rome said the prefect of Bolzano province announced the Germans may remain in the area if they promise to become faithful Italian subjects.]

Nazis Shift Border Lines.

Nazi leaders, in drawing their new map, are shifting border lines according to what they consider "ethnological, historical, and economic viewpoints."

As the plans stood today, the new Polish state, as Hitler sees it, will stretch from the Pissa and Bug rivers to the San river in the east to a new western line starting on the East Prussian border close to Soldau. From there the line swings westward in the direction of Thorn [Torun], passing eastward of that city, then straight south through Sieradz, meeting the present German border line west of Czestochowa.

Eastern Upper Silesia, including Katowic and Pless, will become part of Germany proper. The southern part of the old Polish republic bordering on Slovakia is in Slovakian hands and will remain in their possession except for a stretch taken by the Russians.

Form Jewish State.

Out of this remaining square of "Poland," one section will branch off to form the proposed Jewish district within the region of Lublin.

During discussions with German experts on eastern Europe, Hitler and his associates concluded it would not be advisable to make Warsaw the main Jewish town. They chose the Lublin area instead.

Just what type of administration the Polish and Jewish areas are to be given still was under discussion.

If one compares this new map with the pre-war map one finds that the present German border stretches more deeply into pre-war Russian territory east of Posen. This is the fertile territory where the Germans want to resettle the minorities they are shifting from the Baltic states.

Authorities expected that Vilna [Wilno], which is in the soviet zone, will be given to Lithuania, but this is only a technicality since the Russians claim Lithuania as part of their zone of influence.

Great Exodus Underway.

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 9 (AP).—A great exodus from the Baltic states began tonight with a big fleet of German vessels pressed into service to carry settlers from countries passing under Russian dominance to territories newly added to Adolf Hitler's reich.

Ten German steamers already were in Riga's harbor. Four others were at Leipaja [Libau] and Ventspils [Windau]. All were loading emigrants from Latvia, with their belongings.

Four other vessels arrived at Tallinn, Estonia, to take Germans from that country.

Lithuania has a common border with Germany and emigration from that country may be handled by rail.

Germans Control Wealth.

Repatriation was obligatory only in the cases of German citizens; in Latvia they number only 4,500. Latvian citizens of the German race, however, were estimated here to number 56,000, of which 38,000 were residents of Riga. The population of Riga in 1935 was 385,000.

Latvia's largest newspaper estimated the value of German holdings in Latvia at $600,000,000. It was said that some rich Germans apparently control much of the country's industry and have vast real estate holdings.

It was generally believed in Riga that about half of the Latvian Germans, chiefly young people, would emigrate.

The atmosphere of uncertainty created here by the sudden change of the soviet rôle in Latvian affairs and the emigration of many German inhabitants was illustrated in a decree which closed all jewelry stores for three days "for inventory of stocks and valuables."

The Russian-Latvian pact, giving Moscow air and naval bases in Latvian territory and bringing thousands of Red soldiers into Latvia will be ratified tomorrow, Foreign Minister William Munters announced.

BRITAIN ASKING ARMS AND PILOTS FROM CANADIANS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9 [Special].—Reports from Canadian sources say Great Britain does not want a large number of troops from Canada for service in the war against Germany. Britain does, however, want huge supplies of munitions from the dominion and as many airplane pilots as possible.

A British war mission now in Canada has huge stacks of specifications for arms, ammunitions, and other necessary supplies and is expected to begin placing orders for manufacture within a few days. Thus far, however, the mission has not offered to lay any cash on the line for the war material, it is reported.

Nazis Remaking Maps and Lives

Fuehrer Hitler and Nazi leaders are remaking the map of Poland with a repatriation area for settling the Germans now being brought from other countries of eastern Europe; a new oPlish state, and a district for Jews. The boundaries now planned are along the lines indicated above.

German minorities in the Baltic countries are already being removed to German territory. Later migrations from eastern and southeastern Europe will involve some 3,500,000 persons.

FINED $120,000 AS VIOLATOR OF NAZI PRICE RULE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—A Berlin hotel owner today was fined $120,000 by the reich price-fixing commissioners for "considerable violations of price and war economy regulations." A wave of illegal butchering resulting from the strict meat rationing in Germany has resulted in severe penalties being assessed for slaughtering animals without permission of authorities. A Frankfort-am-Oder court today sentenced a "black [illegal] butcher" to fifteen months in prison and to pay a fine of $4,000. Three other butchers have been given similar sentences.

GERMAN PLANES BATTLE BRITISH WARSHIPS AT SEA

Hitler Naval Squadron Escapes Enemy Patrol.

LONDON, Oct 9 (AP).—Repeated clashes today between British warships and German bombing planes in the northeast area of the North sea were reported tonight by the admiralty. It said there were no British casualties. Following the admiralty's announcement dispatches from Denmark told of the forced landing of three German warplanes. A member of one of the planes' crews was injured.

The admiralty disclosed no details of the encounters in the North sea, and said it had no information as to how the Germans fared. A communique said:

"During today repeated actions have taken place over the northeast areas of the North sea between German bombing planes and British cruisers and destroyers.

"No British ships were damaged. Casualties to the enemy are not known."

Naval Squadron Escapes.

A German naval squadron of undisclosed strength was asserted to have escaped a British naval patrol off the south coast of Norway yesterday.

"Our forces endeavored to engage it," the admiralty announced, "but darkness enabled the enemy to escape."

Scouting activity by British planes over the entire length of the western front was reported by "Eyewitness," the official correspondent with the British forces in France.

"Eyewitness" said four British planes had made successful daytime flights along the German frontier from the northeast border of France to the North sea. One pair of planes was said to have flown safely through two antiaircraft barrages.

Eye Troop Movements.

The planes sent over Germany were said by "Eyewitness" to have investigated reports received at headquarters of "the evacuation of important cities, big troop movements near Aix-la-Chapelle [Aachen], significant concentrations of aircraft, and intensive building of fortifications near the Luxemburg frontier."

Although the correspondent said the scouting planes landed safely in England with photographs taken on their flights, there was no indication of the nature of their findings.

Account for Three Downed.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Norwegian admiralty said tonight that British warships and German bombing planes clashed today in an air-sea battle in the North sea off the southern Norwegian coast.

Details of the fight were not given but three German planes made forced landings in the North sea area shortly after the engagement.

The Norwegian admiralty said sounds of great cannonading were heard from the North sea on the island of Utsira off Haugesund.

[A Reuters dispatch from London said there were several fights between British cruisers and torpedo boats, and German planes in the northeastern part of the North sea.]

Rescued by Pilot Boat.

The Oslo Aftenposten said a German bomber was forced to land off the south coast, where the crew was rescued by a Norwegian pilot boat and taken to Rekefjord, considerably south of where the cannonading was heard.

The Aftenposten reported the German flyers attempted to sink the plane but failed and it was towed to the coast. Later a Norwegian warship took the four flyers, all uninjured, to Egersund.

The two-motored German bombers landed in the vicinity of Esbjerg on the southern Danish coast. Another was reported driven off by Danish antiaircraft guns at Aabenraa, near the German border.

The Bergen Morgenavisen reported warships were seen off Utsira during the battle. Cannonading also was heard at Haugesund but police there said they had no details.

Hear Cannonading.

BERGEN, Norway, Oct. 9 (AP).—Sounds resembling heavy cannonading from the North sea were heard twice today by inhabitants of Algroy island, 40 miles south of Bergen. Fishermen saw smoke in the direction of the cannonading but no ships.

Finnish Freighter Sinks.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 9 (AP).—Rescue boats from the Netherlands reported the Finnish freighter Indra, 2,026 tons, sank today after striking a mine off the Island of Terschelling. Only wreckage of the sunken freighter was found but the entire crew of the Indra was believed to have been rescued by nearby Finnish ships which proceeded on their way, Netherlands' sailors said.

Twenty-six of seventy-two former communist deputies to the French parliament [equivalent to our own congressmen] have been arrested during recent days on charges of having violated decrees dissolving the communist party and forbidding communist propaganda. The 26 men were seized after they wrote a letter to Édouard Herriot, president of the chamber, urging calling of parliament for debate of "immediate peace."

Finland has mobilized 250,000 men and has ordered 300,000 others to hold themselves ready for war while awaiting proposals that the soviet Russian government is expected to make some time this week. The Russians are seeking control of Finnish islands that supposedly threaten the Reds' Kronstadt naval base, but the Finns have refused to discuss previous suggestions along this line.

Residents of Berlin have been warned to get their air raid cellars fully prepared at once. An official order directed to all house owners set next Saturday as the deadline for completing the raid shelters.

HITLER'S OFFER TO MAKE PEACE STUMPS BRITISH

How to Save Prestige Is One Difficulty.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Will there be a peace conference or will the war be renewed with ever increasing vigor?

Everyone was asking this tonight. This week may see important developments, but there is, as yet, no clear indication of which way things are going to break.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain delivered a somewhat enigmatic statement when pressed in the house of commons for a precise definition of the British government's war aims.

He asserted that the French and British were in perfect accord as to the purposes for which they entered the war. Any statement, he added, only would be made by agreement between the two governments.

May Bare Specific Aims.

"These purposes have more than once been stated by both governments," he said. "No doubt as time goes on, both governments will consider whether their war aims should be stated in more specific form."

The house of commons lobbies buzzed with speculation about the nature of the British government's projected reply to Fuehrer Hitler's peace proposals.

Many members stressed the argument that the war must continue until security is established in Europe before a conference is called. Odds of 100 to 1 against a compromise being reached on the basis of Hitler's terms were quoted by one diplomatic writer here.

Although a checkup of opinion in commons seems to indicate that the majority of the members favor a firm attitude, there appears to be a strong minority voicing approval of David Lloyd George's plea for a large scale peace conference to which influential neutrals would be invited. Lloyd George will outline his policy at a private meeting of the council of action on Thursday. The object of the meeting will be to test support for the national peace campaign.

Want Objectives Stated.

Chamberlain's avoidance of a specific statement of the war objectives caused disappointment in commons. Emphasis was laid in comments tonight on the need for presenting the war aims in precise terms before neutral countries, particularly America, in an effort to win world opinion to the side of Britain and France.

Most British newspapers still insisted that Adolf Hitler's peace offer is not acceptable and must be turned down cold. On the other hand, all papers printed a column on an article in the Moscow Izvestia which said that the war is foolish and unnecessary and should be called off.

See Nazis as Foe of Reds.

One school of thought here voiced the belief that it still might be possible to make the English, French, and German aims again flow through the same channels and that eventually soviet Russia will be the chief foe of western Europe, including Germany.

The difficulty lies in making an adjustment in the present conflict so that prestige may be saved and several diplomatic mistakes corrected, these persons maintained.

Those who hold this view argued that the four power pact, once sponsored by Premier Mussolini as a means of uniting Europe and pooling European interests still has vital possibilities of bringing the big land powers and the big sea power [England] of Europe together.

Poles to Visit London.

Some inkling may be given when it is seen what attitude is taken by the new government of Poland if and when that state is revived on a smaller scale as Hitler has promised. Polish statesmen will visit London this week to consult with the British in a conference which may determine whether they will accept the situation, make the best of it, or resist.

August Zaleski, foreign minister of the new Polish government, will consult with both Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax and Chamberlain. He is scheduled to reach London from Paris on Wednesday.

Some British political speculators were reflecting on a possible change in government which would be in a better position to negotiate. All this, however, is contrary to the officially announced intention to go on with the war.

MYSTERY CLOUDS REPORTED BREAK AT ST. CHARLES

A mystery developed last night over the reported escape of another inmate from the unwalled St. Charles School for Boys after officials of the school could not be reached to confirm or deny the report.

Efforts of the sherif's office in Kane county to communicate with school authorities concerning the reported escape brought the answer that Supt. William T. Harmon was in Chicago and that the officer in charge in Harmon's absence was somewhere on the grounds of the institution.

Sixty-three inmates have fled from the school thus far this year. School authorities have been criticized for their reluctance to notify police of surrounding towns when escapes occur. The fugitive youths in many instances have embarked immediately on a series of crimes.

The Question.

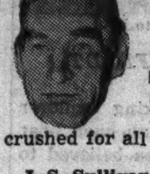
Where Answered.

In La Salle street near North avenue.

The Answers.

Harry J. Burke, 1315 North La Salle street, insurance adjuster — Not as long as they have Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. I think Germany dug her grave and she should lie in it. If they want back what they lost let them fight; maybe the end will be no Germany.



Edgar McDonnell, 1315 North La Salle street, real estate salesman—I don't think she should be given anything back, and if defeated again she should be put in a position where she can't come back. Hitler should be crushed for all time; Germany, too.

J. S. Sullivan, 1531 North Park avenue, wool grader—If it means peace, I favor returning the colonies, but Poland and Czecho-Slovakia should also be freed. The empires helped cause the last war and Germany was punished too severely.

Mrs. R. H. Blackledge, 210 Eugenie street, housewife—I don't think they should. Germany's troubles were caused by greed. They're trying to get back what they previously took from other countries. The fact is they've taken what doesn't belong to them.

Carl Glance, Des Plaines, enamel worker—I do not. She lost the last war and had to pay the consequences. I think the empires should keep them and that the colonies themselves don't want to go back to Germany. In any event colonies should get to vote.

NAVAL PATROLS SIGHT ALIEN SUB OFF KEY WEST

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9 (AP).—The White House today announced that navy patrols yesterday observed an alien submarine about 20 miles west of Key West, Fla.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said it possibly was the same boat which was reported Saturday 15 miles off Miami, Fla.

Iroquois Nears Port.

Portland, Me., Oct. 9 (AP).—As the "threatened" American refugee liner Iroquois neared the United States tonight, navy officials declined comment on whether a search was under way for a strange submarine reported sighted within striking distance of the vessel's normal course. Heavily guarded by a convoy of naval vessels, the Iroquois is bound from Ireland with 584 Americans fleeing the European war zone. She is due in New York on Wednesday. The convoy was ordered when German Grand Admiral Erich Raeder notified President Roosevelt he had learned the Iroquois would be sunk.

NAZIS MAKE WAR BY LOUDSPEAKER, THEN USE GUNS

BULLETIN.

PARIS, Oct. 10, Tuesday.—(AP)—French troops were reported today to have turned back numerous German assaults south of Saarbruecken with hand grenades and rifle fire.

[A German communique this morning said: "In the west there was a little reconnoitering, troop and artillery activity."]

Paris, Oct. 9 (AP).—German troops today bombarded the western front with loudspeaker broadcasts of parts of Adolf Hitler's peace speech, then attacked the French on a 35 mile front from the Moselle river to Saarbruecken. The action was along the widest front in the west since the war began.

The new attack came as Premier Edouard Daladier announced he will broadcast a reply to Adolf Hitler's peace overtures at 8 p. m. tomorrow [1 p. m. Chicago time]. He is expected to state that France will refuse to discuss any terms that involve recognition of Poland's partition.

[Hitler in a speech to the reichstag on Friday said: "Poland of the Versailles treaty will never rise again."]

Loudspeakers Make Debut.

Loudspeakers made their first appearance on the west front when the Nazis began their broadcast, using technique developed in the civil war in Spain.

"The Germans erected the loudspeakers alongside machine guns and antitank cannon," the French said.

Heavy guns had been firing but they ceased action when the broadcasts were begun in both French and German. The Nazi broadcasters, the French said, concentrated on the part of Hitler's speech that stressed friendship for France. The voices were audible far behind the French front line.

At the same time the Germans, according to the French, erected a huge sign over blockhouses on the Rhine river near Neu-Breisach, a French town. "French comrades, don't fire on your German friends," it stated. The French said they riddled it with bullets.

Artillery Roars on Wide Front.

Besides the fighting on the 35 mile front, the French communique tonight said, an artillery duel covered the entire northern flank of the front from the Moselle to Lauterbourg, where the French-German frontier joins the Rhine.

Shells screamed overhead as German patrols extended their contact with French advance guards from near the Luxemburg border to Saarbruecken, central key of Nazi defenses between the Moselle and the Rhine.

The French general staff's communique tonight stated: "Very great activity of enemy patrols between the Moselle and Saar. Artillery action on both sides from the Moselle to the Rhine. At sea, one of our patrol boats attacked an enemy submarine with success."

[The German high command yesterday reported: "In the west, there was local scouting and troop activity and minor artillery fire on both sides. In the air there was only a little scouting plane activity."]

French and British scouting planes were attempting to verify reports of German troop dispositions to learn the significance of the increasing German activity.

Changed tactics of German artillery caused some observers to believe a limited German offensive might be starting. German batteries for the first time began trying to silence French artillery just behind the front lines. This counter battery work during the world war came to be expected as the preliminary to an attack.

CITY'S BUSINESS CHIEFS POLLED ON NEUTRALITY

The Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday began a poll of business leaders to learn their views on America's stand in the European war.

Oscar G. Mayer, association president, said questionnaires have been sent to more than 5,000 Chicago business executives.

Four Answers Sought.

The questionnaires ask them to answer "yes" or "no" to the following four statements:

1. Congress and the administration should use every means at their command to prevent the United States from becoming involved in the European war.

2. Congress should without delay act to place the armed forces of the United States on land, sea, and in the air in a position to defend the country against armed aggression.

3. Business profits should definitly be subordinated to the national objective of keeping out of war.

4. In your opinion, will repeal of the present embargo upon export of arms, ammunition, and implements of war to nations at war aid our country to maintain its neutrality?

Business Declaration Urged.

"We believe the time is here when American business should declare itself collectively and individually on the question of our relation to the European conflict," said Mayer. "We believe that by calm and considered action our country can remain at peace with other countries."

Members of the association also were asked to communicate their viewpoints on neutrality to their representatives and senators.

WE ARE CUSTOMERS, TOO (2)

By CALEB

OUR resident Buying Office in New York has been located at 200 Madison Avenue for the past twelve years. It is the province of this office—with its seasoned personnel of sixty men and women—to maintain constant, intimate touch with the New York market, for the benefit of our Chicago and suburban stores. Such on-the-ground, first-hand contact has, in fact, been carried on ever since the middle 70's . . . enabling Field's, as it could do in no other way, to keep alertly abreast of every style trend, fashion phase, and desirable buying opportunity in the world's most complex merchandising arena.

A visit to this Retail Buying Office would, indeed, prove a revelation to any Field patron. A revelation, for example, in the meticulous daily care with which the wheat of worthwhile offerings is separated from the chaff of passing novelty; the genuine in quality, workmanship and value-received sifted and sorted from their dubious imitators.

Here, in a group of several dozen display-booths, where goods can be privately demonstrated, examined and appraised, as many as five hundred suppliers' representatives are interviewed in a single day by members of our New York staff. Each of the latter is a specialist in his or her particular type of merchandise, and acts as an on-the-spot agent for our regular Chicago buying staff.

Interviewing at headquarters is, however, only a small portion of this resident buying staff's day's work. By ten-thirty in the morning, "lights out" in the Reception Room indicates to callers that our New York staff, often accompanied by buyer conferes from Chicago, is out in the metropolitan market to verify purchasing opportunities, and inspect supply sources at first-hand. Ninety per cent of our Eastern resident buyers' time is devoted to this imperative program of seeking out and checking "the newest and best" in hundreds of merchandise lines—on the basis of specific experience in knowing what our Chicago buyers require and what the New York market can provide.

NAZIS TO FIGHT ON 6 OZ. OF MEAT A DAY; ARMY GIVEN NEW COOK BOOK

Potatoes Bulk of Diet Made Independent of Imports.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—Just what Adolf Hitler's army should eat to be in perfect fighting trim is told by prominent German army doctors in a 334 page book entitled, "The Feeding of Soldiers." Dr. Kittel and Dr. Keigelmayer, the authors, tell the army how to "march on its stomach."

The book discloses the tremendous efforts made to give the soldiers the best possible food even at the cost of civilians. It shows how Germany is attempting to make dishes prepared in field kitchens tasty and nourishing without depending on foreign imports of spices, seasonings, and foodstuffs.

Feeding Is Improved.

"May this book strengthen the striking power of our troops," Gen. Karmann, chief of the army administration office, writes in the introduction.

New methods of improving the feeding of German troops are described. Army cooks, for instance, are advised to season food with beer yeast, which contains "many vitamins, much protein, and a pleasant taste."

The yeast is recommended especially for seasoning soups and vegetables. Other herbs and spices used in cooking must be taken from products grown in Germany to replace foreign spices. They include juniper berries, seeds of homegrown fruits, onion, and celery powder.

Use Dried Potatoes.

The use of tomato powder, dried potatoes, vegetables, and fruit to replace rice, wheat, and other imports, is recommended. Many recipes for cooking them are given.

"The German soldier wants a mixed diet of meat, vegetables, and potatoes, carefully cooked," says one of the army doctors.

The army training kitchen at Munich is turning out hundreds of cooks a month.

"Germany is a land of the potato, rye, and sugar," says the cook book. "The art of cooking must lend a hand to make these foodstuffs tasty and nourishing without the use of foreign foods or seasonings."

The book explains how the army obtains its supply of protein—from milk products, fish, and soy beans.

In certain army districts more than 300,000 pounds of soy beans are used in five months, "representing a saving of about 700,000 pounds of meat."

The German soldier is fed at least 3,400 calories a day in peacetime and 3,800 calories when in the field, the book declares. Recruits in the past year have consumed an average of 4,140 calories. The average consumption of butter for each soldier is nine ounces a week. It is rationed three times a week. Margarine is rationed twice a week and the soldier gets lard or drippings on the other two days.

How Meat Is Rationed.

While German statistics claim the average citizen ate 47.2 kilograms [103.84 pounds] of meat last year, the average soldier ate 62.4 kilograms [137.28 pounds]. Under the ration system, if kept at the present level, Germans will get a maximum of 20.4 kilograms [44.88 pounds] of meat and bones a year.

A citizen eats 13.2 kilograms [29.04 pounds] of fish and a soldier almost twice that much or 24.5 kilograms [53.90 pounds]. The German soldier is the greatest potato eater in the world. His daily ration is more than two pounds. The average German consumes 190 kilograms [418 pounds] a year and the soldier 363 kilograms [798.60 pounds].

For 4,000 calories, the daily ration of food for the soldier is divided into four ounces of protein, three ounces of fat and 19 ounces of carbohydrates.

6 Ounces of Meat Daily.

An American soldier gets 16 ounces of meat a day, the book declares. A German, it says, gets six ounces. While the American soldier eats an average of nine ounces of potatoes, the German soldier is given three to four times that much. To make up for this, the book says that the American soldier gets five ounces of sugar to the German's two ounces.

The volume compares food of foreign armies with that of Germany and borrows much from the Russian and some from the French army's ideas. No mention is made of American specialties.

HERE'S HOW AMERICA SETS THE TABLE FOR MEN WHO FIGHT FOR IT

The American soldier gets 20 ounces of meat in his peacetime rations of 3,000 calories a day, it was learned at Fort Sheridan yesterday. When he is engaged in maneuvers or other activities requiring extra physical energy, his rations are increased to 5,000 calories a day.

The October allowance for feeding the soldiers at Fort Sheridan is 37.22 cents a day, according to Staff Sergeant Chester M. Carr of the army post's school for bakers and cooks. This provides, besides the meat, 12 ounces of bread, 10 ounces of potatoes, jams or preserves, 11 ounces of fresh vegetables, including string beans, corn, potatoes, tomatoes, and peas; four ounces of sugar, an ounce of butter, three pints of coffee, and half a pint of milk.

In war service or other active duty the meat portion would be increased to 26 ounces, the potatoes to 13 ounces. Some of the other items would be increased about a third, but the sugar and butter allowances would remain the same.

ITALIAN PRESS ENDS DRIVE FOR HITLER'S PEACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 9.—The Italian press campaign supporting Adolf Hitler's peace conference proposals ceased today as suddenly as it began on Saturday, the day after Hitler outlined his plans to the reichstag. This was taken to mean that Italy considers that she has fulfilled all her obligations to back Hitler in this move, and intends to sit back and see what happens next, meanwhile maintaining her neutrality.

Praise for Russia Rebuked.

ROME, Oct. 9 (AP).—An editorial today in Il Corriere Padano, owned by Air Marshal Italo Balbo, governor of Libya, was interpreted as a rebuke to Italian papers that have printed favorable articles about Soviet Russia as a result of the German-Russian partnership.

Il Corriere demanded "not a gram of esteem for the bolsheviks. . . . They are models of coarse bestiality."

It referred to Marshal Klementi E. Voroshiloff, soviet war commissar, as "a sinister personage," and accused him of complicity in "felonious massacres."

HISTORY PUPILS HEAR FIRST HAND ACCOUNT OF FIRE

Fifth grade history pupils of the Gunsaulus school, 4420 South Sacramento avenue, heard a first hand account yesterday of the cow that kicked over the lantern in Widow O'Leary's barn on Dekoven street. The narrator was Frank T. Scanlan, 84 years old. It being the 68th anniversary of the Chicago fire, their teacher, Miss Mary Scanlan, who is Mr. Scanlan's daughter, brought the class of 25 boys and girls to her home at 8201 Green street for their history period.

Pupils of the Longfellow elementary school, 1901 35th street, demonstrated how to escape from a smoke filled room in case of fire. The Greater Chicago Safety Council conducted the demonstration in connection with Fire Prevention week.

Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan said yesterday that the city's fire losses could be cut 30 to 50 per cent if: [1] Children would quit playing with matches, [2] mothers stopped using gasoline as a cleaning fluid, and [3] absent minded fathers didn't knock pipe ashes into the wastebasket.

BRITISH HANDLING OF PUBLIC NEEDS IN WAR ASSAILED

Baron Stamp to Advise Economic Committee.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Economic policy was becoming of increasing concern in wartime England today.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is expected to announce soon that a general overhauling of economic policy is under consideration.

Chamberlain announced today that Baron Stamp, the noted economist, railway executive, and one of the authors of the Dawes plan, had been appointed economic adviser to the committee on economic and financial strategy which was set up some time ago under the chairmanship of Sir John Simon, who also is chancellor of the exchequer.

Difficulties, it appears, have arisen from competing claims of one department and another in the nation's economic activities.

Will Coördinate Claims.

Lord Stamp's job will be to coordinate these claims, Chamberlain said, and responsibility for the ultimate coördination of all branches of war effort would rest with the war cabinet of nine members.

Opposition members in parliament today raised vigorous objections to the government's method of handling the wartime economic problem.

Laborite Emanuel Shinwell complained that the system is clumsily devised and demanded that a single individual should be responsible for the job of coördinating economic activities, but Chamberlain rejected the idea. Opposition Leader Maj. Clement R. Attlee, urged that economists with experience in the conditions of the last war should be brought in to strengthen the economic front. He indicated that the Labor party would force debate on the whole subject at its earliest opportunity.

President of Economic Committee.

Apart from functioning as economic adviser to the ministerial committee headed by Simon, Baron Stamp also was appointed president of the economic committee made up of officials of the various government departments.

Simon's committee is responsible for supervising arrangements for Anglo-French economic coöperation as well as internal economy, Chamberlain announced.

Meanwhile, the government took its first steps to combat wartime profiteering in domestic commodities. Oliver Stanley, Conservative and president of the board of trade, introduced a bill banning price increases in the list of goods specified by the board of trade. The bill provides penalties for traders expanding prices beyond certain limits. The bill will come up in debate probably next week.

Wrangle Over Rent.

Another important decision announced today came from the minister of agriculture, Sir Reginald Dorman Smith, who told parliament that the government will buy up the whole of staple crops from the farmers at prices to be fixed in the light of prevailing circumstances. He said this would guarantee the market and prices to farmers for their products.

Meanwhile, there is a growing muddle over rent. Landlords, tenants, persons who have been removed from London, building societies and soldiers are all up in the air about what payments are to be made during the war. Many people now living in the country are not paying rent for their town flats.

It seems likely that rent tribunals will be set up eventually to handle each case on its individual merits.

Property owners are faced with a large number of demands for reduced rent. In some cases where the tenants are unable to pay, the landlords accept reduced payments. Tenants who have long leases and have moved to the country, in some cases, offer to pay half of their unexpired rent contracts. London's apartment life has, in fact, reached a give and take stage.

SHIRLEY GYTHFELDT.

Leif Eriksen, the viking explorer who sailed the seas in an open boat in the year 1000 and was believed to have spent a winter on American soil, last night was honored by 2,000 Chicago Norwegians. The ceremony was held in the auditorium of Lane Technical High school.

Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin gave the principal commemorative address. Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court and the Rev. Orlando Ingvoldstad, chairman of the Norwegian Lutheran pastors of Chicagoland, also spoke.

Miss Shirley Gythfeldt, 19 years old, of 6224 Cuyler avenue, was crowned Miss Norway. Miss Gythfeldt, the tall, dark haired daughter of the Eilif Gythfeldts, will represent Norway in a carnival of nations at the Automobile show, Nov. 4 to 12, in the International amphitheater.

SOVIET DEMANDS EMPIRES ACCEPT HITLER'S TERMS

Reds Assert War Cannot Destroy Naziism.

MOSCOW, Oct. 9 (AP).—Soviet Russia backed Germany tonight in her drive for peace in Europe and at the same time sought to consolidate her military, territorial, and economic gains in a diplomatic chain stretching from the Baltic to the Black sea.

In the first comment to appear in Russia on Adolf Hitler's reichstag speech of Friday, the government newspaper Izvestia made a demand for peace on the basis of Hitler's terms, which the paper called "real" and "practical," and attacked Great Britain and France.

Izvestia accused the empires of "returning to the middle ages" in waging war to "exterminate Hitlerism."

Can't Destroy an Idea.

"It is impossible," the newspaper declared, "to exterminate any idea or any opinion by fire and sword. One may respect or hate Hitlerism or any other system of political opinions. This is a matter of taste. But to begin a war for the 'extermination of Hitlerism' means to admit to criminal silliness in policy."

The "disintegration" of Poland was called "irrefutable proof that its lack of vital power" removed the causes for further war.

The deadlock in the soviet-Turkish negotiations continued. Shukru Saracoglu the Turk foreign minister, is in constant touch with Ankara. Usually well informed sources said that since the deadlock began Russia has concentrated 18 divisions on the Turkish frontier.

Lithuanians Fly Home.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 9.—Gen. S. Rastikis, commander in chief of the Lithuanian army, accompanied by Vice Premier Kazys Bizauskas, arrived in Kaunas aboard a special airplane from Moscow today to report the results of their negotiations.

The Reds have promised to return to Lithuania some of the Lithuanian settlements in the Vilna corridor provided the Lithuanians agree to permit a strong line of fortifications to be erected by the Russians along the Niemen river. The Lithuanians agreed to the fortifications.

Troops Enter Estonia.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 9.—The first contingent of the Russian army which will be stationed in garrisons in Estonia crossed the frontier today at Narwa [Ivangorod]. They were transported to Baltiski [Baltic port].

It is expected about 25,000 Russian soldiers will be garrisoned in Estonia while larger detachments are to be stationed in Latvia and Lithuania.

The Estonian government resigned today. President Konstantin Paets is reported to have delegated President of Parliament Ulots to form a new government whose foreign minister will be A. Rei, now minister to Moscow.

WPA RAT PROJECT CALLED UNFAIR BY EXTERMINATORS

The proposed Work Projects administration rat extermination project which the city is seeking was attacked yesterday by representatives of the exterminating business. They appeared before Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th], chairman of the council health committee.

The exterminators asserted that unless the city keeps alleys cleaner and people use proper containers for refuse, rats will return after the project is completed. They also objected that the project would injure their business.

H. E. Jennings of the Smithereen Exterminating and Fumigating company, 216 West Jackson boulevard, told Ald. Ross that the exterminator concerns would clean any square mile of Chicago, selected by the health committee, and keep it clean of rats, if the city would coöperate in removing refuse from alleys.

Ald. Ross told the group to prepare a specific plan and to present it at a meeting he will call with Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt and Dr. Herman Bundesen, health commissioner.

Seek Longer Heating Periods for Apartments

The official heating period for apartments in Chicago is to be lengthened two weeks. The city council health committee yesterday approved a recommendation by Ald. James F. Young, 46th, chairman of a subcommittee, that the apartment heating ordinance which now requires owners to furnish heat from Oct. 1 to June 1, be extended to Sept. 15 to June 1. Ald. Young said that on Sept. 19, the board of health received more than 500 complaints from tenants that their owners had refused to supply heat.

Air Raid Show Arrangements

The demonstration of antiaircraft defenses of Chicago will be held tonight on the 12th street beach east of the lagoon beside Soldiers' field. A large area will be reserved for spectators at the free show.

TRAFIC OFFICIALS READY TO SPEED 'AIR RAID' CROWD

Expect Big Attendance at Show Tonight.

BY HAL FOUST.

In Europe the barking of antiaircraft guns would cause crowds to disperse. But tonight in Chicago the firing will make thousands assemble.

Consequently police, trafic and transportation authorities have mobilized to facilitate trafic to the 12th street beach. The demonstration of the city's air raid defenses is to begin at 8 p. m.

The beach is east of the lagoon beside Soldiers' field. The road to the beach, Achsah Bond drive, is east of Field museum. The Planetarium is also on the beach.

Show Free to Public.

The attendance is expected to be large. No tickets are needed. It's a free show, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and the Chicago park district.

Free parking lots on the 12th street beach, also known as Northerly Island, and east of the stadium, are spacious. They are approached by the arterial trafic pavements of Burnham and Grant parks. Incidentally, many spectators will prefer to park near the stadium and walk the rest of the way rather than ride the half mile to the beach and incur delays on the narrow causeway.

Transportation Adequate.

The street car approach to the event is the Roosevelt road terminal. The 18th street terminal for Cermak road cars calls for an unnecessarily long walk. So take any Roosevelt road car to Grant park. Elevated patrons can transfer free to the surface line at the Roosevelt road station.

The motor coach company, in addition to its regular service, will operate a shuttle bus to 12th street beach from Balbo drive and Michigan avenue. The Illinois Central offers service from its Roosevelt road station.

CANADIANS END CENSORSHIP OF WEATHER NEWS

Canada's censorship of weather information is ended. The United States weather bureau here issued reports from Canada weather stations today for the first time since Canada declared war on Germany. Hitherto these reports were secret because their publication might aid Germany in forecasting. Allmeteorological reports in Europe are now secret for the same reason.

There really wasn't much in the reports issued today. The prairie provinces had cool weather.

Canadian weather reports are important to the United States because most of the American weather comes out of Canada.

28,650 CHINESE SLAIN IN HUNAN, TOKIO REPORTS

TOKIO, Oct. 9 (AP).—Japan's imperial headquarters today reported 28,650 Chinese had been killed and 2,640 captured during recent fighting in Hunan province.

Japanese casualties were listed as 545 dead and 1,994 wounded.

[Chinese claimed a victory over Japanese in Hunan fighting during the last three weeks and that 10,300 Japanese soldiers had been slain.]

Chinese Retaking Positions.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 9 (AP).—A Japanese army spokesman acknowledged today that Japanese forces in Central China had returned to positions they occupied when they started a drive on Changsha [capital of Hunan province] on Sept. 15.

Chinese continued to call the Japanese withdrawal a sweeping victory for their forces, but a Japanese spokesman said the invaders had brilliantly achieved their objective—to halt a projected Chinese offensive.

ITALY DROPS ITS PLAN TO DEPORT TYROL GERMANS

Gives 90,000 Right to Be Loyal Subjects.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 9.—Ninety thousand Italians of German origin who faced deportation from the South Tyrol under the German-Italian repatriation scheme may remain in the area if they promise to become faithful Italian subjects, the prefect of Bolzano announced today.

In June all German citizens and Austro-Italian natives were ordered to tear themselves from their ancestral homes under terms of an agreement reached by Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

Announces Change.

Residents of the former Austrian district, which was turned over to Italy after the world war, were given two choices under the plan. They could renounce their Italian citizenship and move across the border into Germany, or they could remain Italians. If the latter course were elected they were to be required to take up residence away from the German border in an Italian colony.

Prefect Giuseppe Mastromattei made the announcement of the change today in an article in Atesia Agusta, provincial magazine. He wrote: "People who were German and now are Italian have the right to decide whether they wish to remain in Italy as good subjects of the kingdom or become Germans and emigate to the fatherland or another region. Sons of Germans are not required to change their citizenship and none of them is obliged to abandon South Tyrol and shall not be sent to other provinces or colonies."

10,000 Germans Leave.

The repatriation scheme, based on "ethnic purification" of the Brenner ordering all foreigners to quit the area immediately. It affected several thousand persons of many nationalities, but most of them have been permitted pass area, was followed by a decree to remain.

Some 10,000 Germans who were not natives of South Tyrol came under the scope of the program. Most of them returned to Germany. Persons of German origin who became Italian subjects after the Tyrol was absorbed by Italy still have the option of choosing German nationality, but with Germany at war it is unlikely that many will take advantage of this privilege. They object to tearing up family roots planted in the South Tyrol centuries ago.

Mussolini is regarded as having accomplished something in the nature of a coup in this deal with Hitler. The repatriation plan was Il Duce's idea. He wanted to get the German population away from the strategic Brenner Pass. Since the German troublemakers in the district now have returned to Germany, Il Duce appears to have reached his goal without forcing the natives from their homesteads.

TWO GET SIXTY DAYS IN THE COUNTY JAIL FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Two motorists, convicted of drunken driving, yesterday were sentenced to the county jail for 60 days and their driving licenses were suspended by Municipal Judge Joseph B. Hermes in the Safety court.

Lee Hord, 32 years old, 419 West 66th street, a mechanic, denied the charge but police told the judge they had carried Hord into the Kensington station after his arrest because of his condition. He was seized after his car and two other machines collided on 111th street. Hord's driving license was suspended for a year.

The other defendant, Benjamin Malinowsky, 22, 3017 Farrell street, admitted the charge. He was arrested after his car struck a parked machine and ran across the sidewalk in front of 3355 South Morgan street on Oct. 1. He said he began drinking after an argument with his brother, Malinowsky's license was suspended for two months.

2 BOY CYCLISTS LOSE LIVES IN TRUCK MISHAPS

Two boys riding bicycles were killed yesterday in accidents involving trucks.

Robert Johnson, 14 years old, was crushed to death while returning to his home at 151st street and Kildare avenue, Oak Forest, after obtaining medicine at the county hospital for his mother. He had caught hold of a moving truck loaded with steel to get home quicker. As the truck passed under the Outer Belt railroad viaduct at Pulaski road and 72d street, the boy was pinned between the truck and an upright girder. Lloyd Warner of Gary was driver of the truck.

James Leib, 17, of 901 West 51st street, was hurled beneath the wheels of a truck when his bicycle struck a rut in front of 5841 South Halsted street. The driver was Victor Miller, 45, of 2633 West 18th street. Leib was a fourth year student at Tilden Technical High school and a violinist.

Death Corner Takes Another.

At 79th street and Pulaski road, where a man was killed Sunday, another collision cost the life of one woman and injured three other persons. The dead woman is Mrs. Loretta Mahoney, 43, of 5416 72d court, Summit, who suffered a fractured skull. She died later in Holy Cross hospital. Mrs. Mahoney was riding in a car driven by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Julia Russell, 27, of 6473 Leoti avenue, when it was in collision with an automobile operated by Marshall D. Omans, 26, of 4357 Gladys avenue. Mrs. Russell and her sister, Gertrude Mahoney, 29, of 5651 West 63d place, were injured about the knees when the car containing the three women leaped the curb and overturned twice in the prairie. Omans was held on a charge of reckless driving.

Elderly Couple Injured.

George A. Abbott and his wife, Mary, both 65 years old, 730 North Grove avenue, Oak Park, were injured yesterday when their automobile sidewiped a truck and struck a tree on United States highway No. 112 east of Coldwater, Mich.

In the 24 hours ending at 4 p. m. yesterday there were no automobile fatalities in Cook county. Since Jan. 1, however, 645 persons have been killed. Of these 495 were killed in Chicago, where 16,895 were injured in the same period.

DEMAND RECESS OF ARMS DEBATE IN AID OF PEACE

President Is Urged to Act for Truce.

had the German state called upon Mr. Mussolini, upon Mr. Stalin, or upon the emperor of Japan. I should not have been greatly surprised if it had called upon one of the small neutral nations. But it has been suggested by Germany that it would be very pleasing if the President of the United States would act as mediator in this conflict.

"Knowing his well-established and well-known feeling toward the gobbling up of Czecho-Slovakia, and his well known and frequently stated position on the conquest of Poland, it still is suggested that he act as mediator.

"I think that is extremely important and extremely significant. I believe that with that sort of a situation we must accept the view that Germany will listen to an honorable peace proposal. They know full well that President Roosevelt is not going to advance any proposal for surrender, or anything of that kind.

Challenge for Peace.

"I think this is a great challenge. History will record how it has been accepted. It seems to me that the United States senate could not speak more eloquently to all the world in behalf of peace than by moving at this time to recess for three days, and give these influences an opportunity to act."

Senator Downey challenged the administration leadership to deny the ability of the United States, standing alone, to defend the Monroe doctrine against invasion of the western hemisphere.

"Let us find out where this propaganda comes from, trying to delude the American people to believing that we, the great people of the United States, are dependent upon the British navy for our safety here in the new world," Downey declared.

Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.] jumped up at this juncture and taunted Downey about the fact that the United States fleet in recent years had been stationed in the Pacific. He wanted to know whether Downey advocated a second fleet, to be stationed in the Atlantic.

Second Fleet Cheaper than War.

Downey said the military experts did not believe the country needed a second fleet, but that it would be much better to build one, even at a cost of 3 billion dollars, than to become involved with Great Britain in the European war at a cost of from 50 to 100 times that much.

"I realize that certain bases down in Florida have been neglected," Downey said. "Porto Rica is now being built up, and will be a certain protection against invasion of the Caribbean. I should like to see the great and generous British empire give up Bermuda. Bermuda sits out 600 miles from the shores of the Carolinas. Bermuda, added to Porto Rico, would make the Atlantic ocean just as safe for the United States as Hawaii now makes the Pacific."

Pepper Fears Delay.

"Let us proceed upon hypothesis that we do want to have both a Pacific and an Atlantic navy," Pepper interposed, "and that we could construct an Atlantic navy at an expense of about 3 billion dollars. Let us assume also that it would take a minimum of five years, if not more, perhaps eight or ten years, to construct such a fleet.

"Therefore, there is a possible challenge to the ability and the strength of the United States which is a very serious one. Is any one supposing we should build an Atlantic fleet for the United States if Great Britain and France should win the present war?"

With Downey's permission, Senator Rush D. Holt [D., W. Va.] then sailed into Pepper.

"Does the senator from Florida mean to imply that we have an understanding with England as to our naval policy, that there is a secret understanding about which none of us know?" he asked.

"I assume that the senator from West Virginia has read history sufficiently to know that the British fleet for something like a hundred years has not done anything to hurt the United States," Pepper asserted.

"As I have studied history, the ...ation which has ever come over ...vade us was not Germany, but England," Holt replied.

URGED TO FIGHT REPEAL.

One hundred citizens of Libertyville mailed petitions yesterday to Senators Scott W. Lucas and James M. Slattery of Illinois asking them to oppose any change in the neutrality act and to fight all attempts to involve the United States in the European war.

EUROPEAN TRUCE PROPOSAL STIRS CLASH IN HOUSE

Overtures by Hitler Are Debated.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9 (AP).—A discussion of whether President Roosevelt should try to bring about peace in Europe developed into an angry row in the house of representatives today.

It started when Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [D., Va.] proposed that the chamber set up a special seven man committee to investigate the "National Committee to Keep America Out of Foreign Wars, which he said was headed by Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.].

Called Propaganda Campaign.

Woodrum, who has been a critic of administration spending but who defended the President today against critics of his foreign policy, said the group led by Fish had been soliciting contributions in a "propaganda campaign that makes the utilities and Doc Townsend look like pikers."

Fish protested Woodrum's criticism of him for riding from Salzburg to Oslo recently in the airplane of Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop of Germany.

"Things have come to a pretty state of affairs when a member of congress can be charged with being a traitor because he took a ride in Mr. Ribbentrop's airplane," the New Yorker told the house.

The facts were, Fish added, that Von Ribbentrop had asked him to stay in Germany a short time beyond his schedule so that the two could hold a conference and had offered him the use of the plane so he could then hasten to Oslo to keep an engagement.

Asks Woodrum's War Record.

"Where was the gentleman from Virginia 20 years ago when we went out to make the world safe for democracy?" Fish demanded. "Holding down some soft job in Virginia. Let the record show that I served my country in time of war and will do it again if necessary."

The New York Republican predicted that foes of repealing the arms embargo, which prohibits shipment of arms, ammunition, and implements of war to warring nations, picked up 20 votes as a result of Woodrum's speech. He said he was proud of being a member of the committee which the Virginian criticized, and that its books were open.

Woodrum's proposal that an investigation committee be appointed was referred to the house rules committee.

Roosevelt Foe Re-elected Leader of Tammany Hall

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—Representative Christopher D. Sullivan, long an opponent of the Roosevelt wing of the Democratic party, tonight was reelected leader of Tammany Hall by its executive committee. Under his administration in 1937 the hall suffered the most disastrous defeat in its long career—the reëlection of the fusionist Mayor F. H. La Guardia and the election of a Republican district attorney of Manhattan, Thomas E. Dewey. Ten new district leaders were chosen. Among them was Arthur J. W. Hilly, successor to James J. Hines.

MORE AND MORE BIG GUNS MODE OF MODERN WAR

Heavy Concentrations of Artillery Sought.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

Casualties in the world war amounted to 57.6 per cent of the 65,038,810 men engaged. The number of men killed in action was 8,543,515, 21,219,452 were wounded, and 7,750,919 listed as missing, a total of 37,513,886.

Land action accounted for an overwhelming proportion of this total, and the weapon on land is the gun—in its smallest form, a service rifle; in its largest, a super-heavy gun throwing a shell weighing more than a ton.

Every army in the field in the new European war has more guns and better guns than it had in 1914-'18. The armament race in the last few years indicates what emphasis has been placed on equipping combat forces with modern arms.

Spend 17 Billion in Year.

World armament expenditures in 1938 amounted to 17 billion 600 million dollars, more than four times the amount spent in 1913, the year before the last war. The death dealing possibilities in armament on this scale are clear, if the log-jam holding up operations on the western front is allowed to break.

Not only have new and more efficient types of weapons been evolved, but their concentration in combat divisions will be much heavier than in 1914-'18.

This trend, steadily developing in every war for the last 85 years, attained increased momentum during the world war. Since then the tendency has been toward an ever greater distribution of arms greater than rifle size among every 1,000 soldiers. Not only is the distribution of heavy arms high in modern warfare but the concentration of fire has steadily mounted.

Artillery Fire Power Increased.

The swing during the world war was toward enormous concentrations of artillery. At the time of the armistice, even after a great increase in the distribution of ordnance, there were about four guns to every 1,000 soldiers. Now there are at least eight.

In 1914 the French were satisfied with an average of 20 guns for each kilometer [⅝ mile] of front. But with the development of the theory that, to accomplish a break-through, it was necessary to have 100 guns per kilometer, half of them of the heavy types, the distribution rose accordingly.

The French started the war with 4,269 artillery pieces and finished with 13,030, in increase of 206 per cent. The Germans had 7,500 at the outbreak and 19,808 at the close, an increase of 164 per cent.

185 Guns a Kilometer.

At Malmaison in 1917 the French concentration was 185 guns per front kilometer, and at Izonzo in the same year the Austrian concentration was a staggering 650—one gun every two yards.

In the battle of the Somme, July 1, 1916, there was a gun or howitzer to every 20 yards of front assaulted, the proportion of heavy or medium pieces being one in every three. At the battle of the Scarpe, April 4, 1917, there was a gun or howitzer to every 10 yards.

In their attempted break-through at the River Aisne in the spring of 1917, the French used a concentration of 5,597 guns, one for each seven meters of the sector. Bombarding for nine days without cessation, they fired an average of 150 shells for each 1 meter wide section of the front, but the attack, nevertheless, failed when the troops went over the top.

Enormous Shell Supply Needed.

Such quantities of guns demanded an astronomical number of shells. In the fighting about Verdun Aug. 13-27, 1917, the French alone fired 3,000,000 light and 1,000,000 heavy shells, their total weight reaching 120,000 tons. This was an expenditure of six tons of metal per meter of the front.

The most stunning concentration of gunfire was employed by the French in Champagne in August, 1918. For six and one-half hours before daybreak, along a sector of 25 kilometers, they fired 1,675,000 shells, an average of more than 650 shots per gun. This time the break-through succeeded, but German morale in general was shattered at this stage of the war.

This elephantiasis of shell fire reached its zenith in the third battle of Ypres in 1917. To prepare this battle the British massed 3,000 guns. In the initial bombardment, lasting 19 days, they fired 4,283,000 shells, weighing 107,000 tons. This one bombardment cost 110 million dollars.

Chauncey McCormick Accepts Leadership.

Chauncey McCormick has accepted the chairmanship of the Chicago committee of the American commission for Polish relief. The treasurer and chairman of finances is to be Charles S. Dewey, former financial adviser to the Polish government.

McCormick said yesterday that an office would be opened and formal organization of the local committee completed soon after he returns next Friday from New York. He will leave for the east today to confer with Henry Noble McCracken, national chairman, and other directors of the campaign.

One of the commission's first tasks will be to dispatch a unit of American Friends [Quakers] to supervise relief in and about Warsaw, McCormick said. If negotiations can be completed in time the group will sail for Europe Saturday.

Director Reaches Berlin.

William C. McDonald, who is to direct relief work in the former Polish capital, notified officials yesterday that he had reached Berlin and established contact with German authorities with a view to extending relief to 600,000 homeless Poles in Warsaw.

Winter has set in, aggravating conditions in the ruined city, McCormick said. The commission is now negotiating with the British government to lift the naval blockade in the North sea so that 200,000 woolen blankets may be shipped in immediately.

Cable Funds to Rumania.

Emergency funds for food and medical supplies have been cabled to Rumania to relieve the suffering of 50,000 Polish wanderers in that country. The commission has appointed Paul Super, head of the Polish Y. M. C. A., to direct operations there.

Formation of the Chicago committee began here last week, when McCormick, who was the first representative of the American Relief association to be sent to Poland after the armistice in 1918, spoke to a group of 25 persons in the home of Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, 1020 Lake Shore drive. He outlined the emergency organization's plans and explained that it would follow the pattern of American relief work during the world war. It will endeavor, he said, to coördinate all relief agencies.

CHANDLER QUITS AS GOVERNOR; IS NAMED SENATOR

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 9 (AP).—Albert Benjamin Chandler today stepped from the governorship to the seat of junior United States senator from Kentucky.

In simple ceremonies Chandler resigned as governor and Lieut. Gov. Keen Johnson, who succeeded him, named the 41 year old lawyer-politician to the senate seat left vacant by the death last Tuesday of Senator Marvel Mills Logan.

Last year Chandler made an unsuccessful fight for the Democratic senatorial nomination against Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley.

Chandler's gubernatorial term would have expired Dec. 12. He is to serve in the senate by appointment until 1940.

WARNS NATION IS UNPREPARED TO REPEL A FOE

Gen. Truesdell Sees 1½ Years of Work Ahead.

The United States will not be fully prepared to withstand a strong enemy attack for at least a year and a half, in the opinion of Brig. Gen. Karl Truesdell, commandant of Fort Sheridan.

Gen. Karl Truesdell.

Gen. Truesdell, speaking in the Hotel Sherman yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the City Club of Chicago, said that if we were attacked now "we would do the best we could with what we have." He said the army lacks modern equipment, the air corps is temporarily short of pilots, and the navy, while the world's best, is slightly undermanned.

Streamlining Slow Process.

The five new streamlined army divisions will not be completely outfitted with modern equipment until the spring of 1941, he said, and in the event of war it would take from eight to nine months for the industrial mobilization plan to operate efficiently. He added, however, that this country had "no special enemy and no special war plans."

In response to questions after the formal speech, Gen. Truesdell expressed the belief that in theory the United States could easily establish the projected neutral zone, extending 300 miles from its shores, since international law "has practically disappeared in these days of force." But, he said, maintaining it in the face of objections from nations whose islands would come within its limits would be another matter.

Lauds American Planes.

He expressed the belief that American planes are equal to or better than those of any other nation both in speed and quality.

He said that manufacture of the new M-1 rifle, which is two and a half times faster than the Springfield magazine rifle, soon would be speeded up from about 50 daily to many thousands a month.

CHARGE COERCION FOR DEMOCRATIC FUND IN ILLINOIS

Civil Service Group Cites Threats to Jobholders.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The Civil Service Protective association charged yesterday that the Democratic state organization controled by Gov. Horner has already started assessing state employés for the 1940 campaign.

The charge was contained in a bulletin signed by President Clayton F. Devine which was addressed to all state civil service employés. Devine said his organization concerns itself only with employés under the merit system but that complaints alleged that compulsory donations are being exacted from all employés of the state whether they are under or outside civil service.

The assessments are imposed, he said, in the name of the Illinoisans, an unincorporated body which replaced the Illinois Iroquis league. The latter body was created in Springfield in 1936 but was discontinued when it was found that, as a corporation, it was subject to income tax.

Fund of Million Estimated.

Devine estimated informally that if the Illinoisans' tax of 2 per cent on all state jobholders were enforced uniformly it would produce $500,000 a year, or about $1,000,000 in 1939 and 1940. He also said that the resumption of collections, which ceased after the 1938 campaign, occurred apparently in September, before Gov. Horner announced his candidacy for a third term.

In support of his charges, President Devine displayed a sample of the notice that was put in all the pay envelopes distributed to employés at the East Moline State hospital about the middle of September.

This notice was headed with the word "Attention" in red letters and was addressed to "all employés."

Immediate Payment Asked.

"I must make my report for July and August for the Illinoisans by Friday, Sept. 23," it read. "Please make payments at once. If you don't intend to sign a pledge card, please notify me at once or any one in the chief clerk's office."

[The date "Friday, Sept. 23," as stated in the notice, is in error. Sept. 23 fell on Saturday.]

Devine contended that the request to notify "any one in the chief clerk's office" proved that the assessments are collected with the knowledge and consent of institution officials.

A part of the bulletin issued by the protective association read:

"In one instance a man claiming to be from Democratic headquarters in the St. Nicholas hotel in Springfield and who claims he works under the direction of F. Lynden Smith [director of public works and Horner campaign manager in 1936] has visited the Lincoln state school and colony for ten days or two weeks.

Threats to Employés Told.

"He has been calling all state civil services employés of that institution in and informing them that they are to pay up all back dues in the 'Illinoisans club' and sign up for another year; and if they refuse he threatens by informing them he has instructions to tell them to 'pay up or else.' He has been dubbed by the employés as 'the 2 per cent man' and the 'or else man.'

"This is pure intimidation and coercion because state civil service employés who are not desirous of voluntarily joining this particular club are given no choice in the matter. They are requested to join and informed that if they do not they stand in danger of losing their jobs or being transferred.

"In some instances civil service employés are being called in and their resignations demanded under threat of being discharged. In some instances they have complied with this demand only to find themselves out of their positions and fighting their way back to their jobs, with the results in doubt.'

Reproduction of sample notice put in pay envelopes of East Moline State hospital employes last month. The Civil Service Protective association charged that Gov. Horner's Democratic state organization has started assessing state employes for the 1940 campaign. The note's reference to Friday, Sept. 23, is an error. Sept. 22 was a Friday.

A DENTIST TURNS THUMBS DOWN ON THUMB SUCKING

If your child sleeps face down, leans on his hands, breathes through his mouth, or sucks his thumb the chances are two to one you'll be needing an orthodontist to straighten his teeth before many years. Furthermore if he shies away from tough cuts of meat, spurns such laborious foods as celery or corn on the cob, and leaves his crusts under the rim of his plate the odds are even greater that you'll both pay for it some day.

In an interview yesterday Dr. George W. Hahn, professor of orthodontia at the University of California, blamed these harmful habits for the increase in malformed teeth and jaws. Dr. Hahn is in Chicago to speak at the 12th biennial meeting of the Edward H. Angle Society of Orthodontia this week in the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Thumbsucking, said Dr. Hahn, may not cause any damage to bone formation of the mouth if it is corrected before the child begins to lose his baby teeth. Face sleeping, he explained, is dangerous because it puts a strain on the flexible jaw bone, which is not physically designed to maintain the weight of the head.

COMMON YEAST AIDS IN FIGHT ON NEURO-SYPHILIS

Common yeast may be the key to a new method of treatment which will put the dreaded syphilis of the brain and nervous system in the class of preventable diseases. This was disclosed yesterday by Dr. William M. Muncy of Providence, R. I., in an address before members of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology at their 44th annual convention in the Palmer House.

Dr. Muncy, eye specialist of the Charles V. Chapin hospital in Providence, told how yeast, which contains vitamin B, now is being used at the hospital in conjunction with the powerful arsenical compound tryparsamide in the successful treatment of neuro-syphilis, which until a few years ago was almost 100 per cent fatal.

For several years physicians throughout the country have used tryparsamide alone in connection with artificially induced fever as the best available method of treating the disease, Dr. Muncy explained. However, in a fairly large percentage of cases the drug has had strange and serious effects on patients treated with it, he said.

"Early in 1937 we began administering yeast, or vitamin B, to patients undergoing the tryparsamide treatment," Dr. Muncy said. "Immediately the unfavorable reactions disappeared almost completely. In addition, a number of patients already suffering from tryparsamide shock were brought in and treated with vitamin B, and their vision was restored to its previous state."

The convention, which is attended by 2,500 eye, ear, nose, and throat specialists, will continue through Friday.

FEVER EPIDEMIC FATAL TO 47 IS UNDER CONTROL

Manteno, Ill., Oct. 9 [Special].—Dr. Ralph T. Hinton, superintendent of the Manteno State Hospital for the Insane, reported today that the typhoid epidemic which broke out in the institution the middle of August has been brought under control. He said that the deaths of 47 persons are attributed to the epidemic.

Dr. Hinton asserted that 385 patients still are in quarantine. Of that number 20 are said to be in serious condition, and five of these are expected to die. Most of the physicians who were called in to care for the sick have been allowed to go, the superintendent said.

Chlorination of the water supplied by three wells on the grounds was credited with checking the epidemic. Investigators believe that broken tile in the sewage system contaminated the wells. Plans to pipe water from Kankakee are being considered.

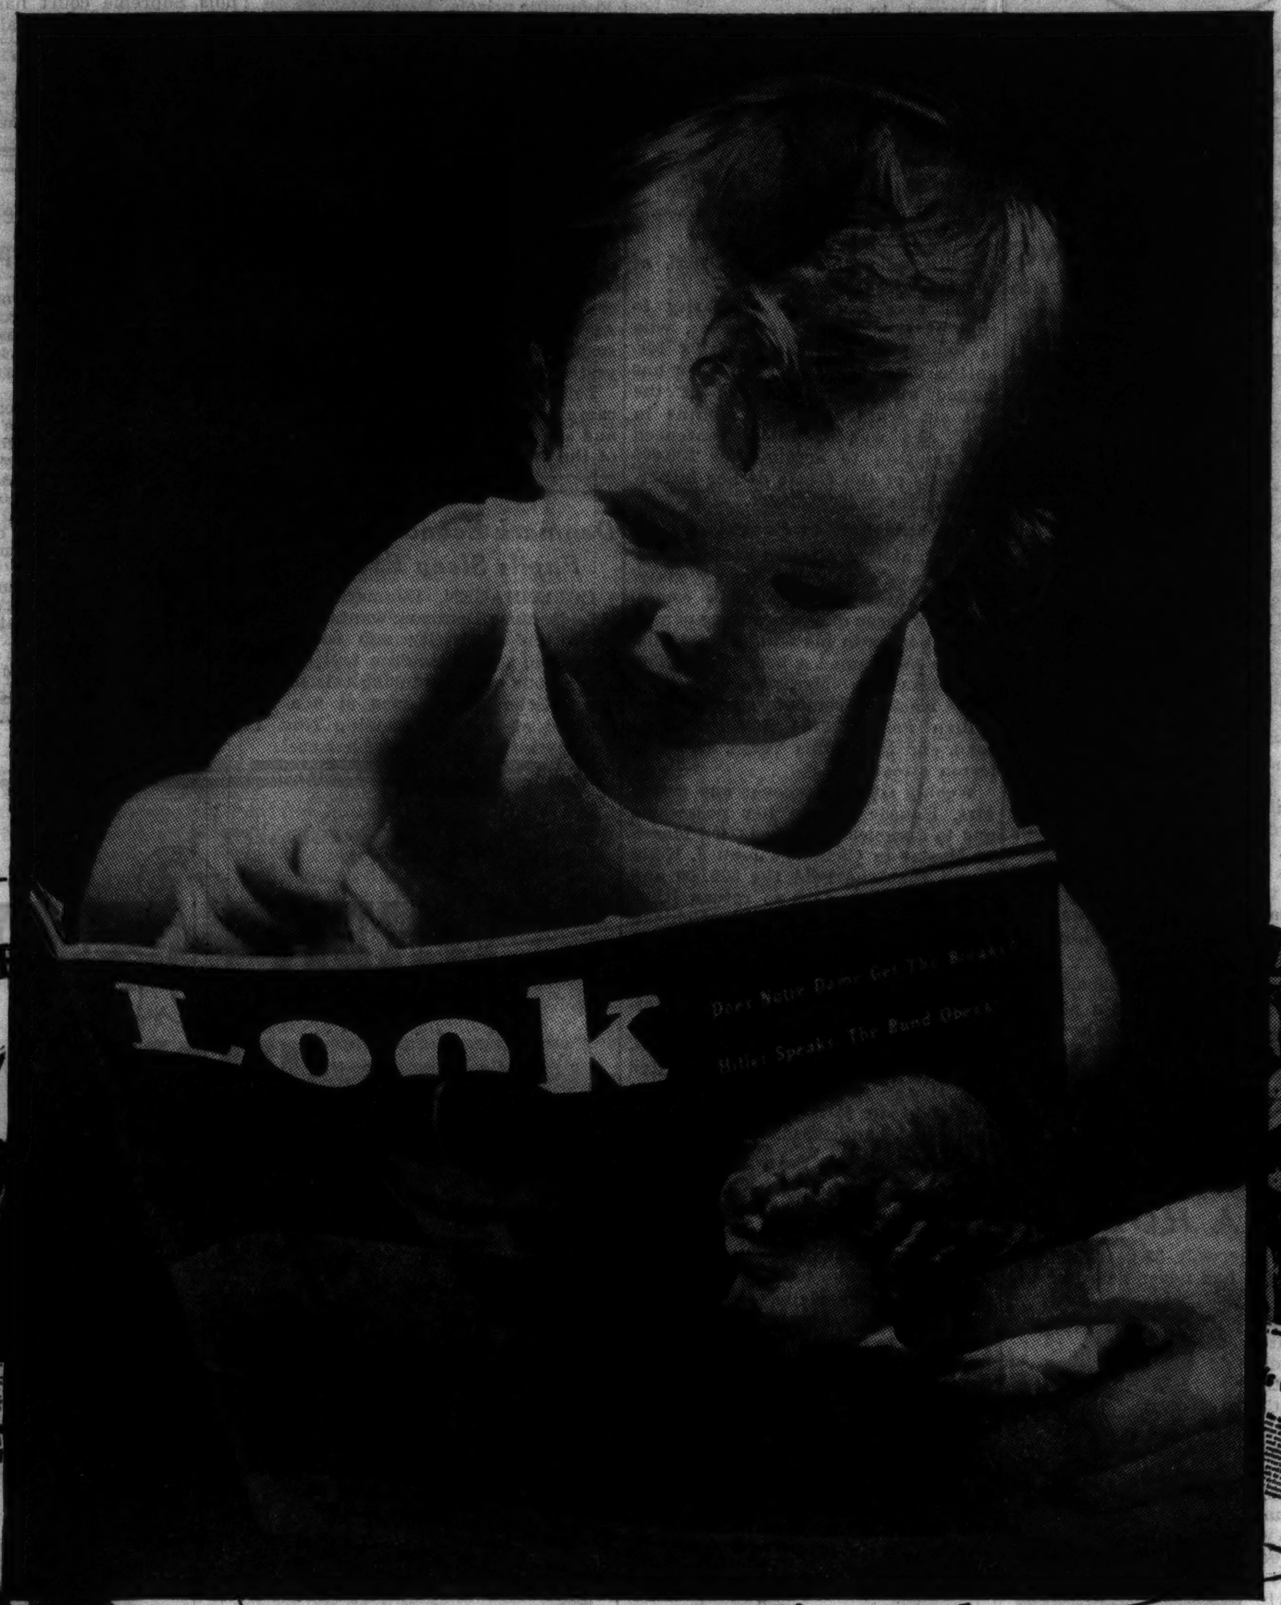
LOOK! THE WORLD'S PICTURE MAGAZINE

..SPEAKS A UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE—ENTERTAINING—INFORMATIVE—INTERPRETATIVE

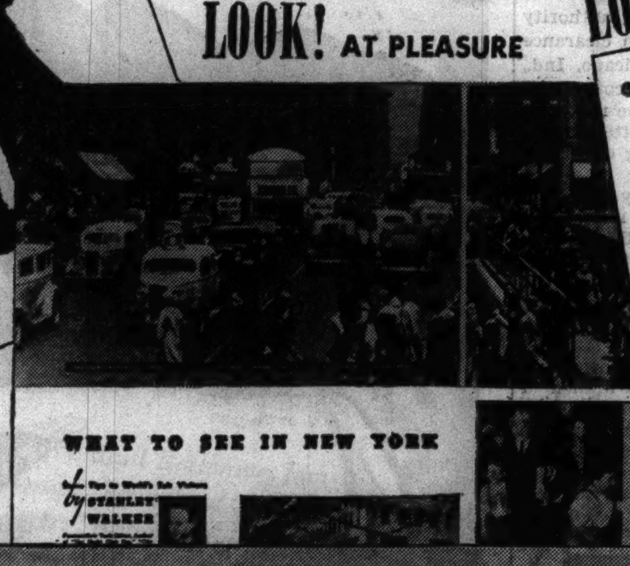


LOOK! AT WAR

LOOK! AT PEACE

LOOK! AT PROBLEMS

LOOK! AT PLEASURE



LOOK! AT PEOPLE

LOOK! AT PLACES

LOOK to a greater extent than any other magazine in America is qualified to present effectively both the truth of war and the so essential relief from war. LOOK has never avoided photographic realism but LOOK has always provided a balanced diet of pictures, and it has now no intention of converting itself into a war journal. LOOK believes that America should and will continue to lead its own life—to be interested in sports and movies, in national politics and economy, in private lives and public figures.

LOOK expects to offer its readers complete war coverage—not spot news but dramatic pictures and interpretative comment by General Hugh Johnson, Laurence Stallings, H. G. Wells, and Emil Ludwig. And LOOK'S special war section is being offered to its readers as a bonus, not in substitution for its regular, proven features.

LOOK AT LOOK! CIRCULATION SEPTEMBER 26 ISSUE ABOVE 1,700,000 COPIES—AN INCREASE OF MORE THAN 450,000 COPIES OVER THE CORRESPONDING 1938 ISSUE

LOOK'S circulation trend is definitely up. During the first nine months of 1939 LOOK'S average circulation was 1,573,757. The third quarter average was 1,605,730. September 26, the latest issue for which accurate figures are available, rose to 1,710,063 copies. Of these more than 1,340,000 were single copy sales. LOOK believes that this proof of its editorial vitality and reader acceptance is conclusive.

CAPONE TO SHUN CHICAGO HAUNTS AFTER RELEASE

Expected to Seek Health in Florida Home.

Al Capone, once Chicago's No. 1 gangster, will not return to this city when he is released next month from the federal correctional institution on Terminal Island, Cal. He will go directly to his home on Palm Island, Fla. This is the belief expressed by friends of the Capone family.

Capone was convicted on Oct. 14, 1931, for income tax evasion and has been in custody since that day. He is reported to have suffered a breakdown while in the Alcatraz prison in San Francisco bay. Physicians reported that he is suffering from paresis.

Capone's friends say he will live quietly at Palm Island attempting to regain his health.

The former gangster must still pay a balance of $20,000 of a $50,000 fine, imposed at the time of his conviction. His friends said yesterday that the fine will be paid promptly, in order to obtain his release. Without the payment Capone will be forced to spend another month in jail and take a pauper's oath.

Seek to Cut Fine.

Although Capone's family is prepared to pay the $20,000, it is said that his attorneys will ask the government to rule on whether the amount still owing on the fine may be cut to $10,000. The $20,000 represents two $10,000 fines, one for each of the two misdemeanor convictions. Capone was given a year each on the misdemeanor convictions, one to run concurrent with three felony convictions.

Some attorneys have argued that one of these fines merges with the other fines and is wiped out. Last Jan. 4 Capone's friends paid $30,000 of the original fine and $7,962 court costs to obtain his release from Alcatraz.

The exact date of the former gangster's release has not been announced, but, it is said, it will not be later than Nov. 19.

Faces Civil Suit.

When Capone is released from the Terminal Island institution he will be served with summons in a civil suit pending against him for $350,011 for alleged income taxes the government claims he owes. A lien has been filed against his Florida home for the tax, but the government has been unable to enforce it because he could not be served legally while in prison.

When Capone is served in the civil suit the case will be set for a hearing before Federal Judge John P. Barnes in the Federal District court here.

Capone's original sentence was for a total of eleven years, but he has earned a deduction of nearly three years for good behavior.

APPROVE $100,000 SUPERHIGHWAY OUTLAY BY CITY

Philip Harrington, city traction commissioner, announced yesterday that the state had authorized the city to spend $100,000 for surveys and plans for Chicago superhighways. The money will come from the sale of the first of the $60,000,000 in gas tax anticipation notes authorized by the legislature last June.

SLOT MACHINE HIJACK THEORY HELD IN KILLING

Amerigo Bertolini, a west side hoodlum with a long police record, who was shot to death in gangland fashion Sunday night in front of 45 South Albany avenue, was believed by the police yesterday to have been slain for hijacking slot machines. Just before the shooting he pleaded with his slayers for his life.

Amerigo Bertolini.

Capt. Martin E. McCormick of the Warren avenue station said that a slot machine found in Bertolini's car was stolen from the Meadowbrook Country club near Racine, Wis., on Sept. 24 by seven men. Bertolini's picture has been identified as one of the hijackers.

Two years ago Bertolini was arrested for hijacking slot machines in Ottawa, Ill. His widow, Mrs. Cora Bertolini, told police her husband had been employed recently as a plasterer. She said he left their home at 260 North Hamlin avenue Sunday night after stating that he would be home in an hour.

PICKS WORLD'S BUSIEST CORNER FOR A HOLDUP

Clarence Stierwalt, 33 years old and an ex-convict, had never heard of the world's busiest corner at State and Madison streets, but that's where he chose to commit a robbery at 4:20 p. m. yesterday. He arrived from his Paducah, Ky., home at 9:30 a. m.

Clarence Stierwalt, holding toy gun.

With a new 35 cent cap pistol in his vest pocket, he went into Berland's shoe store at 16 South State street. He pulled his coat open to reveal the toy weapon and told the manager, Sam Bloomberg: "This is a stickup!" Bloomberg told the cashier, Miss Rose Kay, to turn over the money. Stierwalt shoved $250 into a small black satchel and left. Customers were unaware of the robbery.

The manager meanwhile had slipped out the back door and summoned Mounted Policeman Martin Sullivan at State and Madison streets. A clerk followed Stierwalt and shouted "Grab him!" An unknown pedestrian locked his arms around the fugitive and held him until Policeman Sullivan could push his way through the dense crowd.

JAIL WOMAN FOR HIDING $29,000 OF UNCLE'S ESTATE

Faces Indefinite Term in Contempt Case.

Mrs. Rose Novak Hauser, 42 years old, of 1504 South Pulaski road, was sentenced to an indefinite stay in jail yesterday for contempt of court by Judge John J. Lupe. The action was based on her alleged refusal to turn over $29,000 in assets of the estate of her uncle, Jacob P. Mertlik, who died Nov. 20, 1935, at the age of 82.

Mrs. Rose Hauser.

Her case has some similarity to that of Mrs. Daisy Tegtmeyer, who is known as the county jail's forgotten woman. Mrs. Tegtmeyer has served all but 10 months of the last six years and nine months in jail. She was originally sentenced for refusing to account for $30,000 in assets of the estate of her father-in-law, Henry Tegtmeyer.

The contempt citation against Mrs. Hauser was sought by Floyd Weakly, administrator of the Mertlik estate. Mertlik's three daughters were named as joint heirs in his will. Mrs. Hauser was not named a beneficiary. The daughters are Mrs. Helen Blaha, 3720 North Fremont street; Mrs. Lillian Priban, 2134 South Pulaski road, and Mrs. Anna Varys, 4040 Cullerton street.

Weakly sued to recover any assets Mrs. Hauser had in her possession and to discover new assets. On March 22 Master in Chancery John J. Kelly found that she held the $29,000 and gave her three days to return it.

Mrs. Hauser went to Michigan without obeying the master's order. Although extradition proceedings were started June 9, she eluded process servers. Sunday night the sheriff's office was informed that she had returned to her Chicago home. Deputy Sherif Mary Deverman arrested her there. Mrs. Hauser was held overnight in jail and was brought into court handcuffed.

Holds Key, Says Judge.

"This woman holds the key to her own cell," Judge Lupe said. "She must pay back this money or remain in a cell until she does."

The judge, who had upheld the report of Master Kelly, said that he would give Mrs. Hauser a further opportunity to explain Wednesday. Walter F. Boye, attorney for the administrator, told Judge Lupe that Mertlik brought Mrs. Hauser from Bohemia in 1925 to serve as his housekeeper. When he became unable to take care of his properties he transferred them to her name.

$1,000,000 HOUSING GRANT REJECTED BY EAST CHICAGO

A United States Housing authority offer of $1,000,000 for slum clearance went begging in East Chicago, Ind., last night when the city council by a vote of 6 to 3 adopted the report of its public buildings committee recommending that the enabling ordinance not be passed.

The reason advanced by the committee was that it could not expect proper coöperation from five Republican members of the city housing board who were appointed before the former Republican mayor, Andrew Rooney, left office. The present administration is Democratic.

The council's action followed receipt by the East Chicago branch of the Federal Housing authority of a warning that the proffered grant would be rescinded if not taken up last night. The controversy over accepting the grant had been in progress since last February.

GEORGIA PRISON GUARD PLACED UNDER ARREST IN MURDERER'S ESCAPE

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 9 [Special.]—R. A. Matthews, a special prison guard, was put under formal arrest today on charges of aiding and permitting Richard Gallogly, a wealthy murderer, to escape while being transferred from an Atlanta hospital to the Reidsville prison, 200 miles away.

Richard Gallogly.

Lon E. Sullivan, chief of the state highway patrol, ordered Matthews' arrest when he learned that Mrs. Worth E. Yankey, Gallogly's mother, had employed counsel to fight for Matthews' release from state police yesterday afternoon.

A. J. Zeller, operator of a tourist camp nine miles southwest of Mobile, Ala., told state police today that a suspicious couple drove into his camp yesterday afternoon.

Zeller and a woman employé of the camp saw pictures of Gallogly today and said they were certain the driver of the car was the fugitive.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Oct. 9 (AP).—Because Denmark wants to economize on electricity and coal consumption, school children will get an extra hour of sleep during this school year. Schools will open at 9 a. m. instead of 8 a. m. starting Nov. 1. Denmark imports most of her coal.

HOLDUP SLAYER WINS STAY FOR HIGH COURT PLEA

Chief Justice John Prystalski yesterday granted a stay of execution until Oct. 22 to Charles Price, 28 years old, colored, who was scheduled to die at midnight next Thursday. The stay was granted on the petition of Richard Westbrook, colored attorney for Price, who announced he was appealing to the United States Supreme court.

Price was convicted of the murder of Nicholas Miller, 9247 South Racine avenue. Miller was shot in the head in March, 1936, when he ran away from a holdup man. Price was arrested months later as a burglary suspect and subsequently was charged with the slaying of Miller. The Illinois Supreme court has already refused to hear an appeal.

CHILD DIES OF LEAD POISONING.

Dominic Mazzie, 3 years old, 1327 North Spaulding avenue, died yesterday in St. Elizabeth's hospital of lead poisoning which developed after the child had chewed on a toy lead soldier.

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to cure it afterward—you can avoid having it.

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

WHEN GRANDFATHER TRIED TO SHOUT ACROSS TOWN

The Telephone.

THE proprietors of the Telephone, the invention of Alexander Graham Bell, for which patents have been issued by the United States and Great Britain, are now prepared to furnish Telephones for the transmission of articulate speech through instruments not more than twenty miles apart. Conversation can be easily carried on after slight practice and with the occasional repetition of a word or sentence. On first listening to the Telephone, though the sound is perfectly audible, the articulation seems to be indistinct; but after a few trials the ear becomes accustomed to the peculiar sound and finds little difficulty in understanding the words.

From a folder issued in the first days of the telephone

• The clear, quick, dependable telephone service we enjoy today didn't just happen; it is the result of more than 60 years' hard work on the part of the men and women of your Telephone Company.

Improvements and enlargements in telephone service have been continuous. Today, Illinois Bell telephones number 1,400,000 — and telephoning is easy enough for small children to learn. Telephone service is so cheap that we use it for minor as well as important messages — to save time, trouble, worry and expense! 23,000 men and women of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company operate and maintain your facilities with unceasing care and vigilance. To them, the telephone business is an opportunity to serve — their devotion to it has helped bring you more service, and better service, at the lowest possible cost!

2 GRAND JURIES REBEL IN SIFTING LOUISIANA GRAFT

2 Members Placed Under Arrest on Court Order.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 9 [Special].—Two Louisiana grand juries, which have been investigating charges of wholesale political corruption, rebelled against their district attorneys today.

Here in New Orleans parish, two grand jurors were arrested on orders of District Judge George P. Platt when they attempted to read a petition denouncing District Attorney Charles A. Byrnes and charging that he had attempted to forestall the jury's investigation. The petition asked that he be superseded.

In the state capital, the Baton Rouge grand jury ejected District Attorney Dewey Sanchez and Attorney General David Ellison from a secret session and then adjourned after a few minutes' deliberation.

Find Pay Roll Violations.

The New Orleans grand jury had been investigating all sorts of crimes, particularly violations of the state law which prohibits members of the general assembly from holding other political office. Several legislators had been found listed on two payrolls and one was listed on three.

The outbreak in Judge Platt's court came when Edgar H. Powell started to read the denunciation of Byrnes after the court had refused permission.

"Arrest that man!" Judge Platt shouted, interrupting Powell's reading.

Bailiff Grabs Paper.

Bailiffs grabbed Powell, who threw the petition to Juror Sydney D'Armas. Then Judge Platt shouted: "Put that man in jail, too!"

D'Armas tried to toss the petition to another of the seven jurors who had signed the demand, but a bailiff grabbed the paper.

When the bailiff seized the original copy of the petition another member of the grand jury pulled a copy from his pocket and tossed it to a reporter. Seeing this, Judge Platt shouted that he would jail anybody who printed a word of the petition.

The reporter dashed to his office and a few hours later his newspaper printed the entire petition on page one.

Powell and D'Armas were held in jail for an hour on contempt charges and then released. Judge Platt also dismissed them from the grand jury.

As soon as Powell started to read the charges against Byrnes the district attorney leaped to his feet and shouted, "It's a lie!" Then he demanded an open hearing, which Judge Platt set for tomorrow morning.

Expecting that an effort will be made at the hearing to whitewash Byrnes and his staff, the People's league, a nonpartisan good government organization, called a massmeeting for tomorrow morning on the courthouse plaza.

Leaders tonight said they will back the grand jurors' demand for the removal of Byrnes and will demand that a new prosecutor be appointed.

The petition which Judge Platt tried to suppress charged that District Attorney Byrnes hampered the jury's work and added that some of his associates were under investigation. In this part of the report, the statement read: "The grand jury cannot adequately inquire into violations of the criminal laws without investigating the affairs of a number of associates of the district attorney and his staff."

Neglect Is Charged.

As to charges that Byrnes impeded the jury, the petition declared: "The district attorney and his staff have failed and refused to coöperate with the jury to the extent necessary to aid and advise it in its inquiries into the numerous, scandalous and often intricate violations of the criminal law.

"He [the district attorney] has permitted witnesses whose presence was required before the grand jury to leave the jurisdiction of the court without serving them with summons; he has refused to summon a witness whose presence was ordered; he has delayed, stalled, and refused to produce documents on the ground of inconvenience."

The petition went on to state that when the grand jury insisted that he produce various documents and papers he would then give stories to newspapers about the investigation and thus notify prospective witnesses and suspects of the nature of the inquiry, "giving them an opportunity to flee if they so desired." The jury urged that the prosecutor be replaced by any one of the following lawyers: James W. Hopkins, John E. Jackson, James J. Morrison, J. Bernard Cocke, Burt W. Henry, Azzo Plough, or Hugh McCloskey.

Owe Jobs to Long Clique.

Byrnes owes his office to the Maestri-Leche-Long political machine. Judge Platt also is a member of this political faction. Robert Maestri, mayor of New Orleans, now is regarded as the state's political dictator.

Maestri and Richard W. Leche, who resigned the governorship last June and now is under two indictments in Baton Rouge parish, were the political heirs of the slain Huey P. Long. Long's brother, Earl, succeeded Leche in the governorship, and is referred to as Maestri's political office boy.

Leche resigned the governorship after scandals broke about the Louisiana State university, and Dr. James M. Smith, its president, fled to Canada. Smith also is under indictment with a number of other former state employés. Smith is charged with having sold state bonds to get money to play the stock market. Others are charged with diverting WPA material and labor to private use.

Another incident which is expected to reveal new graft scandals in Louisiana was the arrest today of Frank Costello, Brooklyn slot machine operator, in the federal building in New York.

Costello is owner of the Pelican Novelty company in New Orleans, manufacturers of slot machines, and also is boss of slot machine operations in Louisiana. He is under federal indictment on charges of evading income taxes in 1935, 1936, and 1937. Costello was held under $75,000 bond for a hearing next Monday on removal here to stand trial.

JUDGE RULES SLAYER IS GUILTY; SENTENCES HIM TO 199 YEAR TERM

After a four hour trial yesterday Carlo Falcone, 35 years old, was convicted of murder by Judge John Sbarbaro in the Criminal court and sentenced to 199 years in the penitentiary. Falcone was convicted of slaying Robert W. Hall, 44 years old, a heating engineer, in the latter's home at 1534 East 73d street last March 17. Falcone waived a jury trial.

Carlo Falcone.

It was brought out at the hearing that Hall was the second victim of Falcone's trigger finger. In August, 1931, Falcone shot and killed his father-in-law, but was acquitted by a jury when he pleaded self-defense. Yesterday Falcone did not testify, sitting throughout the trial reading a Bible.

Hall's widow, Mrs. Bessie Hall of 6715 Ridgeland avenue, told the jury Falcone had been complaining about leaks in a radiator her husband had installed. The night of the slaying Falcone appeared at their home. He and her husband talked on the porch and then Falcone shot her husband and walked calmly away.

MRS. BRAND ASKS $500 ALIMONY TO SAVE HER JEWELS

Mrs. Erna M. Brand, 45 years old, of 37 East Cedar street, appealed to Judge John F. Bolton yesterday to enter an order for $500 in temporary alimony in her contested divorce suit against Horace L. Brand, 65, wealthy former publisher. She said her jewelry would become the property of pawnbrokers unless she was able to redeem it at once.

William Gemmill, counsel for Brand, countered with an offer of $15, which Mrs. Brand rejected. She said her husband has extensive assets and stated that a prospective buyer had flown in from New York and was eager to buy all or part of Brand's collection of rare coins, which had a market value of $1,500,000 before the depression.

Gets Year's Jail Term After Throwing Gun at Policeman

Joseph Matthews, colored, 22 years old, who threw a loaded revolver at the policeman who arrested him Oct. 5, yesterday was sentenced to serve a year in the Bridewell by Municipal Judge Joseph H. Drucker in the Automobile court. Trafic Policeman William Jones saw Matthews trying to break into an automobile in front of the First National Bank building. As Jones approached Matthews pulled the gun and hurled it at him. He was convicted of carrying concealed weapons and tampering with a car.

Boy, 7, in Hospital After Beating by Young Gang

James Wojda, 7 years old, 1039 North Wolcott avenue, was taken to St. Mary's hospital in serious condition from internal injuries lats night after he had been beaten by a group of neighborhood boys.

CITY FOLK GET STUNG AS LOOP BUZZES WITH UNSOCIABLE VISITORS

Several thousand vicious looking wanderers rode the summery breezes into Chicago's loop yesterday. They invaded office buildings, hovered about the horses of mounted policemen and in at least one instance took a ride on a street car.

The visitors were polistes, or social wasps, who have abandoned their nests in wooded suburban areas for a brief fling at city life before cold weather kills them off, according to Donald C. Lowrie, assistant curator of the Chicago Academy of Science. Lowrie said that every year at this time the wasps quit their nests to meander until the first heavy frost.

Lowrie warned that social wasps are far from sociable. One granddaddy wasp buzzed into a Clark street car yesterday and stung a passenger.

449 Park Workers Denied Appeal in $520,333 Pay Cut

The United States Supreme court refused yesterday to review the decision of Illinois courts that 449 policemen and other civil service employés of the park district are not entitled to $520,333 in salaries from 1932 to 1934. The employés contended that the ordinance reducing their pay 20 per cent for the four years was illegal because they were under civil service.

Her guests include many of America's most active people

Attractive Mrs. Basil Rathbone, famous as a hostess throughout America today, reports: "Before dinner I like to give my guests a choice of beverages because nowadays so many prefer wine. Lately, too, I've noticed that people are flattered when I serve a light table wine with dinner. It's a custom I myself like very much"

Well known hostesses all over the country are remarking about it. They discover that so many women now prefer, in the afternoon, just a small glass of full-flavored, fragrant Muscatel. That when the appetizers are served, more and more men now take just a cocktail-size glass of Sherry.

What's more, they find guests are flattered today as never before when a dry, pale-gold Chablis or delicate Hock wine is brought to table with the main dinner course. Set out in servings half the size of a water goblet—to be sipped and enjoyed with good food.

Why do so many Americans now like to make wine their beverage? Thoughtful hosts and hostesses believe it's because wine goes so well with moderate, leisurely evenings. They report people like to sip wine slowly—have no urge to bolt it down.

Next time you have guests in, try this more gracious way to be hospitable. Serve a light wine with your main dinner course. Or whenever beverages are passed, give everyone an opportunity to say "make mine wine."

THE WINES OF CALIFORNIA

Now chosen by more than 9 out of 10 American hosts and hostesses are the good wines of our own country. The wines of California, for example, are grown to strict standards of quality. True to type. Well developed. Inexpensive.

THE WINE ADVISORY BOARD

This advertisement is printed by the wine growers of California, acting through the Wine Advisory Board, 85 Second Street, San Francisco

ALL YOU NEED TO KNOW TO SERVE WINE

There are many varieties, but only two main types of wine . . . (1) Wines made "dry" (not sweet) especially to serve with meals, called table wines; (2) Wines for use with desserts or refreshments, called sweet wines.

A fascinating "table" wine is Chablis (say "Shab-lee"), which is golden, light-bodied, of delicate flavor. Usual serving is half water goblet size.

A "sweet" wine to keep on hand is Port. Serve this rich red full-bodied wine with desserts or in the afternoon or evening, in a small glass.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike for another cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even second the arts of influence on the other."—From the Farewell Address.

RUBBER FROM BRAZIL.

Again the opportunity is presented to increase our trade with South America. Such propitious circumstances for stepping up our exports in this hemisphere have prevailed only once before. That was during the world war, when countries which had dominated the South American trade were either excluded from the seas by enemy craft or had no excess production for distant markets.

We didn't get as far as we might that other time. We weren't organized for it. Trade connections hadn't been established. American drummers had not been covering the territory. We didn't know the language. Few schools taught Spanish. South American banking relations were with London rather than New York. Then as we were about to get the hang of the South American business we got into the war ourselves. Thereupon we weren't looking for South American business any more than the English or French were.

We did market a lot of stuff in the other America just after the war. But that was with our own money. As a result of an overeagerness to make loans to the South American governments our exports rose to 623 million dollars in a year, about five times the prewar rate. The figure for 1929 was above a half billion dollars.

But the hundreds of millions lent to the South American governments did not increase the ability of the peoples of those countries to ship us goods we were willing to buy. They couldn't find the exchange to service the debts to us. As a result there were defaults on all but a few issues.

After that sour experience American interest in South America subsided. We lost five-sixths of our trade. Our exports fell below the prewar level. That was where Hitler came in. Let's look at what happened in Brazil, for that is the clearest case, and for the difficulty there we have a remedy. Germany increased her exports ninefold between 1932 and 1937. She increased her share of Brazil's imports from 8 to 21 per cent. She became the principal supplier of foreign goods to that country.

Then we became interested again. "When I go back to my country," said Brazil's foreign minister, Oswaldo Aranha, wryly in Washington earlier this year as he was being courted by our state department, "I shall propose that we erect a statue to Herr Hitler, for it is Hitler who has at last succeeded in drawing the attention of the United States to Brazil."

It is our national purpose to build up our trade with Brazil, but how is it to be done? The suggestion in Washington is that the Export-Import bank make loans to Brazil. We tried making loans to stimulate trade, using private money. The trade held up while the money was going out, and when we stopped lending they stopped buying. What Brazil needs is more exports of goods we can take. Public money won't be any more successful than private money if it goes into roads, public buildings, and warships.

Brazil could ship us more coffee, but we already have all we can use. It is doubtful if the average American could be persuaded to change his sumptuary habits to promote our international trade. Brazil can ship us cotton. No, thanks, we already have too much. What else is there? Fortunately there is a product we can use and Brazil can produce. It is rubber. Rubber is our largest single import. And we are by all odds the largest single user of rubber. We get 80 per cent of our supplies from British Malaya and Dutch East Indies.

Rubber is not native to these British and Dutch colonies. It was planted there from seeds brought from Para, Brazil. Rubber trees grew wild in the valleys of the Amazon. For three-quarters of a century after Charles Goodyear developed the vulcanization process Brazil supplied the bulk of the world's rubber requirements.

If Brazil had been a British colony it would be the principal source of the world's rubber today. British capital would have developed the industry there. Instead the rubber industry was transplanted into the East Indies. A Brazilian native product provides work for the inhabitants of British and Dutch colonies and dividends for London and Amsterdam capitalists.

Our people can build up a sound and permanent trade with Brazil if that country is enabled to become again a large producer of rubber. By encouraging the development of rubber plantations in Brazil the tire companies can make themselves independent of oriental supplies which a war might cut off. By obtaining its raw material in Brazil the American rubber industry can create opportunities for the sale in Brazil of its own diversified products and for a wide range of other American goods. A prosperous Brazil would stimulate all of South America. A flow of American capital into Brazilian rubber trees would promote Pan-Americanism. Brazilian rubber is Akron's commercial opportunity and patriotic duty.

RUSSIA AGAIN ON THE MOVE.

For nearly twenty years following the repulse of the Red army at Warsaw, Russia did not trouble the western frontiers. The old Bolos, before they were killed, professed a conviction that the revolution must be the product of forces within a country and could not be imposed from without. "Even Robespierre," said Trotzky, who survived the purge, "learned that people do not like revolutionary missionaries." Nevertheless, the Reds sent them out, but after the defeat in Poland the western frontiers were quiet.

There was enterprise and intrigue in Asia and in Spain, but Russia accepted what the peace treaty had restored of what the Brest treaty had taken away. The old Bolos believed that another imperialistic war in Europe would be the end of capitalism and the beginning of pan-European, if not world, communism. Stalin may or may not be a communist. He certainly is a Stalinite. And, wherever he lands in conditions yet unknown and unknowable, he is now acting upon the principles of czarist Russia. He has the objectives of Peter the Great and of Catherine and their successors.

Russia, the most populous country of Europe, has not been able to find warm water. Even when, before the world war, it controled the approaches to the Baltic by the possession of the Baltic states and Finland, it could be locked out of the North sea. It could not win control of an entry into the Mediterranean, and if it had done so the access would have been only to the Mediterranean. It could have been locked in there.

Russia's thrust into the Pacific was stopped by the Japanese. Imperial Russia fought many wars and gained territory, but never drove through to the final objectives. Another war is on and Stalin brings Russia out of its hibernation in the west. Whether as a communist or as an imperialist he is regaining the czarist territories and defensive positions. The enemy who endangered him through the Baltic states is his present pact companion, Herr Hitler, the one-time holy war leader against bolshevism.

Whatever Stalin is, Red or imperialist, he is preparing himself for the turn of events by getting a new frontier behind which he can move more safely.

PARDON THE YAWN.

Several county officials, appearing at the Association of Commerce luncheon the other day, told the business men that plans are being completed to seize personal property on which taxes are delinquent.

Somebody has been on the verge of levying on personal property for delinquent taxes for the last ten years in this county. The moving vans were going to start backing up and carrying away the delinquent citizen's piano almost any day. To date we haven't seen any moving vans, and we are going to hold in abeyance our faith in the effectiveness of this new plan until we see some.

Taxes, both real estate and personal, have become delinquent in a total of hundreds of millions of dollars in Chicago for two reasons. The first is that they have been more than many taxpayers could pay. The second is that public officials have been afraid to go after those who could pay but haven't, for fear of losing a few votes. Politically motivated schemes to "aid the taxpayers" have cost the taxpayers who do pay their taxes millions of dollars in extra levies.

There is one force that can clean up the delinquent tax situation. That force is the Democratic organization in Cook county, which controls every public office touching tax collections, as well as all the tax spending offices, in the county. If it will put the heat on its office holders, tell them to quit fooling around, taxes will be collected. If it doesn't act soon the Democratic machine will go to pieces through inability to maintain its pay rollers.

DAISY CHAIN GANG.

The rest of the country, it appears, has been wronging the state of Georgia. A few years ago the movies had a great many people worked up over the legirons, sweatboxes, bread and water, shotgun guards, and bloodhounds of the Georgia chain gang. So gruesomely were these horrors depicted that some judges refused to send escaped convicts back to Georgia and the state itself finally reacted by abolishing the chain gang.

Now comes the report of a wealthy young Georgian, a murderer serving a life sentence, who took a fancy to a college girl who appeared in a dramatic performance in his prison camp. He found time from his arduous duties on the chain gang to woo and win her. He was permitted to marry her. When he complained that he was ill he was allowed to go to an Atlanta hospital. The doctors there found he was malingering. On the ride back to prison it developed that the murderer had the only revolver in the party. He tossed his two guards out of the automobile and with his blonde bride drove off to a hiding place in the coastal swamps.

The Georgia chain gang and the Georgia prison system, it appears, aren't so tough if you have a million dollars.

GOING TO WAR IN COMFORT.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

Inconvenience was taken for granted during the last war. Men groused about tentlike OD blouses, the breeches that seemed to have been designed to fit a whole squad, the elephantine shoes and the puttees that made a handicap race out of the simple matter of getting dressed. But they wore the stuff.

Things will be different this time. From Ottawa comes an announcement that uniforms as comfortable as ski costumes are to be issued to the Canadian troops. There will be no buttons to shine and no puttees to roll. The men will wear roomy, wide sleeved blouses and loose trousers that can be buttoned about the ankle, if necessary. War is to be made comfortable.

We should have prepared ourselves for something like this when the dispatches from the western front began to tell about French and German troops holding swimming races in the Rhine, and of kegs of beer sent over to the Maginot line by the Nazis. Next thing we know, Thomas Cook & Sons, Ltd., will be placed in charge of recruiting volunteers for escorted tours to the Saar valley—everything included, even a free bottle of wine with all meals.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

FOOTNOTE TO A RARE ITEM.

The Linemaster was pawing over his books the other day, searching for rare items and "association" volumes, when he came across two first editions that stirred him up a bit. They carried the same title and contents, as follows:

In Memory of Bert Leston Taylor [B. L. T.]. Program and records of a public meeting held in the Blackstone theater, March 27, 1921.

One was a pamphlet, published by the Cliff Dwellers club for circulation among its members; the other was a bound volume published by Walter M. Hill, Chicago.

That memorial meeting, at which the Linemaster served as guardian of the stage door to prevent violations of the fire laws by gate crashers, ran off thus:

Brahms selection by the Flonzaley quartet; "B. L. T., the Man," by Karleton Hackett; "Verses to B. L. T." by Franklin P. Adams, read by Donald Robertson; "B. L. T. in Journalism," by Joseph Medill Patterson; "B. L. T. as Man of Letters," by Henry Kitchell Webster; "B. L. T.'s Work and Genius," by Horace J. Bridges; "Poems by B.L.T.", read by Donald Robertson ["The Road to Anywhere," "Canopus," "Battle Song," "Invocation"].

The committees in charge included a number of men who since then have joined B. L. T., on the star Canopus or elsewhere. Their names are given in italics in the following lists:

Ushers: Murry Nelson, Andrew N. Rebori, Henri C. E. David, Thomas E. Tallmadge, Allen Spencer, Wallace Rice, Frederick J. Wessels, Payson S. Wild, R. R. Jarvie, L. C. Woodworth.

The name of the editor of these books does not appear on their title pages, but any one who wants to know may discover it by reading the name at the bottom of this column. Curious coincidence.

TO CAPT. CHELTON.

O, Captain, sail her safely home;
She was not meant for guns nor strife;
Hers was the way of joy and jest—
And of the happy life!

O, sailors, steer her straightway home;
She was not meant for dull despair,
For laughter still clings to her decks—
And countless dreams are there!

How glittering under tropic moon
Her star-splashed forward deck could be!
What thrills there were by day to watch
Her smooth prow slit the sea!

O, glorious is her destiny;
Her grave could never be the foam;
She still shall sail the seven seas!
But Captain—bring her home!

Old Chicago Custom: Kicking Statues Around.

Many years ago, as a boy back in Vermont, I helped to collect pennies for a memorial fountain for Frances Willard, which fountain consisted of the figure of a girl, standing on a granite boulder, holding out a cup, from which passers-by might drink. This memorial stood at the Monroe street entrance to the old Woman's temple on Monroe street just west of La Salle.

After the Woman's temple was torn down I used to see this statue at the south entrance of Lake Shore drive to Lincoln park.

It grieves me now to learn that it is in the storage house of the park board. It has been despoiled of its cup, and I assume it is generally neglected and forgotten.

OCTOBER AT MONTICELLO.

On Monticello now the autumn sun
Is glowing with a lovely honeyed light,
While swaying branches pattern dancing shade
Upon the aged brick and carven white.
The stately columns rise in dignity,
Grass is still green beneath the mighty trees,
And ivy grows along the porticos
As it has grown these last two centuries.

Here Jefferson and gracious lady walked,
Watching the Blue Ridge, changeful as the sea,
Proud of the fair fruition of a dream
Nearest his heart, the University.
Now I would stroll again the spacious lawn
Sensing the spirit time cannot efface,
Because his kindly ghost still lingers there
Loath to leave the dear, familiar place.

Again I long for Monticello's peace
Intangible, yet like the faint blue haze
That blurs and drifts on Shenandoah fields

FEVER TREATMENT OF FACIAL NEURALGIA.

TRIGEMINAL neuralgia, or tic douloureux, has scourged mankind from the beginning of recorded history. A depot of nerve tissue within the skull—or one or more branches of the fifth nerve which proceed therefrom—acts up. Medical science so far has not been able to determine the reason for this abnormal behavior.

As a rule, the affliction comes on later in life—ofttimes in the fifties. The pain—excruciating in severity—is of short duration—stabbing and lightninglike. Between seizures some are conscious of minor twinges or prickling, although on the slightest movement—taking a mouthful of food, a drink of water, or talking—an attack may come on. Many have discovered that touching the face in some particular spot will precipitate an explosion. Because the ailment is so easy of recognition, dentists and physicians alike are able to save normal teeth which years ago would have been extracted on the theory that trouble with the chewing apparatus was responsible.

The best treatment so far devised is surgical. The sensory root is cut within the skull, whereupon pain ceases and the patient realizes that he can live in comfort. The only objection to the operation upon the ganglion [depot] is that the eye on the affected side must be protected thereafter from dust and wind. For this purpose special glasses may be required. In skilled hands the procedure is relatively safe.

Many remedies have been employed for those who do not wish to submit to surgery. While a few plans have ardent supporters, no permanent effects have been claimed. For years the injection of alcohol has been widely lauded. A small amount is introduced into or about the nerve as it leaves the cranium. This brings relief which lasts from a few weeks to a year or two. But some scar tissue is produced and, later, this may be a source of irritation. As a temporary measure—not to be repeated too frequently—the treatment may be utilized. But many of these sufferers are obliged ultimately to resort to other methods.

Recently the suggestion has come that any type of therapy which will induce fever will be valuable. Some eight or nine years ago C. R. Ball reported ten patients who were assisted materially by the injection of sterile milk beneath the skin. In consequence, all developed a temperature and a few remained free from distress subsequently.

As most of us know, vaccination against typhoid—which is brought about by the inoculation of killed typhoid bacilli—is usually followed by a high fever. Certain subjects will exhibit chills and systemic reactions indicating a considerable amount of chemical activity on the part of the body. T. A. Hardgrove tried this plan with facial neuralgia with complete success.

Recently a group of physicians at the University of Wisconsin repeated Hardgrove's experiment with 18 patients. The vaccine was administered every two weeks directly into a vein and the maximum dose consisted of as many as a hundred million dead organisms. Some of the cases were sent to a hospital, while others were allowed to pursue their accustomed vocations.

The results are of real interest. Five apparently are completely well and another five so benefited that they no longer dread the onset of the agonizing paroxysms. Seven were eased temporarily but required alcohol injections later. Only one was uninfluenced by the régime. For those who received but partial respite and in whom a second course brought no help, alcohol was demanded. Summarizing the series it appears clear that 56 per cent were either cured or improved sufficiently to carry on their routine employment.

Strangely enough women responded better than men. Many had been struggling with the disorder for as long as eight years. One individual who submitted to a resection of the nerve in 1932 observed some signs of recurrence six years ago. Typhoid vaccine banished all symptoms.

Apparently heated typhoid bacilli for those who choose to avoid a major operation offer substantial help. At any rate the proportion of recoveries indicates that the regimen warrants further trial.

GUM BOILS.

M. J. C. writes: For about ten days I have been troubled with gum boils. Some appear on the gums and others at the base of the gum. I have used various mouth washes without relief. What else can be done? What causes these abscesses?

REPLY.

Abscesses are due to infections, either from an ulcerated tooth or from poor mouth hygiene. Lowered resistance, improper diet, etc., may allow these infections to flare up. Improving general health and local treatment by your dentist are suggested. Make certain that your vitamin intake is up to standard.

IT ISN'T TRUE.

M. C. writes: Is it true that babies are subject to typhoid fever if given water after eating figs or cucumbers?

REPLY.

No, and again no. Typhoid fever is caused by drinking water contaminated with the typhoid germs. Incidentally, there are many other foods which are more suitable for baby than cucumbers.

DEMOCRACY IN P.-T. A?

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Edith Abbott's stirring protest against the action taken officially by the League of Women Voters on the neutrality act should be thoughtfully considered by every woman who belongs to this or similar organizations. It would be well to inquire as to how the decision to support repeal of the arms embargo was reached. Was the subject considered and voted upon after due hearing or was it decided, as such matters all too often are, by a few interested parties skilled in the technique of putting over such measures?

At a recent meeting of a local Parent-Teacher unit I inquired if any action on the neutrality bill had been taken by this great organization of mothers. Rather curtly I was told the matter was being considered by some higher authority and we would be informed in due time of their action. Now, I would like to know if this is a democratic procedure in a nation-wide organization noted for its insistence on democracy even in the home. What chance has the individual to express any opinion if not in these local meetings? Here is a great national association of mothers, who have a tremendous stake in the outcome of this proposed legislation, and not one word of discussion was suggested by the officers or committees at this recent meeting.

To date I have heard nothing further about the sentiments of the controling group in the Parent-Teachers association, but if they are silent on this great issue they will have lost an irretrievable opportunity to champion the cause of peace and blindly imperil the future of their children and their country. When American workmen, who for a decade have been denied an opportunity to build the homes and produce the needs of the American people, are now permitted to go to work producing the hellish implements of destruction for foreign nations, there's something rotten in America.

THE BALL SEASON'S NOW ENDED.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Do the parents of school children know that in some of our public schools the teachers have the radio in the class room turned in on the horse races and the ball games?

Maybe I'm just an old-fashioned parent and not up to the modern ideas, but since when have they stopped teaching readin', writin', and 'rithmetic in our public schools? A WORRIED PARENT.

COMMENDS NEW BOOK PAGE.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 8.—I wish to commend your book section in the Wednesday edition. It serves a very good purpose and is enjoyable to read. Other things being equal, the addition of this book page would cause me to take THE TRIBUNE ahead of any other daily.

FRANK R. MILLER.

THE PATTERNLESS PUZZLE.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Your crossword puzzles are still one of my best reasons for buying THE TRIBUNE, but why don't you ever print the patternless type? They are so much more absorbing that the others seem dull by comparison. Couldn't we have a patternless puzzle one or two mornings a week? ETHEL CORRIHER.

MAKE STREETS A PLAYGROUND.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Recently I built a house in what my neighbors declare is Chicago's most "ritzy" subdivision. Many families have two cars. Most keep help. Lawns are well kept up. The back yards I have seen are profuse with flowers. There's a community spirit. A women's club, several men's organizations, a garden club, and a P.-T. A. work on many projects. This is very inspiring, until one drives down the streets after school is dismissed.

Then the picture changes from a well ordered community to a little bit of the ghetto. Baseball games, football games, roller skating, bicycles, are all massed in the middle of the streets. There might be some excuse in slum areas, but here there are ample playgrounds, acres of vacant prairie land near by, and every house has a back yard.

Children, however, are not permitted or are not told to play in their own yards. Previously I rented a house in a north shore suburb. The people in that suburb seemed to realize that yards were for children to play in, and that streets were dangerous. Do some people value grass more highly than their children's safety? HOUSEHOLDER.

NONCOLLEGE PILOTS.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—Your article on the civil aeronautic school says that reports from the various authorized schools claim a lack of interest in the subject by the students. I wish that you would report the following to our government:

First of all, why limit the subject to men of two years' college? I know plenty of men with only high school education, and some with not even that, who are deeply interested in the subject. Let's attempt to open this to all young men who have an interest in aviation. I myself am interested in it and right now am trying to save $50 merely to learn how to land, take off, and fly a plane. As you probably know, a complete course, night flying, blind flying, chartering course, etc., costs $250. This is quite beyond my financial means. There are hundreds of young men in similar conditions. Just why they are not given a chance I do not know. These lads are just as shrewd mechanically as any college graduate and will make darn sight better pilots! CHESTER DANIEL.

AN HONEST CITY LAD.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 4.—On a recent trip to your city I experienced the true meaning of the old adage "honesty is the best policy." A youngster [Edward Leidley, 6106 Ellis avenue] warmed my heart with a display of honesty seldom seen in a huge metropolis.

Upon boarding a Jackson park express, I absentmindedly left my topcoat on the Addison street platform. From Chicago avenue I hurriedly retraced my steps and, believe it or not, there sat the 11 year old boy zealously guarding my lost garment.

The lad told me he had intended boarding the same train, but had perceived my carelessness and so decided to wait and take a chance on my return.

WHAT TO DO WITH PAROLEES?

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Mr. Simpson of Hawthorne, Wis., thinks Illinois farmers should not be allowed to harbor criminals on their farms—by criminals he refers to parolees from St. Charles. I would ask Mr. Simpson where he wants the parolees to be harbored. In the cities?

Possibly he thinks there should be no parole. Should all criminals be committed for life or released only upon expiration of sentence? The latter method of course means that law violators would be returned to society with an entire absence of supervision.

Rehabilitation of the criminal is a plenty tough job now, but it will become impossible if the idea becomes prevalent that the way to treat the criminal is to ostracize him.

SENTIMENT IN IOWA.

Waterloo, Ia., Oct. 7.—I read with much interest the letter from an Illinois minister objecting to Senator Herring's stand on neutrality. For some time in Iowa we have known three things:

1. Iowans are 95 per cent against lifting the embargo. [Senator Gillette's mails show this percentage.]

2. Senator Herring will ignore almost a unanimous mandate from his constituents and vote the opposite. [He apparently thinks he was elected to vote his own desires rather than the wishes of the voters.]

ROOF GUTTERS.

Chicago, Oct. 4 [Friend of the People].—No effort is being made to repair the building next to me, which I know some day will cause a fatal accident. The chimney is cracked right in half, ready to fall in both yards. Also the building has had no gutters for over a period of six years. I reported it several weeks ago to the city hall but they don't seem to do anything about it. MRS. M. K.

Inasmuch as the matter of the defective chimney is within the jurisdiction of the building department, it has been referred to that department.

Our sanitary inspector, following a visit to the premises, issued a notice to the responsible parties to:

A reinspection, on the 19th of September, indicates that compliance with this order has been obtained.

A WISCONSIN RED TELLS ABOUT TEA AT WHITE HOUSE

Used in Drive for New Members, Dies Told.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9 (AP).—Kenneth Goff of Delavan, Wis., a former divinity student, told the Dies committee today that the names of President and Mrs. Roosevelt were bandied about by young communist league members in promoting "communist front" organizations.

Goff, 25 years old, identified himself as a member of the communist league's national committee but announced that he was resigning both from Y. C. L. and the communist party at the conclusion of the day's testimony.

At one point in his testimony, Goff said in reply to a question that communists in Wisconsin preferred the New Deal to former Gov. Phil F. La Follette's third party movement.

Tried to Bore Within.

In the last election, however, he said that the communists had attempted to put candidates for the legislature on a progressive ticket in an effort to "bore from within" the legislative body.

The witness said that in promoting a pilgrimage to Washington under the sponsorship of the American Youth congress, he used a letter the President wrote to the congress in 1937. The witness described the congress as a communist front organization. He also related that he had heard William Hinckley, who he said was a communist as well as chairman of the youth congress, boast of having tea with Mrs. Roosevelt. The witness said that other communists picked by Hinckley were present at the tea.

"Did this add to their prestige?" asked Chairman Dies [D., Texas].

"Sure," said Goff. "I was looking forward to the day when I'd have tea with her myself."

He added that communists, in soliciting prospective members, would point to such an alleged association with Mrs. Roosevelt or some other prominent person and say:

"Why are you afraid to join the communist party? Look at the people we associate with."

Should Kick Out Reds.

After the names of President and Mrs. Roosevelt and others had been brought into the testimony, Dies declared for the record:

"The way the communists took advantage of liberal people should not be taken as a reflection on these people." He said the committee had no wish to "smear" innocent persons and that the testimony was brought out "simpiy to show how the communist party works."

Dies added that all persons connected with "communist front" organizations should cease such connections. He also suggested that organizations which had been "used" by the communist party "ought to kick all the communists out."

Quits Communists

(Story in adjoining column.)

KENNETH GOFF.

Representative Parnell Thomas [R., N. J.], a committee member, said the political parties should take such action and said his remark was aimed particularly at the New Deal.

"I don't think the New Deal has been guided by the communists," Representative Jerry Voorhis [D., Cal.] countered.

Goff testified the communists had "penetrated" in varying degrees the American League for Peace and Democrary, the World Youth congress, the Workers' Alliance, the American Students union, the Young Democrats, the CIO, some branches of the AFL, and organizations to aid Austrian and Spanish refugees.

Leader of Communists.

The witness said that he joined the party and Y.C.L. in 1936 under the name of "John Keats" and had been a leader in the latter organization in Wisconsin and nationally.

Goff has but one leg and he told the committee that he lost one leg in an automobile-trolley crash shortly after addressing an evening meeting to raise funds for Spanish refugees at Sheboygan, Wis.

The next morning, he asserted, "the party" hired a lawyer who took charge of the case. Goff said that his own wish was to go to trial in a suit for damage, "but the party needed the money at the time and they told me to settle the case for the $5,000 that had been offered."

He said he followed this advice, the result being that the lawyer received a third of the money and other portions of it were used for Spanish refugees relief and for general purposes by the YCL.

"About all I got out of it was a thousand bucks," he said.

Tells of Refugee Fund.

Goff said that all the money collected by the communists for Spanish refugee relief did not get to the refugees.

"I saw money for Spanish relief used by John Sekat to pay party office rent," he asserted, identifying Sekat as a communist in Wisconsin.

In describing the methods by which Y. C. L. members obtained new recruits, he declared that "good looking young white girl" were used to bring in Negro men members. After use of such tactics, he declared, the Y. C. L. had difficulty enlisting Negro girls because of resentment toward the white girls.

Minnec Loses Mail Fraud Appeal to Supreme Court

The United States Supreme court yesterday refused to review the conviction of John M. Minnec of Berwyn. Minnec was sentenced to four years in federal prison in June, 1938, for using the mails to defraud in his operation of the Lincoln Mutual Aid Society of Berwyn and the Cosmopolitan Mutual Benefit association of Hammond. A federal court jury here was told that Minnec defrauded some 2,000 persons who invested in his health and accident protection schemes.

A. F. L. DOOR STILL IS OPEN TO C. I. O., ROOSEVELT TOLD Unionists Laud Work of Dies Committee.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 9.—The American Federation of Labor today replied to President Roosevelt's letter urging the federation to meet again with the Congress of Industrial Organizations, of which John L. Lewis is head, to settle their four year labor split. The federation, holding its annual convention here, asserted: "Further appeals would be more fittingly directed to the C. I. O."

It reaffirmed its position that the door is open so that those who left the federation may come back home. The next move, the federation indicated, is up to the C. I. O. and Lewis, who was accused of having ended peace negotiations.

A committee is ready to meet a C. I. O. committee, the federation declared by resolution, whenever the Lewis labor camp indicates its willingness to resume conferences which were broken off early this year.

In chronological order the resolution set forth the efforts made by the federation to seal the breach in organized labor, and said that all of these attempts "have been thwarted by the chairman of the C. I. O. [Lewis]."

Green's Answer Is Approved.

The resolutions committee wrote: "From the inception of the C. I. O. the A. F. of L. has been ready and most willing to confer so that unity could be established." The C. I. O. opens its convention tomorrow in San Francisco, Cal.

The delegates approved President William Green's reply sent early last week to Mr. Roosevelt. In this Green said that the committee appointed by the federation after the President's appeal for a settlement last Feb. 23 is ready to resume whenever it has the opportunity, and that meanwhile the door of the federation has been thrown wide open with an invitation for those who left to come back.

The Dies congressional committee on un-American activities and the La Follette committee on civil liberties were given approval by the delegates in another resolution. This dwelt on the activities of communists disclosed by the Dies inquiry and the manner in which communists operated within the C. I. O.

It said that statements made by trades unionists at previous federation conventions to the effect that "several hundred members of the communist party were on C. I. O. pay rolls," working under direction of the communist party, have been sustained fully.

Debate Is Stormy.

Debate was a bit stormy over the resolution on the President's letter urging negotiations with C. I. O.

Daniel J. Tobin of the teamsters' union said: "More than ever is it necessary that the breach in labor be healed and that there be one organization of workers in this country."

Chauncey Weaver of Des Moines, Ia., a representative of the musicians' union, however, said he was against amalgamation.

"I've not been deeply impressed with the message from the White House," he said.

"The C. I. O. is the fair haired darling of the national administration. Why? Five hundred thousand dollar campaign funds speak an eloquent language. The effect of that has not been dissipated. The C. I. O. is grand master of the National Labor Relations board, and nobody can dispute that affirmation if he examines the record.

"The C. I. O. is honeycombed with communism. The Federation of Labor is never going to overlook that."

Joseph M. Weber, president of the American Federation of Musicians, said Weaver did not express the views of the last convention of the musicians.

COLD STORAGE LOCKERS FOUND BOON TO FARMER

More than 100 rural Illinois communities are being served by cold storage locker plants in which farmers may rent space for storing fresh meats, fruits, and vegetables. The plants were described in a report yesterday by E. E. Houghtby, treasurer of the Pure Milk association, at an Agricultural club luncheon in the Great Northern hotel.

They have been built in the last four years and the number is increasing, Houghtby said. He said that approximately 2,500 plants have been put into operation in the United States, most of them in the last four years, and that they serve approximately one million families.

"There is little doubt but that there is a substantial financial saving to any family that makes proper use of the locker," Houghtby said. "Losses from waste and spoilage resulting from home butchering can be almost entirely overcome, and more scientific cutting or packaging will result where the experienced butcher in the locker plant does the work."

CASKET UNION CHIEFS TO FACE BOMBING QUIZ

Lieut. Charles Egan of the state's attorney's police said last night that officials of the Casket Makers' union, local 166, would be questioned today about the throwing of a stench bomb Sunday night into the home of Willard O. Hedrick, 807 South boulevard, Evanston.

Hedrick is factory superintendent of the Central Metallic Casket company, 2333 Logan boulevard, where the union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, called a strike last August.

Hedrick told police he believed the bombing resulted from labor trouble at the casket company. He said that only a few factory workers are on strike and that some of the workers had been intimidated by union members.

Here's a true fish story that carries a springtime promise for the anglers. A 1½ ton truck rolled in from Guttenberg, Ia., yesterday with a gift of 12,500 three to four inch crappies and bullheads from the United States bureau of fisheries with which to stock the lagoons in Lincoln park. The traveling aquarium was something new in live fish carriers; Park Director Floyd Young's roll call of the teeming tanks revealed only three casualties among the small fry, a record low for the size of the shipment.

SUPREME COURT TO RULE ON TRIO OF LABOR CASES

Fights of A. F. L. and C. I. O. Involved.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9 (AP).—In its first business session of the new term the Supreme court decided today to adjudicate three controversies stemming from labor's factional struggle. In each the American Federation of Labor has attacked rulings by the National Labor Relations board favorable to the C. I. O.

One case involves the certification of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union [C. I. O.] as bargaining agent for longshoremen on the entire Pacific coast. This question hinges for the present on a single technical point—whether the certification is reviewable by the courts.

Michigan Case Included.

Another case involves a lower court ruling denying the labor board the right to place the name of only one labor organization [a C. I. O. affiliate] on the ballot for a run-off election to determine collective bargaining representation for employés of the Consumers Power company at Jackson, Mich. The third involves a decision setting aside a labor board order directing a steamship company at Mobile, Ala., to reinstate a group of [C. I. O.] employés with back pay.

Seven controversies submitted for action involved labor and on three of these—in all of which lower courts upheld NLRB rulings—the court declined to act. Thus the lower court decisions were permitted to stand.

Few Important Questions.

In contrast with the number of important federal questions decided at the last term relatively few cases of national interest, aside from those involving the labor act, have been placed before the high court thus far this year.

The court today also refused to act on a ruling by the 7th federal Circuit court that the federal income tax could be imposed upon the salary of Judge Oscar E. Bland of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals and refused to reconsider its June 5 decision upholding constitutionality of milk marketing regulations in the New York and Boston areas ordered by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

BOOKKEEPER CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

John De Groit, 47 years old, for two years a bookkeeper at the Therien Nurses home, 6017 Kenwood avenue, was arrested last night by Woodlawn police on the complaint of Mrs. Ada Wilhelm, superintendent, that he had forged her name to several checks.

C. I. O. SLOWDOWN BRINGS LOCKOUT; 18,000 MADE IDLE

Company Charges Plot to Show Union Strength.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9 [Special].—Eighteen thousand employés of the Dodge division of Chrysler corporation were thrown out of work today when the company closed its plants. Tonight the plant management and C. I. O. representatives of the United Automobile Workers of America were attempting to negotiate an agreement to end a slowdown strike which caused the lockout.

The morning shift had worked only 20 minutes when the management stopped production and sent the men home. At that time it was announced that the afternoon shift could go to work as usual if workers agreed not to retard production. When the pledge was not forthcoming, the passenger car plant was declared closed and a short time later the truck division was closed.

64 Workers Fired.

Trouble in the plant started last week when 64 assembly line workers were fired for retarding production. The management charged they were letting cars pass on the assembly line without performing their required tasks. This practice virtually stopped production because the cars had to be sent back.

The C. I. O. refused to recognize the dismissals and ordered the 64 men to report for work this morning. They appeared and the company refused to reinstate them. Then the slowdown was resumed.

The contract between the corporation and the U. A. W. A. will expire in a short time. The company charges the U. A. W. A. is attempting to show its power in order to force certain concessions when a new contract is negotiated.

C. I. O. leaders accuse the company of attempting to speed up production and declare that the wage scale is unsatisfactory.

Governor's Offer Rejected.

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 9 [Special].—William Cody, regional director of the U. A. W. A., today rejected an offer of Gov. Julius P. Heil to mediate the strike which has kept 6,100 Nash automobile factory employés idle since last Monday.

The governor made his offer yesterday in separate meetings with the plant management and C. I. O. spokesmen. Negotiations for a contract between the U. A. W. A. and the Nash management had been in progress for five days when the strike was called.

Negotiations were resumed after the strike call under the same conditions as existed before, except that workers were forced to lose $250,000 in wages last week while their leaders bickered over details of the contract. Major points had been accepted before the strike.

CIO MAY DECLARE WAR ON WAGNER ACT, LEWIS HINTS

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 9 (AP).—John L. Lewis, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, hinted tonight that the organization may turn against the Wagner labor relations act which it has defended from attacks by employers and the American Federation of Labor.

The hint came in Lewis' presidential report to the second C. I. O. national convention, which will open tomorrow and will last a week.

Lewis sharply criticized recent administration of the Wagner act by the National Labor Relations board.

"When the act is so administered as to thwart the development and maintenance of stable industrial relations," Lewis asserted, "then it becomes necessary to consider and weigh carefully whether the benefits of the act outweigh the dangers which its administration inflicts upon organized labor."

Funeral services will be held from Holy Cross Lutheran church, 3116 South Racine avenue, at 1:30 p. m. Thursday. Burial will be in Bethania Lutheran cemetery.

Dr. Pfotenhauer came to the United States in 1875 from Celle, Germany. He was educated for the Lutheran ministry at Concordia college, Fort Wayne, Ind., and Concordia Theological seminary, St. Louis. Following his graduation in 1880 from the seminary he became a traveling missionary in Minnesota, the Dakotas, and Montana.

Elected by Synod in 1901.

He was elected president of the Dakota-Montana division of the synod in 1891. A decade later he was elected president of the synod, with offices in Chicago. He retired in 1935.

NEWSPAPER CASE RULING ASSAILED BY NLRB MEMBER

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9 (AP).—William M. Leiserson contended today that fellow members of the Labor Relations board had taken an arbitrary position in a decision involving employés of the Boston Globe Publishing company of Boston.

The board, in ordering a collective bargaining election, ruled that commercial department employés as well as editorial, building maintenance, and certain composing room workers should decide whether they wished to be represented by the American Newspaper Guild. In a dissenting opinion, Leiserson said:

"The order in the majority decision that the commercial employés shall vote with the editorial and maintenance employés is a mere device for enabling the guild to secure the right to represent the employés in the commercial departments even though the majority of the commercial employés do not desire such representation."

COURT UPHOLDS AWARD IN GIRL'S RADIUM DEATH

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—The United States Supreme court today dismissed the appeal of the Radium Dial company for review of the award made by the Illinois Industrial commission to Catherine W. Donohue, who died after being a victim of radium poisoning.

Mrs. Donohue was one of a number of young women alleged to have been poisoned by radium while workers for the Radium Dial company at Ottawa, Ill. Their work consisted of painting radium watch and clock dials. Thirteen other employés have claims pending.

The Illinois Industrial commission awarded Mrs. Donohue $5,661 on July 6, 1938. She had terminated her employment in August, 1931, and a decision of the commission on April 25, 1934, stated she suffered disability from this rare occupational disease. She died on July 27, 1938.

The Supreme court of Illinois last February and on a rehearing last June sustained the award.

Today's Supreme court dismissal of the case for want of a substantial federal question marks the seventh time this case has been won.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Sermon in a Projection Booth

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 9.—Jimmy Cagney, in "The Roaring Twenties," plays the rôle of a big time bootlegger who finally is shot to death. A policeman, making out his routine report, walks over to where Jimmy lies dead in the arms of Gladys George and asks: "Who is that guy?" She answers: "He used to be a big shot." The seven word epitaph is wonderfully shrewd writing, because it expresses a thousand lifetimes of people you've met in the headlines. To this movie colony, which is filled with men and women who used to be big shots, the seven words thrust home with peculiar impact.

"He used to be a big shot." Holy smoke, I've met so many of them who had their brief fling or an extended fling in the spotlight. . . . The late Charles Dillingham, who died broke. . . . Nijinsky, greatest of ballet dancers. When he first danced in Paris the emotional French audience rose to its feet shouting excitedly. Women stripped bracelets from their wrists and hurled them to the stage. . . . Wall street's Richard Whitney used to be a big shot before he became a number.

In the federal correctional institute at San Pedro there is a man who used to be the biggest of big shots, Al Capone. . . . Dutch Schultz qualified until he stopped a slug in a Jersey barroom, as he stepped out of a telephone booth. . . . Dillinger belonged to the club until F. B. I. men cornered him in Chicago and saved the government the expense of a long trial. . . . There's an old man living at Doorn, in Holland, whose commands once made the world tremble.

Sometimes "big shots" become little shots through no fault of their own. . . . Haile Selassie is no longer a big shot, because he was betrayed by the politicians of Europe. . . . Austria's Kurt Schuschnigg lost out through no fault of his own, and although they locked him up in a hotel room he has self-respect as a roommate. . . . In my book, Mack Sennett still is a big shot, because the veteran is still in there pitching. . . . So too with Flora Finch, who refuses to live in the yesterdays of her career, but occupies herself with today and tomorrow. . . . Sometimes Pa Time rolls down the curtain. . . . Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, Bobby Jones, Earl Sande, Jimmy McLarnin, Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, Johnny Dundee, Red Grange, Paavo Nurmi, Joie Ray, Bill Tilden—long after they threw their last punch, raced their last mile, hit their last tournament shot, the record book remained as testimony.

Big shots . . . none of them ever understood that they have a span almost as limited as fireworks that blaze up against the sky just long enough to excite "ohs" and "ahs" and then sputter out. If, in that brief whirl, they can win the affection of the beholders, they've accomplished a great deal.

French Movie Tells Grim and Sordid Story

"ESCAPE FROM YESTERDAY."

Produced by Societe Nouvelle Cinematographie.
Directed by Julien Duvivier.
Presented at the Sonotone theater.

The Cast.

Aischa la Slaoui	Annabella
Pierre Gilieth	Jean Gabin
Fernando Lucas	Robert Le Vigan
Capt. Weller	Pierre Renoir
Marcel Mullot	Aimos
Legionnaire Muller	Gaston Modot

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

This tells a grimly sordid story of grim and sinful men. It hasn't a light or "pretty" moment, and I can't think of any woman who would care to sit through it.

Well filmed, however.

It is from the French studios and features France's No. 1 star, Jean Gabin. An easy and capable actor, though short on personality to my way of thinking.

He is seen as a murderer who seeks to escape the French police and memories of his past by joining the Spanish Foreign Legion.

Gilieth loses his money and passport to a couple of villains. . . . He is received into the Legion with no questions asked and curiosity regarding him displayed by but one person—a man who turns out later to be an informer who has a pretty good idea as to the big sullen fellow's identity and would like to collect the reward that has been offered for his return. . . .

Gilieth succeeds in being transferred to another battalion, and marches away to relieve men who have been working on a far away outpost. . . . Here he falls in love with and marries by strange ritual, an Arabian dancing girl. . . .

Comes Private Lucas. . . . His attempts to pump the girl are futile. . . . Later the two men find themselves with a small contingent that is sent to hold an African outpost against enemy attack. . . . There, common misery wipes out their differences. . . . The finale is drear but impressive.

The film is intelligently acted and directed. I think Tyrone Power should be proud of his little Annabella, who, in a dark wig, gives a most sympathetic performance.

Start Recitals for Victors in Concert Tests

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Bertil Hillner, baritone, and Carol Silver, pianist, last night began the procession of contest winners who are scheduled to perform this month in Kimball hall. They, like the five who are to follow them, emerged successful from the competitions sponsored last season by the Society of American Musicians.

Mr. Hillner sang classical songs, an operatic excerpt, German lieder, and an English group in a voice quality which ranged from fair to good. He phrased and colored naturally, seemed to believe firmly in the importance or interest of the music, and thereby succeeded in making his audience believe, too.

Miss Silver, in a program of Mendelssohn, Chopin, Liszt, and some moderns, displayed a fair keyboard facility and sometimes a fine and delicate tone. Her playing still lacks the conviction and earnestness and the wealth of musical detail which can come only from a thorough grasp of the emotional significance of the music.

WEDDING

Miss Margaret Leck became the bride of William Earl Keath, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Keath of Chicago, on Sept. 27. The ceremony took place in the rectory of the St. Philip Neri church and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Leck. Mr. Keath and his bride are motoring to Seattle and Los Angeles and will be at home in Chicago before the end of the year.

ENGAGEMENT

The engagement of Miss Marean Steiger to Harry A. Schert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Schert of 5834 North Talman avenue, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Steiger Jr. of 2343 Irving Park boulevard. The marriage will take place on Dec. 2 at the home of the bride's parents.

Seek Variety at Dances for Young People

BY JUDITH CASS.

When we were young every dancing party was just about like every other dancing party, but they all were fun. Today it is different, for youth, like their elders, demand variety in their parties. Youngsters do not want even the same orchestra time after time, consequently the mothers and teachers who plan the evening parties for the subdebs and their young escorts have to be looking for something different or new all the time.

To keep the young girls and boys who will be going to the Fortnightlies this winter interested and anxious to attend the dances, the committee of mothers, headed by Mrs. Nelson Thomasson Jr., has engaged a different orchestra for every one of the parties.

The 10th season of these popular subscription dances will open on Friday, Nov. 10, at the Fortnightly. Mrs. James E. Bennett, Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr., Mrs. Dudley Stark, Mrs. Edward McDougal, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Mrs. Joseph D. McNulty, Mrs. Wayne Wills, Mrs. Philip K. Wrigley, Mrs. George V. Fox, Mrs. Richard Cooper Jr., and Mrs. Thomas J. McCarty are the mothers who have been Mrs. Thomasson's co-workers in planning the series.

Diner-Dance Club May Be Formed Again.

The Dinner-Dance club that met last year at the Saddle and Cycle probably will be formed again this season, for the sophomores that composed the membership had such a good time that their brothers and sisters and friends who were freshmen last year want to have a similar club this winter.

Although Mrs. Roger Faherty's Anne has outgrown the club and has gone away to the Knox school, Mrs. Faherty has agreed to be the chairman of the committee that will plan the series. Miss Lucile Marsh will direct it instead of Miss Alicia Pratt, who now is Mrs. Forest Ray Moulton of Washington.

The Dance club that met at the Girls' Latin school last year will not be formed this year. The Dinner club, however, that meets at north shore country clubs—a different one each time—is flourishing, and will have its first party on Saturday, Oct. 21. The party will be at the Indian Hill club and Mr. and Mrs. William Francis Benoist, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Gale Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Theodore Konsberg, and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Tomb Wilson will be the hosts. The young people in this club are now such adults—juniors and seniors—that their parents have consented to let them have their dances without an instructor.

Jazz Band Popular for Junior League Party.

An interesting sidelight on the dance music tastes of an older generation is that most of the older people who have taken boxes for dinner and dancing at the Chicago Junior league's open house next Saturday at the Drake hotel have reserved them in the ballroom where a hot Negro jazz band is to play.

Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. Charles G. King, Mrs. James R. Offield, Mrs. Ernest P. Waud, Mrs. Sewell Avery, Mrs. Richard Stearns, Mrs. Arch Shaw, and Mrs. Oliver Burton are among the boxholders. There will be dinner and dancing in the Gold Coast room, too.

The day long party is open to the public. One of the main features will be a bridge party at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Hundreds of beautiful prizes have been given to the league to be awarded to each bridge table. The prizes are on view now in the Drake mezzanine.

An engagement announcement of interest in Chicago was made in Florida and New York. It is that of Miss Mary Marshall Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marshall Price of Coconut Grove, Fla., to

Through the Looking Glass

If you have a dry, sensitive skin you might try to toughen it up a bit rather than coddle it to still further sensitivity. Friction, as afforded by a complexion brush or a coarse wash cloth, is effective in stepping up circulation. So is cold water or lotion, preferably used with a spray.

There are times when we think that the dry skin gets a little too much coddling. There's no denying that it does need oil and plenty of it, but do think that certain types of dry, sensitive skin can be conditioned to stand the wear and tear a little better than they do.

The average routine of the woman with paper-thin skin is to treat it gently. Many skins would benefit from a little circulatory improvement. Using a rough wash cloth or a complexion brush might be just what that skin needs. It might be a bit difficult at first, but often the skin, when it gets used to it, seems to thrive on it. It's "local exercise" that that kind of a complexion needs.

Use plenty of cream. But don't skimp on the soap and water. The soap should be the blandest you can find, but the complexion brush should be a fairly stiff one. Don't overdo. Scrub the face gently at the beginning and gradually work up to more vigorous strokes. After the soap and water cleansing try rinsing first in warm, then in cold water. If you're a real Spartan you'll use a bath spray, letting the cold water splash merrily all over your face and your neck. There aren't many tricks than can top this as a circulation stirrer-upper.

Some women have found that towels are better than soft tissues; the friction a towel affords seems to help combat the flakiness that is one of the most vexing attributes of the extremely dry skin.

Improving circulation is something a great many of us might try. Begin to treat that thin skin a little more roughly. Gradually you'll find that it can "take it." And the skin that can take it has a much better chance of remaining smooth and well oiled in cold weather.

BY CECIL SMITH.

Ruth Chatterton has done both herself and us a disservice by staying away from our legitimate boards for fifteen years. An altogether winning, vivid personality, and an actress of superbly natural projection, she has suffered unjustly in the estimation of many because of the limitations the motion picture camera has imposed upon her.

The movie idiom misrepresents her technique, often presenting as hollow artifices the shrewd contrivances of her comedy style, and missing many of the stratagems of timing and inflection which lend uncommon distinction to her present performance in "Tonight We Dance."

In her new play Miss Chatterton has a miscellaneous catalog of situations and moods to deal with. She is revealed as the breezy but essentially conservative wife of a horsy Santa Barbaran. The main argument of the play is devoted to her attempt to decide—after she has been to Reno—whether divorce and the opportunity for prosperous remarriage can compensate for the loss of her indigent gambler of a husband and of her three button-bright youngsters.

In the variability of her part Miss Chatterton finds stimulus and reward. Her seasoned skill shows her that the playwrights intended Ramona to be just one more variant on the theme of the eternal, inconsistent feminine. In Ramona's inconsistency she finds the peg on which to hang a beautifully consistent performance. If she has less flair than Gertrude Lawrence and less style than Lynn Fontanne, she has far more ease and simplicity than either. Her return to Chicago is an important event.

No major masterpiece, the play is something more than froth and something less than substance. After a first act that bogs down from time to time, it zips through the rest of its course with many a knowing crack, and indeed with many a well known one. In the last half a crescendo of high spirits leads through a good scene of give and take between husband and wife after her return from Reno, up to a screwball farce finale that audiences are pretty sure to like if they do not apply grandma's rules of decorum.

Barry Tomson, too long a stooge for the Lunts, comes brilliantly into his own. In this, the most grateful part he has had, he charms the ladies no end and manipulates his playboy part with deftness and genuineness.

Marcel Journet as an unbelievable smoothie of a French orchestral conductor, and Lila Lee as a wealthy hussy out to win Mr. Thomson's heart with horses, figure innocuously.

Over 40.

An attractive woman, just past 40 and not looking it, went out for a few hours of, to her, relatively new enjoyment, golf. When she approached the water hazard, her caddy said:

"If you are over 40, shoot from here."

Emma's Store.

Near north siders know Emma's store on North State street near Division. They knew it when they were children, and their children know it. Now Emma's store is immortalized in verse by Dorothy Aldis in her new volume of children's poetry, Before Things Happen, which is just off the press. Although it is a tiny shop, Emma seems to have everything on hand shoppers want in a hurry. As the verse puts it:

Notepaper, lamp shades, paper dolls, slippers,
Candy and shoestrings, umbrellas and zippers;
No matter what's needed or how great the hurry,
As long as there's Emma's, you don't need to worry.
And SHE never minds how long you stay.
"Why, sure, take your time, dear," Emma will say. . . .

Men in Uniform.

The final story about the recent visit of the Legionnaires to town is supplied by Miss Helen Parker, who happened to mention it during one of her Art institute talks. Several girls, standing on a bench watching the parade, occasionally called out, "Hi, Handsome!" The whole corps invariably turned around in answer.

Chicago's First Author.

The most recent addition to Joseph T. Ryerson's collection of Chicagoana is a copy of the first book ever written in Chicago. The book, The Story of Baptism, Both from the Inspired and Uninspired Writings, has been added to the shelves of books by Chicago authors on either side of the fireplace in his Chicago room at the top of his Astor street house. The book, which was printed in Philadelphia in 1840, originally belonged to John Wentworth, twice mayor, for 12 years a member of congress and one of the city's early newspaper editors. Mr. Wentworth, in an article in The Standard in 1882, discussed the Rev. Mr. Hinton's book, also one of his sermons, which was the first sermon Wentworth ever heard in Chicago. The Rev. Mr. Hinton, said to be the first divine to make headway in the Protestant field in Chicago, was pastor of a Baptist church at Washington and La Salle streets.

Drama Tea.

The players' group of the Chicago Woman's club will sponsor a drama tea this afternoon at the clubhouse, 72 East 11th street. James Bradley Griffin will present a program. Mrs. Fred W. Waterman heads the group.

They Hunted a Fox

By Alice Campbell

[Copyright: 1939: By Alice Ormond Campbell.]

SYNOPSIS.

Alison Young and her fiancé, Dr. Colin Ladbroke, are guests at Chenerys, the English country estate of Tom Boldre, to attend a fox hunt and ball. Wynn Marchmont, sister of Tom's wife, Pat, is engaged to Tom's brother, Derek, a veterinary. Alison overhears a love scene between Pat and Arthur Kingsclere. Chenerys is mortgaged to the hilt. Gregg, Tom's agent, urges him to accept an offer made for the estate, but Tom refuses to sell. At the hunt, from a far off hill, Alison and Colin see Tom thrown and a man bending over him. When they reach the accident they find Derek stooping over Tom's prostrate form. A farmer, Glover, happens along and helps them. Tom, revived, is surprised that Derek, rather than his neighbor, Maj. Fitts, found him. Three weeks later Tom is again thrown and dies soon after. Alison visits Wynn at Chenerys. Riding near the scene of Tom's first accident they find the dead body of Glover. Official verdict is that Glover was killed by a shot from a passing car. Kingsclere, Derek, and Maj. Fitts all drove that way. Inspector Meadows from Scotland Yard investigates. He finds the murder weapon. It belongs to Maj. Fitts, but was stolen the afternoon of the day Glover was shot—after Kingsclere and Derek had called. Dr. Blount, who'd attended Tom and pronounced his death due to a heart attack, suffers an apparent stroke while the inspector questions him. His colleague, Dr. Cox, says he can't be disturbed for three weeks. The inspector sends for Dr. Colin Ladbroke, who knew Tom's heart was sound. Colin exposes Dr. Blount's illness as a fake and gets him to admit he gave Tom an anti-tetanus injection, which caused his death as he had not been desensitized after a previous infection. The first injection must have been given Tom after his first fall when he was unconscious—whoever gave it must have murdered Glover because he was a witness—and Derek was seen bending over Tom. The post mortem on Tom proves murder.

INSTALLMENT XXVI.
MORE MURDER MOTIVES

Now that Derek faced her Wynn found nothing to say. What unnerved her worst was the sight of his eyes, burnt out again, as they had been for so long until just the last few days.

He spoke gently. "Don't tie yourself into knots, my dear. I understand."

"O, but you don't!" It burst from her in anguish. "Derek, surely you must realize why I'm going?"

"Certainly." His tone was still colorless. "It's Pat. The bombshell she exploded this evening about that revolver. Funny her utterly casual way of bringing it out. Just as a riotously amusing item. 'It seems,' he grimaced, "'Fred had two men friends with him when his revolver disappeared, just before Glover was shot.' I sometimes wonder, can she really be so dense?"

"You must listen, dear!" Wynn took him firmly by the lapels. "I've got to make it look as though I wasn't the tiniest bit worried. As though you meant nothing especial to me. Thank God," she said fervently, "no one can actually say otherwise. Except Allison, and she, of course, doesn't count. O, I know that damned inspector may have got some notion of our being engaged, but it's not official, and if I just get quietly back to my job he may think differently."

"So the fact of my wanting rather desperately to marry you needn't tip the balance in the way of a motive? I'm afraid, my dear, you're locking the stable after the horse is out."

He hadn't understood. She shoveled up a handful of oddments and stuffed them into the suitcase. Not raising her eyes she whispered:

"Was the other man Arthur?" He did not reply. "I knew it," she said swiftly. "So what?" She waited with held breath.

"How the hell do I know?" he muttered.

She nodded. "It's beastly, but we've got to face this out. If Tom was killed, the person who gave him that first injection can only have been someone very close to him. Some one Tom trusted—some one who wanted Tom out of the way. Does it leave us much choice?"

He winced. It goaded her on to plainer speech.

"Why not Arthur? He's off his head about Pat. I told you how both Allison and I heard Pat refusing point blank to go away with him. She meant it, too. She was like a stone wall."

"Yes. And just when could Arthur have dug a needle into Tom without hell being raised? Or any one else, except that time Tom was knocked out?"

"Don't you see," Wynn persisted, "what we've got to concentrate on is Glover. Where was he before you saw him?"

"I haven't a notion. He was coming from the trees."

"Well, he may have been snooping for some time. There's a lot of underbrush to hide behind."

"You seem very well informed."

His tone brought scarlet to her cheeks. "Of course. I went along there this morning to make sure. O, I took jolly good care no one saw me, so don't worry about that!"

"I'm sure you did." Again that dry sarcasm. "Well, and whoever shot Glover was equally cautious not to be seen. It may save him from hanging, but by the same token it will let the public think what it likes without contradiction."

She cast up her hands. "But who in his senses could think it was you? It's too utterly fantastic to consider!"

His silence was another wound in raw flesh. "Fool!" she lashed. "It just can't happen." Feverishly she got back to her packing. "You'll see. Somewhere, somehow, there's a scrap of real evidence. Tangible evidence—you know? And this inspector's bound to get hold of it."

Had she struck something at last? Derek had moved towards the door, but now turned, holding some inward debate. She watched him. He came within three feet of her and spoke with an effort.

"You'd better have the worst of this now. The fact is, I had a small ampoule of anti-tetanus serum. Bought it last autumn after hearing of some poor devil dying in agonies of lockjaw for want of proper attention. I left it here in my room."

All the blood in her body drained away. "Derek! Where is it now?"

"Gone. Don't ask me when. I'd forgotten the damned thing."

"I see," she said stoically. "Well, shall you tell the inspector?"

"If he asks me. No,"—with finality—"don't start wondering who took it. I didn't discover it was missing till last night, and this house is like a railway station, as you know."

He was back at the door, fidgeting to be gone, and she found herself too stunned to detain him.

Over his shoulder he said, "Try to get some sleep." Her arms were outstretched in appeal. He did not see them. Softly the door closed. She heard him walking down the passage to his room.

A sob tore her throat. She stood staring down at the clothing on the bed as though wondering how it had got there. Slowly she became aware of an unfinished gray pullover with scarlet needles struck in it. Something inside her snapped. She crumpled the knitting against her convulsed face and held it there.

"O, darling, darling!" she muttered. "It's got to be done! Now, while there's time, I've got to cut myself adrift. Snap out of it. Make out there's never been anything between us. It may make all the difference. Particularly after what he's just told me."

The syringe thing. Who had taken it? Where was it now? Her mind stuck petrifiedly round the new and appalling problem. As Derek had said, there was not the smallest good speculating. If it was the ampoule used on Tom, by now it would be broken to bits, washed down a drain—or cast into the dregs of the river Severn. It would never turn up. . . .

Who was going downstairs?

Wide eyed in the darkness she heard the telltale squeak of the second step. The luminous dial of her watch showed a few minutes past 2 . . . There! That muffled thud was the front door.

Out of her room she flew to the landing window. Everywhere was dark, but there was no mistaking the quiet lithe movement of the figure just crossing the drive into the rhododendrons. Derek, sleepless as he was, going out for air. In less than three minutes she was out of the house, in her old beige camel's hair coat, her crêpe rubber soles making no sound. Ghostlike she slipped into the rhododendron path. In and out it wound, the dense foliage soaring high above her head.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: They'll Have a Jury

Your Favorite Frock Teaches Good Lesson

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you haven't your wardrobe entirely collected, a tip from that attractive young stage personage, Rosalind Russell, may give you an idea. Rosalind has gained quite a reputation as a "best dressed."

"There isn't one of us," says Rosalind, "who does not feel instinctively that, in our wardrobes, there is one dress more becoming than all the others.

"Well, that's the dress to study. Don that particular garment and try to find out what it has that the other garments lack. It may be the cut of the sleeve, the drape of the skirt, the line of the shoulder, the neckline. It may be the color. Whatever it may be, we should seek that quality or qualities in new gowns we purchase."

Rosalind warns against promptly adopting the latest fad unless one is a sort of spectacular figure and one with an ample purse. Even then, she must avoid the cheap, new fads. There always appear at the beginning of a season certain numbers that are sensational. We have a theory that these are introduced to switch women's thought sharply from a last season's style. Then, she is in a mood to accept its better interpretations as the styles "settle." Waiting for the more conventional interpretations is what the better dressed women do.

Good taste is constant, season in and season out, the suave, smooth thing; the thing that doesn't startle; isn't cheap or flamboyant. In dress the same rule applies as in the field of manners.

Find a New Beau to Help You in Forgetting First

BY DORIS BLAKE.
[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"This letter is written to you in seriousness. Please, please take it that way. Give me some advise, some sane, sensible advice.

"I am madly in love with a married man. There are no children. When I am with him the world is wonderful. When he leaves me, to go home to this wife, the torture I go through mentally is more than I can bear. Sometimes, I think death would be a big relief. Do not tell me to forget him. That is impossible!"—

During this intermission, we would beg you to try to intrigue some single man's interest. If you had charm for the married one, you have qualities men like. And you'd have loyalty, no doubt. We are only asking you to give yourself a break. That's the least you can do for yourself. There's no doubt that if you exercised the same interest in, appreciation of, and sympathy for another man, he would find you a person whose company he would court.

All right, we won't tell you to forget the man. If you have made up your mind you cannot forget or won't, you won't, that's all.

And we're not out of sympathy with a young woman who finds herself enmeshed in a love affair that promises her only a heartache. It seems such a bitter waste of love. That much affection, that much loyalty brought to a legitimate romance would insure such happiness! That's what we regret! And the waste of years, often the best years in a young woman's life. And the word that gets around which cuts off promise of attention from more suitable suitors.

We would plead with you, young lady, to try not seeing the man for a time. Establish a six months' truce with yourself. This may cost you some pain, true. But could it be any worse than your feeling at the man's departure to return to his wife's side? You agree that that is agony. Well, the six months' separation couldn't be worse, could it?

Potatoes Head List of French Fried Edibles

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Yesterday we talked generally about deep fat frying of foods. Today we're going to consider some specific recipes for French friend edibles.

French fried potatoes probably are the most common product of the deep fat kettle, so we'll consider them first.

FRENCH FRIED POTATOES.

Start preparations a little more than an hour before you want the potatoes for eating. Allow three medium sized potatoes for two persons. Pare and cut into strips one-half to three-quarter inch wide, and about three inches long. Cover the strips with cold water and let soak 20 minutes or longer [up to two hours], as is convenient.

While the fat is heating in a deep fat kettle or heavy sauce pan, drain the potatoes and dry them thoroughly between towels or sheets of absorbent paper. Heat the fat gradually to 375-385 degrees [lower temperature for lard]. Use a deep fat thermometer or the 40 second bread cube test to determine temperature. The kettle should be half full of the hot fat.

Add the well dried potatoes, not too many at a time, placing them in the frying basket and lowering it gradually into the hot fat. Fry from five to 10 minutes until brown and tender, then remove basket with potatoes from fat. Drain fried potatoes on absorbent paper, and check the temperature of the fat for the next batch of potatoes.

Fried potatoes may be spread out on soft paper and kept in a warm oven until all are fried. Then they are sprinkled with salt and are ready to serve.

If there isn't going to be time to fry the potatoes entirely just before dinner, they may be partly fried earlier in the day and rebrowned in deep, hot fat just before serving. They will be as crisp and fresh as newly fried potatoes.

New potatoes cannot be successfully French fried.

Ham and Corn Fritters.

1 cup canned corn, cream style
½ cup ground cooked ham
1 tablespoon minced onion
⅔ cup flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder

Mix corn, ham and onion. Sift baking powder and flour together and stir into corn mixture. Drop by teaspoons into deep hot fat, at 360 degrees, and cook until golden brown. Do not make fritters too large. Drain well on soft paper. Serve with cream sauce or tomato sauce.

FRENCH FRIED ONIONS.

Cut large onions into slices about a fourth of an inch thick. Separate the slices into rings. Dip the rings into milk and then dredge with flour. Fry in deep hot fat at 365 degrees. Drain and salt lightly.

BATTER FRIED CHICKEN.

The chicken is first disjointed and then simmered or baked until tender. Then it is thoroughly cooled and dried on the surface. Each piece is dipped into batter and dropped into deep fat at 365 degrees to brown and heat through. This is a crisp, golden brown coating.

To make the batter, sift two cups of flour with three teaspoons of baking power and one-half teaspoon salt. Beat two eggs into one-half cup milk and stir into dry ingredients. If batter does not seem thin enough, add more milk.

PRESIDENT IN RADIO PLEA FOR CHARITY 'THAT BEGINS AT HOME'

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt asserted in a radio address tonight that community chests are America's home front and then added: "Our home front must be defended at all hazards."

The President spoke by radio in behalf of the 1939 mobilization for human needs and in support of community chests in many cities. He declared at the outset of his brief speech:

"As we look out upon a world, unhappily torn by war with all of its attendant horrors of death and destruction, we must remember, no matter how broad our sympathies, that charity begins at home."

The survival of the old spirit of home must be guaranteed, the President said. The family remains the basis of society as we know it, he added, "and must be preserved as an institution if democracy is to be perpetuated." He concluded with the plea: "Let us, as we sit in our homes tonight, give thought to our less fortunate fellow Americans who live in homes less cheerful than ours—homes often on the border line of squalor, misery and privation."

Dean of Symphony Changes Jobs After 47 Years as Violinist

Forty-seven years is long enough to play in the second violin section of an orchestra, thinks Frantz Esser, who is the oldest member of the Chicago Symphony orchestra in point of service. So, yesterday morning, at the first rehearsal for this season, gray haired Mr. Esser was sitting with the viola players. He will be there at the first concert on Thursday night, and all the rest of the season, which is the 49th of the orchestra.

He was one of the guests at a luncheon party given yesterday by the trustees of the orchestra for members of the orchestral association and the woman's committee.

Most of the guests had been at the rehearsal in the morning. The buffet luncheon was served in the foyer.

Parents Attend Wedding of Mrs. Noyes Shaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Paul Noyes went to Boston Saturday for the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Catherine Noyes Shaw, to David Norton Yerkes, son of the Yale professor of psychobiology, Robert M. Yerkes, and Mrs. Yerkes. Prof. Yerkes is interested especially in the psychobiology of anthropoid apes.

The former Mrs. Shaw, whose marriage to Roger Dustin Shaw was terminated by divorce, has been active in the Chicago Junior league since making her debut ten years or so ago. She and her bridegroom are to make their home in Washington, D. C.

The wedding took place in the chapel of Old South church, with a small reception following at the Ritz Carlton hotel. Mr. Yerkes is a graduate of Harvard and of the Yale architectural school.

Mr. Noyes returned to Chicago after the wedding, but Mrs. Noyes is spending two weeks in Connecticut visiting friends.

October 10, 1939.

Don't shirk your responsibilities. Those with this birthdate, or Jan. 10, may have felt more than others who are in a six year, the burden of the adjustments necessary in the home circle, for they are naturally headstrong, ambitious, and prefer to walk alone. The demands, advice, and comments of friends and relatives is not pleasant music to their ears. Take this month very quietly so as to get your nerves rested for the stronger forces of the last two months of the year.

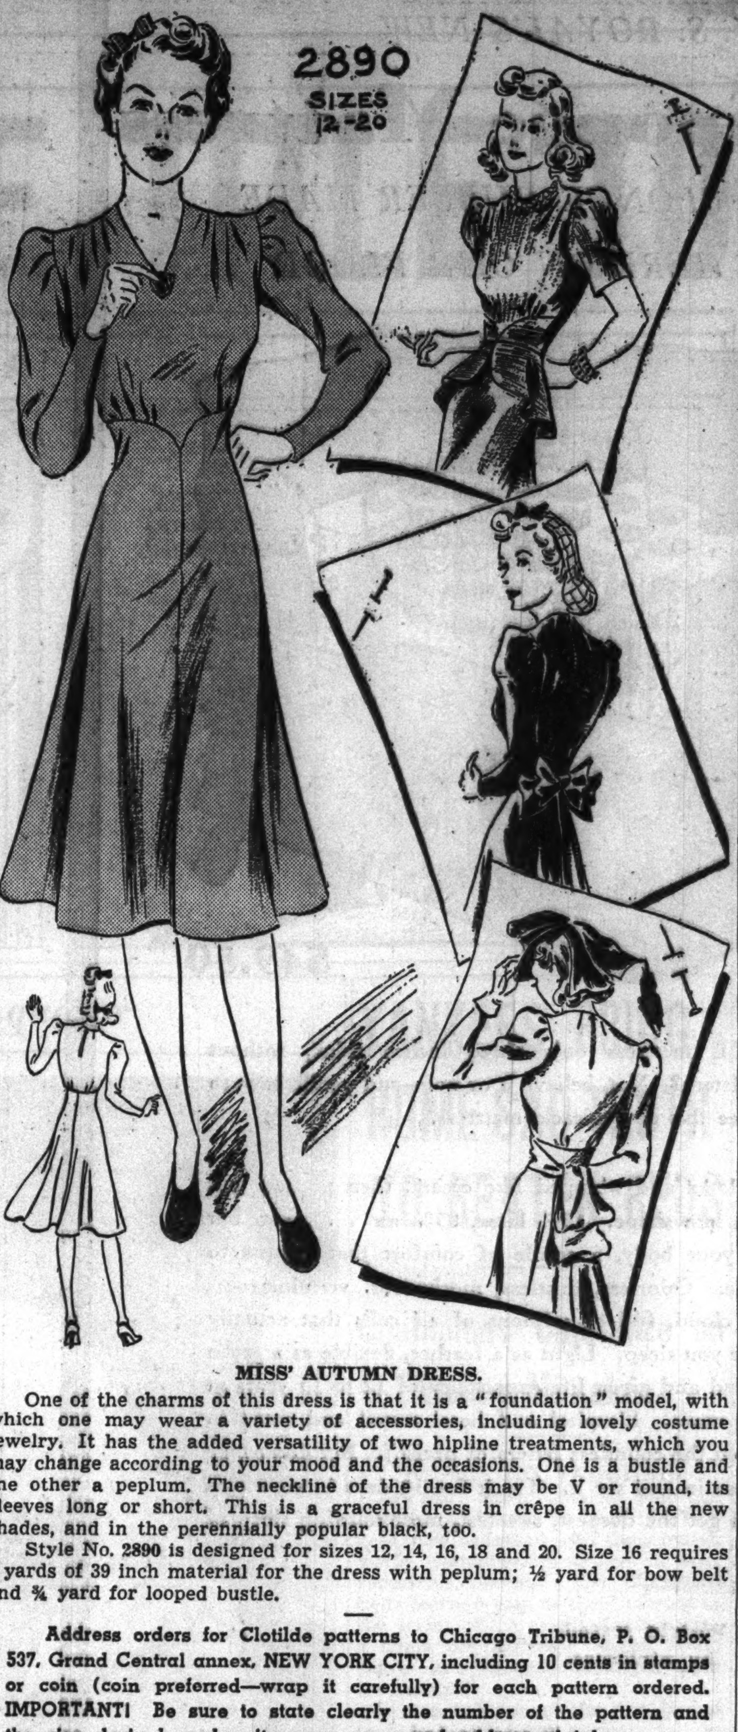
'Basic' Dress for Autumn



MISS' AUTUMN DRESS.

One of the charms of this dress is that it is a "foundation" model, with which one may wear a variety of accessories, including lovely costume jewelry. It has the added versatility of two hipline treatments, which you may change according to your mood and the occasions. One is a bustle and the other a peplum. The neckline of the dress may be V or round, its sleeves long or short. This is a graceful dress in crêpe in all the new shades, and in the perennially popular black, too.

Style No. 2890 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material for the dress with peplum; ½ yard for bow belt and ¾ yard for looped bustle.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Gold Accents Add Glamor to Day Costumes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The last smart finish to any 1939 day costume: garnish with gold! Gold accents snapped, clipped, or pinned strategically right where they'll catch the eye. Epaulets are so new they make you stop instantly to wonder if this is or was the way the original uniform epaulets were fastened to the shoulder lines of so many different outfits.

Anyway we've got them in bright, blazing gold metal costume jewelry, ready for shoulder wear on any dress or suit jacket. Some are expensive, most are medium in price, but all have that inimitable swank found only on such dress parade regalia. Some are set with simulated rubies, emeralds, and a pair set with huge topaz sets is just about the last word in golden glory. However, if you want to spend a little more money, the pair of dusky old gold affairs, aglitter with a long gold fringe, is the find of the collections.

These epaulets are transferable so they can brighten up any number of dresses or suits in the wardrobe. Imaginative shoppers can easily use them for other adornment, separated.

Big pins are plentiful now, but they're going fast. These new arrivals are good copies of the out-size circles the Scots wear clamped to their shoulders in the folds of their tartans. Gold and dull silver filigree are stunning. The bejeweled ideas for velvets and dress parade boast multicolored simulated precious stones.

A double gold tassel clip is another accent for a deep V neckline with some bracelets to match. Topaz and gold metal jewelry is particularly good this fall and marvelously effective with all the high fashion browns and dark bronze greens. Gold bead jewelry similar to the popular pearl bead pieces should satisfy a lot of careful shoppers, for such tawny gold stuff always is in good taste and an extremely fine contrast with all sort of clothes.

Much finer gold bead stuff is the long necklaces and multistrand bracelets of beads the size of seed pearls. All this is new and different, not quite so barbaric as the chunky, bulbous stuff that is somewhat trying unless you delight in the exotic!

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

In the very nature of things, the declarer usually has more ammunition than is available to the defense. The mere fact that he has bought the contract makes this probable. [Obviously, I am not referring to the hands in which the declarer has been doubled and is about to be severely trounced for overbidding.]

The very fact that the defenders' artillery is inferior is all the more reason for their using to the best advantage such weapons as they have. They cannot afford to sacrifice a king, as East did in the following hand:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ Q 10 6 3 2
♥ 7 5 4
♦ Q 10 4
♣ Q 6

WEST
♥ K J 6
♦ J 8 6 3 2
♣ 7 3 2

EAST
♠ K J 9
♥ 10 8 3 2
♦ K 7 5
♣ A 10 5

SOUTH
♥ A Q 9
♦ A 9
♣ K J 9 8 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the three of diamonds, dummy played low, and East [whose bridge training had gone no farther than to "play third hand high" and "never to finesse against his partner"] docilely put up the king. Declarer smothered this with the ace and, deciding that his own club suit with the queen in dummy offered a better chance for establishment than the spade suit, led low to the club queen. East won with the ace and made the correct shift to a low heart. Declarer tried the queen finesse but it lost to the king and West returned the heart jack. Declarer felt that he might have need for his third heart at a later stage, hence won this trick with the ace and then laid down the king and jack of clubs, praying that the ten would drop. It did, and now he was home. After cashing his two remaining club tricks he led the diamond nine to the ten and cashed the diamond queen. On the fourth round of clubs, East let go the spade nine and on the fifth, the heart eight. West had discarded two diamonds, so now there was no danger in leading dummy's remaining heart. East won with the ten and his spade jack return was allowed to ride to the queen. In all, declarer took two spade tricks, one heart, three diamonds, and four clubs, thereby making his contract with an overtrick.

There would have been a far different result if East had used his head to better advantage at the very first trick. Considering the bidding [particularly South's jump from one spade to two no trump], the diamond ace, at least, was virtually marked in declarer's hand, this probability being strongly bolstered by the fact that South's club suit lacked the ace, queen, and ten, and that his spade holding could not be impressive. Once East realized that the diamond king almost certainly would be slaughtered by the ace, it would have required no more than elementary logic to refuse to put up the king. What matter if declarer could win the first diamond trick with a low card? He still would be unable to capture the diamond king, and although he undoubtedly would make two diamond tricks, he would not make three. The holdup of the diamond king would have created a two trick difference and defeated the contract. Declarer would have won with the nine spot, but not only would he have been unable to win a third diamond trick, but the throw-in play which eventually developed against East never would have come off.

EIGHT BIG TEN TEAMS TO RISK TITLE CHANCES

Michigan Has Tough Foe in Iowa.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Western conference race, inaugurated last week by Iowa's spectacular victory over Indiana, gains momentum Saturday with a schedule of four games. In addition Illinois, which opens its conference season against Indiana Oct. 21, meets Southern California in Los Angeles, and Chicago, with only three Big Ten games on its schedule, entertains Harvard this week on the Midway.

Since defeat presumably spurs a team to greater effort, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Northwestern should come up with determined spirit and pledged to eliminate mistakes which contributed to their woes last Saturday.

Michigan Will Get a Battle.

The mighty men of Michigan, who missed winning the Big Ten title last year by one point when they suffered their only 1938 defeat at Minneapolis, 7 to 6, also may give serious thought to this week's opponent, Iowa, now possessor of two victories. This record already equals Iowa's achievements in 1937 and 1938 when the Hawkeyes defeated Bradley and Chicago, tied Purdue, and lost 13 games. Coach Fritz Crisler of Michigan told us shortly after practice started this fall that he anticipated a difficult game with Iowa.

"Almost invariably the hardest games to win are those the public believes you'll have no difficulty winning," Crisler said. "That opinion affects the players, and while they may not be over confident they are not prepared mentally to give their best efforts."

Iowa May Prove Difficult.

Iowa actually has nothing to lose. A month ago the Hawkeyes' most ardent supporters wouldn't have given them a chance against the Wolverines. Now, with the enthusiasm inspired by victory and the stimulus of new coaches and a new offensive system, Iowa may be difficult to whip. It will depend on whether the Hawkeye line can stop Michigan's forwards. It also should be noted that Michigan had no let-down last year in eight games.

Minnesota's defeat by Nebraska is bad luck for Purdue if the Boilermakers had an idea they could handle the burly Gophers as did the Cornhuskers. This doesn't mean, however, that Minnesota should be conceded victory. It does mean that the Gophers will be keyed to greater effort. If Purdue can start its veteran backs, Lou Brock and Jack Brown, the Boilermakers will have a psychological advantage, for the 3 to 0 defeat by Notre Dame still is attributed in Lafayette to injuries suffered by these key men.

Purdue's speed is an important factor, but it must be backed by a rugged defense. Nebraska had to stop the Gophers repeatedly to protect its touchdown.

Ohio a Northwestern Jinx.

What Northwestern is able to accomplish at Ohio State depends on progress in blocking lessons this week. While the Buckeyes were not particularly impressive in beating Missouri, overpowering the Tigers in the second half by superior replacements, Ohio State is Northwestern's jinx. Northwestern has scored only one victory over the Buckeyes during Lynn Waldorf's coaching régime, whipping Ohio State, 14 to 13, in 1936, the year the Wildcats won the Big Ten title. Last year the rivals battled to a scoreless tie in Dyche stadium.

When Indiana meets Wisconsin Saturday the loser is almost certain to have a poor record for the campaign. The Hoosiers have been tied and beaten. The Badgers defeated Marquette and lost to Texas.

Illinois seems headed for trouble in Los Angeles, for the Trojans started rolling last Saturday when they trounced Washington State, 27 to 0. And Chicago, beaten by Beloit and a 12 to 2 victor over Wabash, can't entertain serious hope of whipping Harvard. Last year the Crimson ran over the Maroons, 47 to 13.

The Cold Facts.

If you must know the facts, the Wake's record on football forecasts last week-end was as follows: 44 winners, 18 losers, and one tie. The season's total is 87 winners, 34 losers, and 6 ties for a percentage of .719. Bernie Bierman, Bo McMillin, Harry Stuhldreher, and Lynn Waldorf, all alumni of the All-Star coaching staff, were the principal offenders Saturday.

The Old Maid of the family,

But now they count upon this girl

BEARS' DISPLAY OF POWER DRAWS CLARK'S PRAISE

Best Team Since '33, Says Cleveland Coach.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

They're setting up Bear traps along the championship trail in the National Football league again. Word went out from Cleveland Sunday to call up the hounds and take down the muskets. The burly Chicagoans have returned to might and are on the prowl.

Even such important items as the fact that Detroit as yet is unbeaten and the Bears still have seven games to play did not alter the case in the opinion of those who saw the Chicagoans triumph, 35 to 21. The verdict was unanimous. The Bears are the team to beat for the championship.

Dutch Clark, who has seen the Bears at their best and at their worst, lo, these many years, said he believed this year's aggregation is the finest Coach George Halas has assembled since 1933. Clark praised the Bears for their excellent line play, their superb generalship, and for the versatility of their attack He had special praise for their sportsmanship.

They're Sportsmen, Too.

"It was one of the cleanest games I have ever seen in the National league. And the absence of rough stuff was reflected in the precision and success of the Bears' attack," Clark said. "Football of that type will carry them through. Cleveland is not in the championship class, but we have a pretty fair outfit and only a great team can spot us 14 points, give us all the breaks, and then trim us 35 to 21."

The most encouraging aspect of the Cleveland conquest was the play of the reserves. Chuck Chesney, former De Paul center; Al Forte, Montana State tackle; Dick Bassi, Santa Clara guard, and Milt Trost, veteran tackle, were exceptionally impressive. Backing up the regulars, who are regarded as forming the outstanding line in the league, these forwards give the Bears the relief imperative to championship football.

Bears, Cardinals Play Sunday.

Ernie Nevers' Cardinals are next on the Bears' visiting list. They bring professional football back to Wrigley field Sunday afternoon. Despite the Cardinals' lowly position in the standings, the Bears can not afford to take Nevers' club lightly. The Cardinals have had numerous opportunities in each of their four defeats. It is not reasonable to believe that they can go through an entire season passing up chances to score. There also is the fact that in five games, four of which were against Green Bay and the Lions, two of the outstanding favorites in

Samuel E. Hoyt, A. A. U. President, Dies of Injuries

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—Samuel E. Hoyt Sr. of New Haven, Conn., national president of the Amateur Athletic Union, died tonight of injuries received in a motor car crash Sunday. Hoyt died at 9:20 p. m. [eastern standard time] in Flushing hospital. He was 64 years old.

Hoyt and his wife were driving to visit one of their three sons, Samuel Jr., at Huntington, N. Y., when their car collided with one driven by Gotthilf Blume, 59, at Whitestone, near the New York World's Fair.

Hoyt was prominent in Connecticut as a lawyer, legislator, and follower of amateur athletics. All three of his sons were members of college swimming teams—Samuel E. Hoyt Jr., and Spencer Hoyt at Yale, and Alvord Hoyt at Lehigh.

A Republican, he served as city court judge and member of the state general assembly, was later appointed public defender in the Superior court and in 1927 began his first term as state's attorney.

Cubs' Conqueror

Thornton Lee, White Sox southpaw, who held the Cubs to four hits, all singles, three of which came in the first inning, as the Sox evened the city series in Comiskey park last night with a 6 to 1 triumph. They decide the championship tonight.

Scrapiron Young Is Handy Man with Irish Background

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Notre Dame athletic records are studded with such classic nicknames as Sleepy, Dope, Hunk, Rip, Dog, and Chilly, but the most enduring of them all is Scrap, for it's still in constant daily use on the Irish campus. As a matter of fact, there are few except the regulars who know that its owner's correct name is Eugene Young. All, of course, know that Scrap is the Notre Dame athletic trainer and one of the most popular and efficient members of the Irish staff.

Eugene Young.

Most of these titles were given by teammates and fellow students. Scrap has the distinction of having been dubbed by the late Knute Rockne. The impromptu knighting occurred during a Notre Dame track workout, according to Young. Rockne, as track coach, wasn't quite satisfied with one of his team's workouts, accusing them of being sluggish. A tardy arrival was a sophomore half miler, who was soon to become known as the former Eugene Young.

Scrapiron Becomes Scrap.

Rockne chided the rest of the squad by giving it a record of Master Young's doings of the preceding few hours. He pointed out that Gene had set up the bleachers, marked the lines for spring football practice, done a bit of painting in the gym, and then dashed over to the track to do his daily stint there.

"We'll have to give this fellow another name," he said. "He never lets down. Must be made of metal. Let's call him Scrapiron."

And the name has stuck, although it generally is abbreviated to Scrap. He has been a familiar figure in Notre Dame dressing rooms and on benches since 1930, when he took over the training job as a full time duty. And he became involved in reports of a game two years ago, when the Irish met the Army, causing the assessment of a penalty against Notre Dame by his enthusiasm. He rushed out onto the field to aid a supposedly injured player.

Injury Changes Career.

Scrap arrived at Notre Dame in 1923 from Dover, O., High school, where he had played guard in football, pitched in baseball, and did guard duty in basketball. Football was his main objective in college, but a broken left leg in spring practice, his freshman year, and his lack of weight [he scaled only 145 pounds] ended all progress in that direction. He went on to prove his versatility by earning a track letter in each of his three years of competition and collecting three more as a member of the cross-country teams of his time.

Young was earning his way through school by working at a dozen different tasks, but Rockne noticed that he showed a particular knack as a student trainer. He forthwith sent Young to summer school for three years in Chicago, where Scrapiron

YANKEES BRING HOME SAD TRUTH TO BEATEN REDS

Champions Capitalize on Enemy Mistakes.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

You can't make mistakes, even one mistake, and hope to beat the Yankees, now bedecked with their fourth world championship crown in four successive seasons. The Cincinnati Reds learned this to their sorrow in the series which closed Sunday with a game the National league would dearly love to have expunged from the records.

It was bad enough for the league to have its pennant winners fall in four straight games for the second year in a row. It was doubly bad for the league to see its champions, with a one game victory almost in their possession, take a dive that undoubtedly established a new high in world series history.

It wasn't funny, not even for the Yankees. It was plain tragedy on the diamond. The Reds had worried for so many days about the Yankee juggernaut that they couldn't go any farther.

Reds' Mistakes Costly.

The Reds made mistakes here and there through the series and the perfect Yanks overlooked nothing. There was that throw to the wrong base in the first game, giving the American leaguer's their first run off Paul Derringer. There was the loss by Ival Goodman of the Charley Keller fly ball which went for a triple and led to the Yanks' winning run off Derringer in the ninth. Goodman hesitated going after the ball, thinking it was going to drop in the seats. Center Fielder Harry Craft was standing so close he could have made the catch. He acted as if he was afraid of colliding with Goodman.

In the second game Shortstop Billy Myers, with a chance to cut off a run at the plate, fumbled momentarily and had to throw to first. The Yanks then powdered Bucky Walters for two more runs before concluding the inning. In the third battle it was just pitching mistakes. Gene Thompson was wild, the Yanks picked out the cripples and gave such a home run demonstration that they made the distant walls look close. And then there was that infield collapse in the ninth and tenth innings of the fourth game.

Yankees Cut Off Hits.

Double plays alone give an answer to the infielding. The Yankees' inner defense turned in six double plays. The Reds produced one. Frankie Crossetti and Joe Gordon cut off any number of possible base hits. The Reds did nothing of this kind around second base.

There was that same marked difference in hitting. In total hits the Reds matched the Yanks with 27, but there was the matter of distance. The Yanks scored 20 runs on their hits, seven of which were homers, four two baggers, and one a triple. The Reds didn't record even one extra base hit until the final game. One of their outfielders—Harry Craft—made one scratch single and fanned six times. Another outfielder, Wally Berger, was blanked in four games. Second Baseman Linus Frey's bat was similarly silenced. Not one Yankee, pitchers excepted, was kept out of the hit column.

Lombardi Helpless.

It will take all winter for the experts to complete their second guessing on the series strategy of Bill McKechnie, boss of the Reds. The deacon was asked after he had lost the second game if he had given any thought to changes which might improve the Reds' hitting. He admitted he might make some alterations for the third game, but 10 minutes later declared he would stick to his original lineup.

Some of the experts thought that even if McKechnie was determined to go down the line with the helpless Berger and Craft he should, at least, have benched Ernie Lombardi, the big catcher whose bat was active early in the season, but melted down to nothing and remained that way through the series. The big cumbersome Lombardi stuck to the finish, a finish which pictured him as a helpless fellow, slumped on the ground, a loose baseball nearby and the clatter of Yankee hooves beating in his ears.

THORNTON LEE YIELDS 4 HITS; ROOT, DEAN FAIL

Dizzy Surrenders 3 Runs in Eighth.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Thornton [Lefty] Lee last night turned in the best pitching performance of the city series as he and eight White Sox associates turned back the Cubs, 6 to 1, before 26,960 in Comiskey park to even the series at three games apiece. The deciding game will be played on the same field tonight, with two old American league rivals, Ted Lyons and Earl Whitehill fighting it out.

The Sox, defending their city championship won in 1937, thus fought back on even terms after being down, three games to one, last night's triumph being their second in succession.

Lee surrendered only four hits, three off Eric McNair's glove in the first inning when the Cubs scored their lone run. The other one was a high bouncer to McNair in the third. After Augie Galan walked with one out in the third, not a Cub reached first base.

Second Defeat for Root.

The Sox's tying run in the fourth was unearned, but one they made in the fifth was sound, as was their third one in the sixth. Thus untainted victory was assured, so there's no especial need to second guess the fuzzy experience of Dizzy Dean in the eighth, during which the Sox added three superfluous runs. Charley Root, who was nicked for half of the Sox's run total, was the losing pitcher, his second setback of the series.

The game turned out to be another testimonial to the popularity of night baseball in Chicago. The two night games in the city series, the eighth and ninth in Comiskey park since Aug. 14, attracted 68,727. One afternoon game in Comiskey park and three afternoon games in Wrigley field, including a Sunday under perfect weather conditions, drew 45,310. Last night's turnout developed despite a heavy rain throughout the afternoon.

McNair Has a Busy Inning.

The Cubs gave McNair a lively jostling after two were out in the first inning and derived a run from Eric's distress. After Hack had flied to Walker and Herman had lined to Bejma, Galan caromed a single off McNair's glove and Leiber beat out a slow roller. After Nicholson walked, loading the bases, a slow roller by G. Russell evaded McNair and bounced off the bag at third toward left for a single. Galan scored on the hit to McNair, but when Leiber tried to follow Augie across the plate he was out, Appling to Tresh.

Kreevich made a bid for a tie after two were out in the Sox first inning when he tripled to the right end of the left field scoreboard. The inning ended on Appling's liner to Herman.

The Sox Start Coming.

The Sox tied the score on an unearned run in the fourth inning. Kreevich was safe after G. Russell dropped Root's throw. Mike went to second while Hack was throwing out Appling, after which McNair flied to Leiber, Walker's pop fly twisted away from Mattick for a single, Kreevich scoring. Walker became confused after Galan had recovered the ball and tried to run to second. He was tossed out, Galan to Herman.

After Lee had retired Root, Hack and Herman in order in the first half of the fifth, the Sox took the lead in their half. Rosenthal lined a single to right and moved up on Tresh's sacrifice. Lee was called out on strikes, but Bejma rammed a single through Hack, Rosenthal scoring. Kuhel popped to Hack.

The Sox rang up their third run in the sixth. Kreevich was called out

LANDER DEFEATS LANCASTER IN TEN ROUND BOUT

Lancaster, making his Chicago debut, fought Eddie to a standstill in the first two rounds. Thereafter Lander solved his rugged foe's style and won each of the remaining rounds. A series of rights closed Lancaster's left eye in the fifth. In the ninth cuts were opened on both Lancaster's eyes.

Three bouts of eight rounds will feature the show in Marigold Gardens next Monday. Two of these will bring together Verle Davis, Kankakee welterweight, and Tommy Pallatin of South Bend, and Young [Kid] McCoy, Detroit junior lightweight, and Earl Gibbs.

Ralph [Ruffy] Silverstein, former Big Ten heavyweight wrestling champion, who was married to Miss Betty Gold, 20 years old, of 2707 Division street, on Sunday, yesterday was deposed as heavyweight titleholder of Illinois by the state athletic commission. Silverstein, Jewish Peoples' institute athletic instructor, won the honor by scoring a decision over Jim McMillen in Chicago Stadium two years ago.

In refusing to recognize Ruffy's title any longer, Commissioner James R. Fitzpatrick said: "Inasmuch as we no longer recognize wrestling as a competitive sport it is inconsistent on our part to give title recognition to any wrestler." F. M. acquired a physio-therapist's license. When he was graduated in 1927, he went up to Racine, Wis., where St. Catherine's new high school needed a football coach and athletic director.

Comes Home in 1930.

In 1930, he returned to Notre Dame as full time trainer, his first patients including among others Frank Carideo, Marchy Schwartz, and Marty Brill. Since that time he has attended to treatment of all athletic hurts, and in addition attends to any injuries or ailments incurred by every member of the Notre Dame student body of 3,200. Charley horses, foot bruises, and sprains are the common complaints in football, while shin splints and fallen arches head the list in basketball.

Young's psychological value in the Notre Dame system is well recognized, one of his talents being the ability to overcome delusions of pain suffered by many of his charges. His nickname strengthens the suspicion that Scrap might be just a rough, tough gent, but it so happens that he was graduated cum laude with a law degree and is permitted to practice in four states—Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, and Illinois. As a senior he won the Byron V. Kanaley award as the athlete with the highest scholastic average. In so doing, he beat out his roommate, Joe Boland, present Irish line coach, who had won the prize the preceding two years. At 36, Scrap still is in search of degrees, for his present program calls for enrollment at Tulane's summer school next year, with a view of acquiring an M.D.

Dean's first act, after taking over at the start of the eighth, was to walk Bejma. Kuhel bunted and when Dean made a bad throw to second Bejma and Kuhel were safe on Diz's error. The runners advanced on Kreevich's sacrifice, then Appling was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. McNair dumped a single in front of Leiber, scoring Bejma and Kuhel. Walker dropped a single in front of Nicholson, Appling scoring. Rosenthal popped to Hack and Tresh forced Walker.

NINE CUBS SIGN FOR 1940 SEASON (BUT NOT GABBY)

Nine Chicago Cubs have signed their contracts for 1940, club officials said yesterday, but Manager Gabby Hartnett's name is not included in the list. Hartnett's contract does not expire until Jan. 1, 1940. It was indicated the Cubs' manager would confer with Owner-President P. K. Wrigley "some time this fall" regarding his 1940 status.

A break here or one there in Sunday's game at Milwaukee would have given Nevers and his men a split in their series with Green Bay. On Andy Uram's 95 yard run off tackle, for instance, Frank Patrick, who played the outstanding game of his two year professional career, hit the former Gopher squarely and had him firmly in his grasp. Other backs, believing such a perfect tackle final, eased up. Patrick relaxed his shoulder and Uram leaped up to continue on down the field.

Pirates Extend Giants.

New York's Giants, the defending champions, had trouble with the Pittsburgh Pirates, who were making their first start under their new head coach, Walt Kiesling. It took two passes from Ed Danowski to Ward Cuff and a slight mix up on the time at the end of the game to conquer the Pirates. It was the Pirates' fourth defeat this season and their tenth consecutive loss over two years.

Pittsburgh goes to Washington Sunday to meet the Redskins in the first of their two game series, which winds up in Pittsburgh the following week. The Redskins unleashed a surprising amount of scoring power in subduing Brooklyn, 41 to 13. It was all the more remarkable because of the absence of Sammy Baugh, who was out with an injury.

Crippled Giants Play Eagles.

Philadelphia takes its mighty atom, Davey O'Brien, to the Polo Grounds Sunday to open the Giants' home season and although the Eagles have been able to score only three points in three games, they have not been a soft touch for eastern division rivals.

The Giants' case will not be helped any by the absence of Ken Strong and Nello Falaschi, who are not expected to be sufficiently recovered from injuries suffered at Washington two weeks ago to take part in the contest.

BEARS LEAD IN GAINS

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—National Football league statistics today revealed the Chicago Bears are setting the offensive pace with one of the most powerful attacks in professional history.

In four games the Bears have piled up 1,433 yards, an average of 358 per game, and have scored 113 points, an average of 28 per game.

In passing efficiency the Cleveland Rams, Washington Redskins, and the Bears are ahead of the 1938 record of 48 per cent, set by the champion New York Giants. Cleveland has 55 completions in 101 attempts for 54 per cent, Washington 56 per cent, and the Bears 50 per cent.

The Detroit Lions, western division leaders, and the Giants, tied with Washington for the eastern lead, top defensive records. The Lions have held their rivals to 467 yards in three games, while the Giants have surrendered only 10 points in the same number of contests.

RIGGS CAPTURES PACIFIC COAST SINGLES TITLE

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 9 (AP).—Robert Riggs of Chicago, National tennis champion, today won the Pacific coast men's singles title by defeating Frank Kovacs, Oakland, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5.

In the final set Kovacs had a five to two game lead, then Riggs softened his game and Kovacs was helpless as Riggs ran off five games in a row.

Sarah P. Fabyan of Boston defeated Virginia Wolfenden of San Francisco, 6-4, 6-1, to win the women's championship.

MISTER, CAN YOU SPARE MAROONS ONE FULL BACK?

Search for methods of offsetting the loss of Full Back Bob Howard was scheduled to occupy Chicago the next few days for the game with Harvard Saturday. Primary stress will be placed on grooming one of five inexperienced candidates for the veteran Californian's duties. Secondary effort will consist of expanding the effectiveness of the Maroon's aerial game by drilling linemen in protecting for Passer Lou Letts.

Howard, who received a shoulder injury in last week's 12 to 2 defeat of Wabash college, is out for at least a week, it was indicated yesterday. His addition to the sick list, which already included regular Tackle Dave Widemann, leaves Chicago desperately short of offensive power.

The five candidates for the full back post are Wallace Ottomeyer, Bill Kimball, and Ted Howe, minor letter winners, and two sophomores, Bill Gibler and Bill Hector, a 183 pound player.

DEFEAT SHOCKS N. U., BUT THERE'S NO TIME FOR GRIEF

Shaken mentally more than physically, Northwestern's football team began the process of rehabilitation yesterday in preparation for Saturday's Big Ten opener against Ohio State in Columbus.

The Wildcats came out of the Oklahoma game in good physical shape. They expect to be strengthened Saturday by the return of Ike Kepford, sophomore right half back, who was held out of the opener because of a hip injury. Kepford originally was slated to start against the Sooners.

Coach Lynn Waldorf made no attempt to conceal his disappointment over the 23 to 0 defeat. While not detracting from the fact that the Sooners presented an aggressive powerful eleven, he charged weak blocking, a so-so defense and failure of the backs to drive were major reasons for the defeat.

The Purple derived some solace from the ball carrying of Paul Soper and Bill DeCorrevant who got loose on several jaunts which might have resulted in touchdowns with a bit more help from their teammates. Both averaged better than 5½ yards per try. DeCorrevant, making his debut in college football, gained thirty-three yards in six attempts while Soper gained twenty-one yards in four thrusts.

BUCKEYES PRAISED.

Columbus, O., Oct. 9 [Special].—The Ohio State football team which defeated Missouri Saturday, 19 to 0, today went through a long signal drill on offense to be used against Northwestern in the Big Ten opener here next Saturday.

Coach Francis Schmidt was pleased with the sophomore material which functioned well throughout their initial test.

The play of Daniell, Piccinini, Thom, and Stevenson at the tackles, Graf and Kinkade in the back field and Anderson at end, all sophomores, received earned praise from the staff.

IRISH FACE S. M. U.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 9 [Special.]—A rejuvenated Southern Methodist team, reminiscent of the 1930 S. M. U. eleven which held Notre Dame's national champions to a 20 to 14 victory, will invade South Bend this week to test the Irish.

Coach Elmer Layden, after mentioning the more puzzling aspects of the Notre Dame team, had all hands out for a light drill in which the mistakes of Saturday's 17 to 14 victory over Georgia Tech were covered. There were no serious injuries in the Tech game.

RAIN HITS GOPHERS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 8 [Special].—Rain helped heighten the gloom today as Minnesota started preparations for Purdue and its first Big Ten game here Saturday. The squad was taken into the fieldhouse for a long drill after viewing movies of the Nebraska setback.

Illinois Moves Westward for U. S. C. Contest

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 9 [Special].—Tired from a week of strenuous activity following a scoreless tie with Bradley college in the season's opening game the Illinois football team today welcomed a two day rest en route to meet the University of Southern California Saturday in the Los Angeles coliseum.

The Illinois football party numbering 45 includes 35 players, seven staff members, and three newspaper men. Coach Bob Zuppke is accompanied by Line Coach Justa Lindgren, now in his 37th season at Illinois, Back-Field Coach Doug Mills, Business Manager C. E. Bowen, Student Manager Paul Slater, Team Physician Dr. L. M. T. Stilwell, Trainer Crane Hornor and Fred Stipes, equipment custodian.

The team will arrive in Tucson, Ariz. Wednesday morning for two days of practice at the University of Arizona before proceeding to Los Angeles Friday morning.

The team left Champaign today to the accompaniment of the cheers of 3,000 students who gathered at the station at 6:30 a. m. Coach Zuppke characterized this demonstration as the finest spirit he had seen at Illinois in many years.

"We're as hard as nails but slow as snails," Zuppke said. "The team is tough. It proved it last week in the most strenuous practice sessions we've had in years. Unfortunately we are shy on fast backs."

Purdue Expects Minnesota to Be in an Ugly Mood

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 9 [Special].—"Minnesota's loss to Nebraska Saturday makes our assignment against the Gophers this week just that much more difficult," Coach Mel Elward said today as Purdue continued preparations for its Big Ten opener with the defending champions in Minneapolis Saturday.

The squad seemed fully aware of the fact that the Gophers, who were responsible for Purdue's only defeat last season, will be in a fighting mood and settled down grimly to an intensive drill on defense.

The continued improvement of Lou Brock's ankle led to the hope that Brock and Jack Brown, for the first time this season, will be able to team at the half backs, alternating with Mike Byelene and John Galvin,

Two Michigan Stars May Not Oppose Iowa

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 9 [Special].—Michigan coaches feared today that Saturday's victory over Michigan State may prove to be a costly one as team doctors held both Paul Kromer, star left half back, and John Nicholson, regular end, in the hospital for observation. They suffered injuries which will probably keep them out of this week's Iowa game. Kromer twisted his knee and Nicholson pulled a muscle when he collided with Bill Kenedy, State half back, in the last quarter.

HOOSIERS WORK ON DEFENSE.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 9 [Special].—Indiana's anti-aircraft department which Iowa's air raiders punctured for three touchdowns as they defeated the Hoosiers last week-end, received attention in today's drill for next Saturday's game at Wisconsin.

Expressing disappointment in the Hoosiers' defensive work, blocking and running plays, Coach Bo McMillin ordered a concentration on these points this week.

BOAT CLUB ASKS FOR WIDER SPAN IN LAGOON BRIDGE

The Lincoln Park Boat club yesterday petitioned the Chicago park district to revise plans for the new Fullerton bridge over the lagoon in Lincoln Park to preserve the lagoon for crew racing.

Lynn G. Brenne, club director, in his petition, said a 150 foot span or three spans of 50 feet are necessary at Fullerton avenue for crew racing, which through the efforts of the club has gained tremendous popularity among high schools in Chicago in the last two years. The present span of 100 feet is inadequate, Brenne said.

Plans for the new bridge call for a span of 66 feet, which would permit only one crew to row under at a time, precluding crew racing in Chicago. The Lincoln park lagoon is the only water available for racing in Chicago, Breene said.

The petition also suggested that the park commissioners consider plans to widen that portion of the lagoon north of the Fullerton bridge to the official racing width of 150 feet.

"Because of the already large investment in the lagoon, the slight additional expenditure required to make the lagoon one of the nation's finest rowing courses would be amply justified," the petition read.

A committee from the Lincoln Park Boat club will meet with the commissioners today to discuss the matter.

"THE BRIDGE PLAYERS" at GREAT NORTHERN HOTEL

VOTE MEISTER BRÄU BEST—28 to 4

WHEN members of "The Bridge Players" gathered for an evening of play at their club rooms in the Great Northern Hotel, they were asked to taste Meister Bräu Beer, compare it with other brands of bottled beer, and vote the results of their comparison by secret ballot. These past masters at the art of remembering, which is vital in the game of bridge, voted Meister Bräu the best of bottled beers by the landslide majority of 7 to 1.

To learn what brand of bottled beer leads in sales, Chicago newspapers secured figures from leading beer retailers. These reports showed Meister Bräu away out in front by from 2 to 1 to 10 to 1. The Reuben H. Donnelley Corporation was asked to check on this amazing popularity and determine the reason for it, by holding taste-and-compare tests where groups of men and women gather.

These tests show that the old-time, all-grain flavor of Meister Bräu gives it this astonishing preference both with those who remember back to the old days and with those who appreciate top quality.

OTTOMAN WINS FEATURE SPRINT AT SPORTSMAN'S

Takes Lead on Last Turn and Pulls Away.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Ottoman, a consistent 6 year old mare which had been out of the money only once in her last seven starts, won the Chicago Heights purse yesterday at Sportsman's Park. Although she got the worst of the luck on the sharp turns, she reached the finish a length ahead of Floragina, while Joyride was getting in third.

Only five went to the post in this five furling dash, Ottoman being the 8 to 5 favorite and Joyride the 2 to 1 second choice. It was Floragina, however, that gave Ottoman's backers their greatest worry. This filly took the lead at the start and held it down the back stretch.

Early Bid Fails.

Going into the far turn, Ottoman tried to get to the front along the rail, but was cut off. Jockey Herb Kees was forced to pull up and take her to the outside on the bend. She met the situation with fine speed going around Floragina and taking the lead when straightened out in the stretch. Then she drew clear handily.

Though rain had been falling for over an hour, the track was still in good condition. The going suited Ottoman perfectly, for she ran the five furlongs in 1:01 3-5. She paid $5.20, $3.20, and $2.40.

Miss Oak Is a Flop.

Hard luck hit the form players in the opening event when Miss Oak, the 2 to 1 favorite, decided to watch the race from a secluded spot over in the chute. As the horses got the starting bell she wheeled, throwing Jockey Al Richard. The boy remounted and sat there with an attendant holding Miss Oak's bridle while the other horses went round and round and round, getting themselves all tired out.

Miss Oak found it nice and quiet over there in the chute. When all the other horses had finished their work she came serenly back to the judges stand to be unsaddled, entirely undisturbed by the black looks of those who had bet on her. The stewards weren't disposed to let her off easy, however. They promptly handed down a ruling that her entry would be rejected in the future until she had satisfied all officials that she would be a good girl and run for the ladies and gentlemen.

Ultidue Comes Through.

Despite their disastrous experience with Miss Oak, the form players established Ultidue as an even stronger favorite in the second race. She delivered the goods, however, leading all the way and getting in more than a length ahead of Fanfern. She was backed so heavily that she returned $3.40, $2.60, and $2.40. A daily double pay off of $52.20 went to those who joined Ultidue with Barker, which had won the first race at better than 14 to 1 odds.

Endy, a 2 year old colt owned by S. G. Baker, beat a group of fairly good juveniles in the Crete purse, a five furlong sprint. After Town Silver had led nearly all the way, Endy got through several rivals on the last turn, chased the pace setter down the stretch, and caught her in the last 50 yards. Then he drew out to win by more than a length.

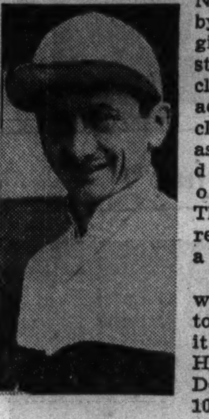
MEADE'S MOUNTS CAPTURE FOUR IN ROW AT JAMAICA

Takes Feature Race with Early Delivery.

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—Don Meade, the veteran jockey who heads the National ranking by a wide margin, won four straight races, including the $2,500 added Belgrade claiming stakes, as Jamaica's 12 day meeting opened today. The metropolitan record is five in a row.



Don Meade.

The Belgrade was his third victory and he took it easily with W. H. Berri's Early Delivery, the 9 to 10 favorite. His other winners were Inovia, Misrule, and Billy Van Nuys. He finished second on one other mount and was unplaced twice.

Early Delivery broke well and Meade urged him to the front, where he never was threatened, winning by two lengths. The Paragon stable's Deep End, in closest pursuit most of the way, weakened in the stretch and Mrs. Clara Lyon's John's Heir came up to take second place by a head. Early Delivery ran the six furlongs in 1:12 flat to earn a purse of $2,395.

SAVAGE BEAUTY WINS.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—After eight failures, W. L. Brann's Savage Beauty finally won her first race of the year when Jockey Nick Wall brought her home first in the $1,200 Tuscarora purse at Laurel. The Challenger 2d mare set her own pace to finish three lengths ahead of Mrs. Louise Viau's Red Flag, with H. Friedberg's Montsin third.

Savage Beauty ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1:45 1-5 and paid $8.90 for $2.

The six furlong co-feature, the Uniontown handicap, went to Mrs. Ethel Mars' Dinner Date in 1:13.

KIDNAPER IS HELD

New York, Oct. 9 [Special].—Accused of attempting to extort $4,000 from Don Meade, the jocky, Carlo Zarcone, 27 years old, of Brooklyn, was held in $2,500 bail for the grand jury today after he had waived examination at his arraignment in the Queens Felony court.

Zarcone, according to the charge, forced Meade into an automobile in Jamaica, Queens, at gun point on Thursday and told him that he would harm Meade's infant son unless Meade paid him $4,000. Meade talked him into accepting $2,000 instead and arranged to pay it that night.

When they kept the rendezvous, Meade handed Zarcone an envelope containing two $1 bills and a wad of paper. Detectives then leaped from a hiding place and seized Zarcone after a short chase.

PIMLICO INVITES 7 HORSES TO RUN IN SPECIAL RACE

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—Seven thoroughbreds, five of them active and two retired, were invited today by the Maryland Jockey club to race in the $10,000 Pimlico Special on Nov. 1.

The invitations went to W. L. Brann's Challedon, Charles S. Howard's Kayak II., Townsend B. Martin's Cravat, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Hash, William Woodward's Isolater and Johnstown, and George D. Widener's Eight Thirty.

Johnstown has been retired permanently and Eight Thirty has been retired for the 1939 season but Matt Daiger, general manager of the Pimlico race course, said the Jockey club felt both "fully merited the honor" of being invited to the "race of the year."

Retirement of Johnstown and Eight Thirty left Challedon virtually the sole claimant to the 3 year old championship and the big Maryland-bred bay colt probably will be the favorite in the Special. Challedon and Hash, the only other 3 year old in the Special, are due to clash in the Tranton stakes at Keeneland tomorrow.

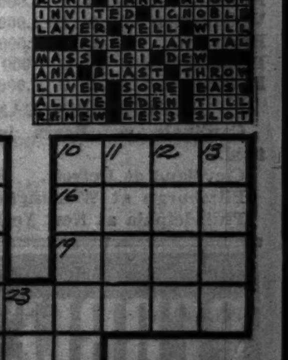
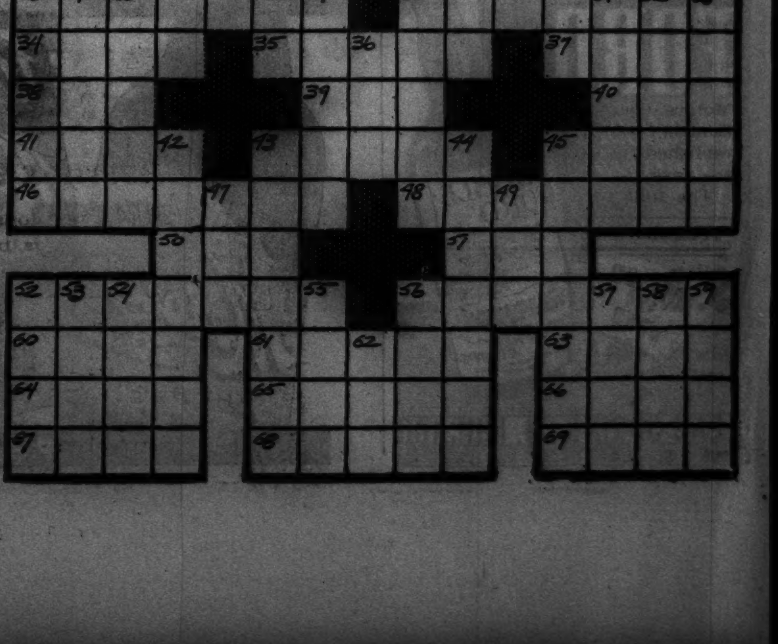
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED





GEN'L MOTORS DEFENDS POLICY AS TRIAL OPENS

Customers' Burden Cut, It Tells Jury.

BY BRUCE DENNIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 9.—A jury of 11 automobile owners and one young man who drives his father's car was chosen today to hear the federal government's antitrust case against the General Motors corporation, largest of the world's automobile makers.

Four of the regular jurors and the two alternates are farmers in the fertile St. Joseph valley. Occupations of the others range from buyer for a creamery to insurance salesman. The jurors' ages range from 65 to 27, with a majority on the shady side of 40. Of the 14, only four drive cars made by the numerous divisions of General Motors.

The jury was selected and sworn in, and opening statements made by government and defense attorneys all on a sweltering, sultry day that seemed better fitted for golf.

Court to Open Earlier.

Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville, Ill., announced he would open court tomorrow and thereafter at 9:30 a. m. instead of 10 o'clock in an attempt to continue the first day's rapid progress.

The charges against General Motors, three wholly owned subsidiaries and 10 individuals, officers of the corporations, were contained in an indictment returned by a grand jury in federal district court here a year ago last May.

They were summed up this afternoon by Holmes Baldridge, special assistant from the office of the attorney general in Washington, D. C., in his first remarks to the jury. The defendants are accused of conspiring to violate the Sherman antitrust act by allegedly monopolizing the financing of General Motors cars through operation of the General Motors Acceptance corporation.

Dealer Pressure Charged.

Baldridge asserted the government will prove that General Motors forces its dealers to finance car sales through G. M. A. C., that independent finance companies hence are frozen out, and that this amounts to conspiracy in restraint of trade and interstate commerce in Cadillac, La Salle, Buick, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Chevrolet automobiles.

One of the General Motors counsel, Eugene S. Ballard of the Chicago firm of Pope & Ballard, assailed the government's contentions when he addressed the jury.

General Motors, said Ballard, is far from being in the position of conspiring to restrain trade in its cars, and wants to sell all the automobiles it can. The General Motors Acceptance corporation was organized in 1918, he said, to promote the sale of General Motors cars. The General Motors corporation owns all the stock in G. M. A. C.

Fought High Charges, He Says.

General Motors Acceptance, Ballard declared, was formed also to combat exorbitant finance charges assessed against automobile buyers by some finance companies and small banks. He said General Motors had no quarrel with such other finance companies and banks as give the customer a square deal.

"We urge dealers to use G. M. A. C. because we believe it is the best financing for both dealer and customer," asserted Ballard. "We do not coerce dealers."

When Judge Lindley, in dark blue business suit and blue and white striped tie, opened court he found a battery of 12 General Motors lawyers, part of a colony of 25 attorneys and clerks that has moved into South Bend for the trial. The staff is headed by John Thomas Smith of New York, General Motors vice president and general counsel; Ballard, and Henry M. Hogan of New York.

On the government side are Balbridge, six others from the antitrust division of the attorney general's office, District Attorney James R. Fleming of the South Bend office, and his two assistants, Alex Campbell and Luther M. Swygert.

Sloan, Knudsen Defendants.

"This is the first time in my life I've ever been in a courtroom," remarked Sloan. He is 64 years old. He and Knudsen refused to comment on the case. Pleas of not guilty were entered for them and 15 of the others named in the indictment.

The charges against E. W. Berger of Cleveland, O., Chevrolet zone manager, were dismissed by the government when immunity was claimed for him because he testified before another federal grand jury which made an antitrust investigation in Milwaukee in 1937. The indictment against another defendant, Arthur B. Purvis, a member of the General Motors board of directors living in Canada, was withdrawn. It was established he had no connection with the case.

The four corporate defendants are

Auto Magnates at Antitrust Trial

Seek to Upset Indictments of Ice Cream Men

Arguments by attorneys seeking to set aside an indictment against 20 individuals and 20 corporations engaged in the ice cream industry were begun yesterday before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan. This was done after Judge Sullivan had denied defense motions to strike out certain parts of the indictment and had withheld ruling on other motions attacking the indictment.

Judge Sullivan.

The indictment, returned last November, charges the defendants with conspiring to violate the Sherman anti-trust law by combining in a nation-wide trade monopoly.

Charges in Case.

The basic allegations are that the defendants conspired to prevent the sale and use of small "counter freezers" with which independent dealers could manufacture their own ice cream and that they encouraged legislation favoring the monopolized ice cream business, refusing to sell raw supplies to persons who used counter freezers.

Judge Sullivan denied motions to strike the paragraphs ir the indictment citing these actions. He also turned down the defense plea that the grand jury which returned the indictment was illegal because it had returned after sitting for three consecutive months.

The court declined to rule on the defense claim that subsequent legislation had made the Sherman anti-trust act unconstitutional.

Before Supreme Court.

"This question is now before the United States Supreme court in both the American Medical association case and the so-called milk case decided by Judge Woodw[illegible] [Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward], and it is expected that opinions will be rendered in the near future," the court said. "It would serve no beneficial purpose for me to pass on this issue until the decision by the Supreme court."

Last July Judge Woodward dismissed anti-trust law indictments against 57 corporations and individuals in the Chicago milk industry. He held that the Sherman law had been superseded by legislation empowering the secretary of agriculture to regulate milk in interstate commerce. The decision has been appealed to the Supreme court by the government.

Yesterday's arguments by defense counsel were based on the two items upon which Judge Sullivan reserved ruling: The constitutionality of the indictment and the question of proper venue.

Attorney James H. Winston, representing the Beatrice Creameries, asserted that the indictment failed to state that the defendants were acting "knowingly and willfully" in violation of the law.

"The clew to the entire indictment lies in the professorial curiosity of the department of justice to see just how far the Sherman anti-trust act should be pushed," he asserted "The indictment shows nothing more than competition by legitimate and proper methods."

URGES AMENDMENT OF SECURITIES LAWS TO HELP ENTERPRISE

Del Monte, Cal., Oct. 9 [Special].—Amendment of the federal securities laws was urged today by Jean C. Witter at the opening here of the five day annual convention of the Investment Bankers' association. Witter is president of the association.

"When regulation interferes with the normal functioning of the capital markets," he said, "it is time to amend the laws. New enterprises must be encouraged, for without them idle men and idle money cannot be absorbed."

He asserted that unnecessary technical requirement of the securities laws have seriously curtailed trading in securities.

The government does not have to enter the field of investment banking on behalf of small business, Witter said. Financial aid can be released by removing barriers which impede existing private facilities.

The convention is being attended by more than 550 investment bankers from the nation. Paul H. Davis, Chicago investment banker, will speak Wednesday.

STEEL OUTPUT AT 88.6%; BEST SINCE MAY, 1937

Steel operations this week are scheduled at 88.6 per cent of capacity, an increase of 1.1 points, or 1.3 per cent, over last week, the American Iron and Steel institute estimated yesterday.

The rate is the highest since the week of May 24, 1937, when the nation's steel mills were working at 91 per cent of theoretical capacity. A month ago the rate was 70.2 per cent, which was up 11.6 points from the preceding week, when the Labor day holiday cut production. A year ago operations were at 51.4 per cent.

Business Done by Checks Increases in Middle West

Debits to individual deposit accounts reported by 159 banks in 41 leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district increased 13.4 per cent in the week ended Oct. 4 and topped a year ago by 6.2 per cent. The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported the week's total was $1,265,355,000, against $1,115,540,000 a week before and $1,190,998,000 a year ago. Chicago banks' debits totaled $739,322,000.

NATION HEADING FOR TRADE RISE, SAY ECONOMISTS

War and Domestic Influences Cited.

Many leading economists believe that the United States is entering a period of business recovery. Their views were made known yesterday in a survey conducted by the Associated Press. Domestic economic conditions and the European war have contributed to the upturn, and an early peace in Europe probably would bring a temporary recession to American business, most of the economists said. Some asserted that the current upturn will last as long as the war abroad.

Sixteen out of thirty who replied listed the combination of domestic business conditions and the European war as the primary cause for the upturn. Eight credited the rise to the war alone. Six cited domestic business as the only reason.

Opinion was divided on this question: How long will the upturn last?

Some Say Through 1940.

Nine said as long as the war. Five asserted business would continue better through 1940, four said until the end of 1939, and one said it depends on domestic politics. Others were indefinite.

Some of the opinions of the economists, which were personal and not necessarily those of the economists' business or educational affiliations, were as follows:

VIRGIL JORDAN, national industrial conference board, New York City.—"The increase in activity and prices has been due primarily to speculation on the prospect of war destruction, inflation, and currency depreciation. It is extremely insecure because this war will either end soon or continue indefinitly, and because since the last war every government involved, including ours, has become essentially insolvent."

JAMES WASHINGTON BELL, Northwestern university, Evanston—"The recent upturn in business is not wholly due to war influences. The prospects are good for a continued recovery, regardless of the fortunes of war or peace."

Stresses Inventory Problem.

SEYMOUR L. ANDREW, American Telephone and Telegraph company, New York City—"The maintenance of business improvement beyond the remainder of this year will depend upon the degree to which the inventories now being accumulated move into consumption."

MELCHIOR PALYI of Stifel, Nicolaus & Co., Inc., Chicago—"Assumptions are likely to be overoptimistic. It is not probable that belligerents should either embark on boundless purchases or that they should let their price levels run amuck as they did in the last war."

RAY B. WESTERFIELD, Yale university, New Haven, Conn.—"The basis being broader than merely war orders, it may reasonably be expected that the coming year will be one of real activity, whether the war continues or not."

Cites Forward Buying.

W. C. BOBER, Johns-Manville company, New York City—"The main cause of the business upturn is forward buying due to price rise founded on belief war will require vast volume of American goods."

T. W. SCHULTZ, Iowa State college, Ames, Ia.—"Stronger demand for most farm products, especially for meat, is more likely to come as the result of improvement in business activity and larger pay rolls within United States, rather than from expanded foreign buying of food stuffs."

STUART CHASE, recently consultant to temporary national economic committee, Georgetown, Conn.—"The boomlet would collapse with early peace. With cash and carry law enacted, a massive upturn is unlikely. Even with embargo repeal munitions sales are likely to be moderate. The allies will give preference to their own empires' raw materials."

NEW CHICAGO-DETROIT STREAMLINED TRAIN TO START NEXT MONTH

The New York Central railroad's new Mercury, just completed at company shops in Indianapolis, will go into daily service between Chicago and Detroit early in November, F. E. Williamson, president, announced yesterday. The new streamliner will be exhibited at Indianapolis today and will be shown in Chicago and other cities before regular service is begun.

Outstanding features of the road's original Mercury, which will continue operations between Detroit and Cleveland, have been reproduced in the new train along with several improvements, Williamson said.

The train will be powered by a steam locomotive of the Twentieth Century type, with roller bearings at several important points. The locomotive, with its tender, is 97 feet long.

Dowd Quits SEC to Take Job with Certain-teed

New York, Oct. 9 [Special].—Hector J. Dowd, assistant regional administrator of the New York area of the Securities and Exchange commission, has resigned, effective Oct. 15, the commission announced today. Next Monday he will commence his duties as controler of the Certain-teed Products corporation. Dowd has been the "No. 1 policeman" of the SEC.

Treasury Bill Sales Boosted to Raise Cash

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—Beginning next week the treasury will do a large part of its financing through 91-day bills by increasing the weekly offering from 100 to 150 million dollars, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced today.

This step will be taken to bolster the treasury's working balance of 1 billion 426 million dollars, which, Morgenthau said, has been reduced by 500 million dollars since last July 1.

"In these times I'd like to have a comfortable working balance," the secretary said.

This will be the first new money obtained through bill offerings in more than a year.

Record of Weekly Offerings.

On July 27, 1938, the treasury maintained its weekly offerings at 100 million dollars, although weekly maturities dropped from 150 to 50 millions. The 50 million dollar maturities continued for six weeks, giving the treasury 300 million dollars in new money during that time. Since then the weekly offerings of 100 millions have merely offset weekly maturities of the same amount.

Morgenthau would not predict how long the increased offerings would be maintained, saying his announcement applied only to next week. But it is believed that 150 millions in bills will be offered indefinitly each week.

Until the increased maturities catch up with offerings the treasury will have a chance to pocket new money to help finance the heavy expenditures for this year which threaten to run the government into another 4 or 5 billion dollar deficit for the year.

Provides a Stopgap.

The increased weekly offerings will provide a stopgap until the treasury is able to enter the market with heavier financing. The imminent refunding of 526 million dollars in treasury notes, maturing Dec. 15, remains suspended, pending a sounder market condition which awaits clarification of the outlook on the European war. The wavering outlook on possible peace or continued war has injected more uncertainty into the market from a treasury standpoint.

FOOD CHAIN STORES RENEW PLEDGE NOT TO RAISE PRICES UNDULY

Renewed pledges against undue price increases were made yesterday at the sixth annual meeting of the National Association of Food Chains, which brought leaders in the food distributing industry from all sections of the country to the Drake hotel.

John A. Logan of Washington, D. C., president of the association and a member of the federal government's newly appointed agricultural advisory council, told the delegates:

"The chain food system, largely developed since 1919, can and will be an important factor in preventing a repetition of the high cost of living which prevailed during and following the world war."

OLD DAWES BANK OWNERS LOSE IN 14 MILLION FIGHT

High Court Refuses Judgment Review.

The United States Supreme court yesterday denied stockholders of the old Central Republic Bank and Trust company a review of a lower court's judgment for $14,000,000 under a stockholders' double liability claim.

The high court's refusal to review the judgment, obtained by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, in effect closes the door to further attempts by stockholders to upset an original order entered by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson and upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

$8,085,800 Already Paid.

Charles H. Albers, receiver for the Central Republic Trust company, said a total of $8,085,800 had been paid by stockholders to date in partial satisfaction of the judgment. The Central Republic Trust company is liquidating the assets of its predecessor, the Central Republic Bank and Trust company.

Albers, who was appointed receiver by the federal court, said the $8,085,800 has been held in escrow pending the outcome of the litigation.

Albers said stockholders will now be notified of the Supreme court's action as a reminder that the original judgment orders stands against them.

4,500 Holders Involved.

The RFC suit was brought against an estimated 4,500 stockholders. Many of these, according to the receiver, withheld payment pending disposition of the suit. The judgment held stockholders liable for an amount equal to the par value of their stock.

Central Republic Bank and Trust company, the former "Dawes bank," ceased operations in October, 1932, after it arranged to borrow $90,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Its deposits were turned over to the new City National Bank and Trust company.

The stockholders' liability suits were filed by the RFC to reimburse that agency in part for the $90,000,000 loan, made during the troublesome days

How much will the "SECOND TRANSFER" shrink your estate?

For his family, a man leaves property and securities accumulated over a lifetime—his estate. If left outright to his wife it comes to her "shrunken" by taxes and probate expenses that may be necessary and justifiable. Thus the first transfer is effected.

But usually, in the course of years, a large part of this same estate suffers a second, drastic shrinkage, caused by the transfer from the mother to her children. This is the costly second transfer! This is the transfer that may needlessly reduce your estate by as much as 30% of its total value!

Fortunately, in many cases it has been possible to set up a trust under Will which eliminates the second transfer entirely, prevents duplication of costs, and assures the heirs of a more substantial share of the estate. It is the logical step for the man who has applied thought and care to his estate during his lifetime to consult his attorney regarding the establishment of such a trust.

For over half a century, The Northern Trust Company has had the privilege of serving as executor and trustee for many of Chicago's most important estates. The result is a practical experience in probate matters and estate management which is always at your disposal. When making or reviewing your Will, you and your attorney are invited to consult with the trust officers of this institution.

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—The stock market moved up hesitantly in late trading today to close irregularly higher after an uncertain forenoon. Fractional changes on both sides ruled for representative issues.

Trading was the dullest since the war market began more than a month ago and only 617,942 shares changed hands.

The jumbled European situation was blamed by most observers for the market's listless performance. Although Anglo-French reports spoke of determination to continue fighting, Russia's request that London and Paris heed Chancellor Hitler's peace proposals served to inspire further caution in those circles that regard the "peace offensive" as making headway.

Motor shares were prominent in the late recovery. General Motors gained ⅝ point. Chrysler was nearly 2 points higher at one time but slipped to close only ⅞ point higher.

Steels ruled close to Saturday's final quotations. Bethlehem outshone United States Steel, rising ½ point, as the latter lost ¼ point. Republic also slipped, but Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Crucible firmed.

New York Bonds.

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—A brisk rise in United States government bonds helped to point the bond market toward improvement today.

Chief beneficiaries of the climb in the government issues were low yield corporate loans. Revival of demand for these so-called prime ratings has been spurred, traders said, by the latest jump in idle bank reserves to a record level.

Chicago Stocks.

Commonwealth Edison returned to its usual position as volume leader on the Chicago Stock exchange, advancing ⅜ to 30¼ on a turnover of 3,900 shares. W. B. Jarvis was in demand following its report of increased earnings and rose ¾ to 15½.

United States Steel, Bendix Aviation, and a few other issues also achieved fractional gains, but many of the more prominent issues lost ground. Armour and Swift were fractionally lower at the close, with transactions considerably below the recent volume

WHEAT SLIDES; RAINS RELIEVE PARCHED WEST

Fairly general rains over a large part of the parched winter wheat area west of the Missouri river caused aggressive selling of futures early yesterday. Prices declined about 1½ cents from Saturday's closing level and reached new ground since Sept. 2.

Around 80 cents for the December and May deliveries there was fair support from commission houses and prices rallied. Closing trades were at losses of ⅜ to ⅝ cent.

Corn developed independent strength after an early decline in sympathy with wheat ,and closed ⅝ to ⅞ cent higher.

Lack of pressure, reports that 500,000 bushels or more of American corn had been sold for export and lack of country offerings of cash grain for deferred shipment were the bullish influences.

Commodities

Sugar futures declined in New York yesterday on news from Havana, Cuba, that the Cuban Sugar institute will recommend that President Laredo Brue issue a decree releasing 300,000 long tons of retained sugars for immediate sale. Of the sugar, 200,000 tons would not have been salable until after Jan. 1, 1940, under the now inoperative United States marketing quotas. The remaining 100,000 tons would have been released for sale to foreign nations after Jan. 1.

The move was the second Cuban action to counteract the effect of the higher tarif which the United States now places on Cuban sugar, which formerly paid a duty of 0.9 cent a pound.

The duty was raised to 1½ cents when President Roosevelt removed the marketing quota restrictions a month ago as a temporary shortage of sugar seemed likely, due to hoarding.

Cuba's first action was to remove all production restrictions, although the expansion of plant producing facilities was limited at the same time.

In other commodities quiet trading and lower prices were the rule. Wool tops closed unchanged to 2 cents a pound lower and cash raw wool sagged another cent to $1.23 a pound. Silk futures dropped 2 to 6½ cents and cash silk lost 1½ cents, selling at $3.08 a pound.

STOCKS OF TWO CONCERNS TO BE OFFERED TODAY

Financing Interrupted by War Uncertainties.

Marking a resumption of corporate financing which was interrupted by the uncertainties of the war, two companies are entering the investment market with stock issues today.

National Automotive Fibres, Inc., one of the leading suppliers of interior trim for automobiles, is offering 200,000 shares of $10 par value 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock through a banking group headed by Reynolds & Co. at $11 a share.

Proceeds of the financing will be used to liquidate debts incurred during plant expansion which in recent years has involved an expenditure of $2,000,000, the announcement said.

Plan to List Stock.

The preferred stock is a new issue. Common stock of the company is now listed on the New York curb, and application will be made to list both the common and the preferred on the New York Stock exchange, the announcement added.

United States Truck Lines, Inc., which operates a motor freight service in the Great Lakes industrial area, will undertake its first public financing with the offering of 175,000 shares of capital stock at $10 a share through Otis . Co., Blyth & Co.; Paine, Webber & Co., and other bankers.

Directors of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., largest domestic producer of chemicals and munitions, authorized an exchange offer to stockholders in connection with its plans for retirement of its debenture stock.

Terms of du Pont Offer.

For each share of the debenture stock held, the owners will be offered 1⅛ shares of $4.50 cumulative preferred stock. If less than two-thirds of the debenture stock is tendered for exchange at the termination of the offer on Oct. 24 the plan becomes optional with the company under directors' terms. It will be binding if two-thirds or more of the debenture stock is tendered. Any debenture shares not offered in exchange for the preferred will be redeemed on Jan. 25, 1940, at $125 a share and accumudated dividends.

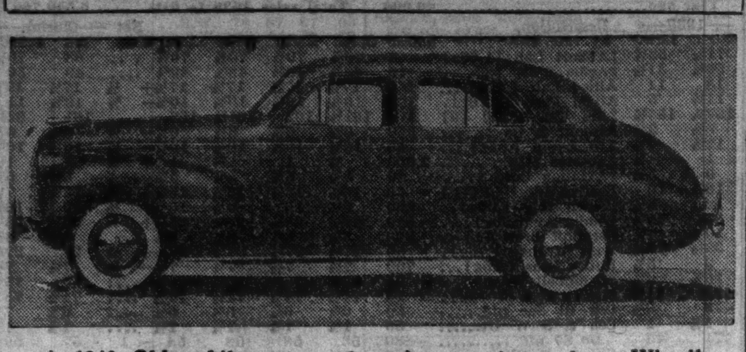
GRAIN MEN LOSE PLEA FOR REVIEW OF TAX PAYMENT

The United States Supreme court yesterday refused to review a lower court decision dismissing the suit of a group of Chicago grain men who sought to recover $6,403 in taxes and penalties paid to the federal government in connection with grain transactions.

The case was dismissed by the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals after the dealers argued that certain grain transactions did not require documentary tax stamps because they were not sales, but "accommodation trades" among members of the group. The government held that the transactions were taxable sales under the rules of the Chicago Board of Trade.

The grain merchants who appealed were F. S. Lewis & Co., Unlmann & Benjamin Grain company, Stratton Grain company, Continental Grain company, and John L. Naira, trustee.

Oldsmobile Shows 1940 Models



A 1940 Oldsmobile custom 8 cruiser touring sedan. Wheelbase is 124 inches and the engine has 110 horse power.

Appearance Changed; Bodies Larger.

The Oldsmobile division of General Motors will formally introduce its 1940 automobiles today. The 1940 line consists of three series—two six cylinder cars and an eight. All the cars are larger both in body and chassis, and their exterior appearance has been changed from predecessor cars.

The feature of the new line is the so-called "hydra-matic" drive, which eliminates the clutch with its manual gear shifting. Operation of the car is said to be as simple as the electric or steam powered cars. The driver moves a valve-actuating lever into forward position and steps on the accelerator.

Power is transmitted from the engine to the driving mechanism through a "fluid flywheel"—a hydraulic power coupling device that takes the place of the clutch.

Gears Shifted Automatically.

Gears are shifted automatically as the car gains in speed without any effort on the part of the driver. All the driver has to do is steer. The new drive is available in all models at some extra cost.

The lowest priced car in the 1940 line is the series 60 powered by a 95 horsepower engine. Its overall length has been increased to 197¾ inches. The series 70—the biggest seller in the Olds line—has had its overall length increased to 199¾ inches. It also has a 95 horsepower engine.

Entirely new in appearance is the custom 8 cruiser with a 110 horsepower engine. This car is long and low with streamlining given the fullest play. The eight has a 124 inch wheelbase and an overall length of 210¾ inches.

Running Boards Eliminated.

Because the floor is placed extremely low, no running boards are provided. The width formerly required by the running board is incorporated into the body itself. The result is the front seat is 60 inches wide, giving ample room for three persons.

ESTIMATE IS CUT ON COTTON CROP; STILL NEAR 1938

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9 (AP).—Dry weather in September cut the indicated cotton crop by 452,000 bales, but production is expected to be nearly equal to that of last year, the department of agriculture reported today.

Conditions on Oct. 1 indicated a crop of 11,928,000 bales, as against 11,943,000 bales ginned last year, the department said. Two years ago 18,946,000 bales were ginned. The 1928-'37 average was 13,800,000 bales.

GEN'L MOTORS DEFENDS POLICY AS TRIAL OPENS

The individual defendants, in addition to Sloan and Knudsen, are: George F. Benkhart, New York, vice president of General Motors Acceptance corporation; M. E. Coyle, Milford, Mich., general manager of Chevrolet; James D. Deane, Oxford, Mich., Nelson C. Dezendorf, New York, and August Freise, New York, all vice presidents of G. M. A. C.; Richard H. Grant, Dayton, O., General Motors vice president in charge of sales; Roy Hill, Dallas, Tex., Chevrolet regional manager; W. E. Holler, Birmingham, Mich., sales manager of Chevrolet; W. F. Hufstader, Flint, Mich., sales manager of Buick; H. J. Klinger, Pontiac, Mich., general manager of Pontiac; Russell Lesher, Minneapolis, Oldsmobile zone manager; Ralph W. Smith, Minneapolis, Chevrolet regional manager.

No Stockholders On Jury.

Judge Lindley questioned prospective jurors closely on business relations with General Motors. None of the corporation's nearly 400,000 stockholders were among the veniremen questioned. The jurors were asked about public offices they may have held and whether any had received aid from WPA or any other governmental agency.

J. W. Oswald of Gosehn, a Diesel engineer, and Delbert Daniels of Peru, a farmer, were excused on peremptory challenges by General Motors counsel. The court excused J. A. Irelan, a Wabash county farmer who declared that he thought "things cost too much when bought on instalments," and likewise excused John James of Denham, a truck driver whose car was taken from him when he missed a payment back in 1935. A fifth veniremen was sent home because he is not a freeholder, as required by Indiana law.

Facts Concerning Jurors.

The jurors, their ages, addresses and occupations, and the kind of automobiles they said they own, are:

Harold Geyer, 48 years old, Lakeville, Ind., a farmer, Studebaker; George Odell, 60 South Bend, retired manufacturer, Pontiac; Charles W. Raber, 40, Silver Lake, school furniture salesman, Pontiac; Confa Walburn, 44, Mentone, insurance salesman, Plymouth; William W. Hildenbrand, 60, Warsaw, tourist home proprietor, Chevorlet; Fred Russell, 27, Winamac, general store clerk, who owns no car, and Frank E. Dick, Michigan City, soft drink bottler, Dodge.

The alternates are Roy Edwards, 45, Peru, farmer, who owns a Plymouth, and Charles F. Davis, 65, Peru, farmer, who owns a Pontiac.

The jurors, in the next six weeks or more that the trial is expected to last, will hear business talked of in terms of millions of dollars and will see tons of General Motors records and files subpenaed by the government.

DAY by DAY on the FARM

Vineyard in Bearing

October 9, 1939.

THE combination vineyard and berry plantation set at the Du Page county farm in the spring of 1936 came into full bearing this year for the first time and furnished fresh fruits and berries almost continuously from the time the first strawberries were picked June 3 until the last of the grapes were gone about the middle of September.

Many of the young plants bore the first year. The yields have increased each year. There are six different varieties of grapes, 16 varieties of strawberries, and eight varieties of raspberries. The raspberries are of various colors and flavors. In addition there are dewberries, youngberries, gooseberries, and currants.

Log Book Record Kept.

The caretaker recently examined his "log book" on this season's work to compare the general progress of the plants during their fourth summer's growth. It contains a full account of the yields of the different fruits and berries and has many notes on the time of ripening, flavor, and comparative quality of the various varieties.

Some of the yield figures are given in pints, some in quarts, and some in bushels. They add up to a surprisingly large total.

Thirty-six bushels of grapes were gathered this fall from the six rows in the vineyard. There are 26 vines in each row. The Niagara row, a white variety, made the best yield, with eight bushels. The quality of these grapes was only fair, because many of them shriveled during the hot weather in September. The row of Concords came next, with seven bushels. The grapes were good. The Concord is a blue grape that long has been a favorite in vineyards in this section.

The Delaware, a red variety, made the lowest yield. There were only three bushels, and the grapes were small. Many of the Delaware vines have died.

Fredonia Grapes Earliest.

The earliest grapes were the Fredonia, a black variety. They were ready to pick two weeks before any of the others were ripe. They are good table grapes and have a distinctive flavor. The row made five bushels. Moore's early was the next variety to ripen. This also is a black grape.

The Caco variety was the favorite with most of the farm families. The grapes are large and red. Many of these were used for jelly and grape juice. The glasses and bottles in beautiful reddish tints make attractive displays on the pantry shelves. The yield was about equal to that of the Concords.

Heavy rains in the early summer ruined many of the berries. More than half the strawberries were lost, but 734 quarts of good berries were picked from the 21 rows. In addition there were 145 quarts of blackberries, 92 quarts of currants, 30 quarts of gooseberries, 23 quarts of dewberries, 16 quarts of youngberries, and 898 pints of raspberries.

JARVIS PROFITS UP TO $497,062 IN NINE MONTHS

Other Firms Also Report Larger Earnings.

The upward trend in automobile production was reflected yesterday in a report of the W. B. Jarvis company, a leading manufacturer of automotive hardware, showing increased profits.

For the nine months ended with September, the company reported net income of $497,062, against $139,161 in the corresponding period of last year. The earnings, equal to $1.66 and 46 cents a share in the respective periods on the basis of present capitalization of 300,000 shares, are after federal taxes and other charges and are subject to audit at the year-end.

L. A. Jarvis, president, said the company now has the largest volume of orders in its history.

Masonite Does Better.

The Masonite corporation of Chicago, manufacturer of fabricated wood products, announced net profit of $1,163,050 for the year ended Aug. 31, against $1,144,274 in the preceding fiscal year. After preferred dividends, earnings available to the common stock were equal to $1.99 and $1.96 a share in the respective periods.

American Telephone and Telegraph company reported net income of $1,467,448 for August, against $894,706 a year ago, and $81,333,721 for the first eight months of 1939, compared with $76,048,038 in the 1938 period.

The report, however, does not accurately reflect the company's complete operations, because dividends received from subsidiaries, constituting the major portion of income, are not accrued monthly, but are included usually in March, June, September, and December.

Pullman Company Net Rises

The Pullman company yesterday reported net income of $295,638 for August, against $179,225 for the 1938 month. Its profit was $1,943,837 for the first eight months of 1939, compared with $137,360 a year ago. In all periods the company has charged off reserves for amortizing its investment in air conditioning equipment. The report covers transportation operations only, and does not include manufacturing profits of Pullman, Inc., of which the transportation company is a subsidiary.

The European war stimulated an "extraordinary" increase in September business of the Western Union Telegraph company, according to R. B. White, president. As a result, he predicted the company will show a profit for the first nine months of the year when final figures are available. The company's loss for the first eight months was cut to $303,680 from $1,908,625 last year.

RUMANIA'S OIL.

There is much comment about Germany's efforts to get control of Rumania's oil output. How does Rumania rank as an oil producer? How does Russia rank?—E. L.

Answer: Russia ranked second in 1938 with an output of 202,290 thousand barrels, and Rumania sixth, with an output of 48,366 thousand barrels of crude petroleum. Germany produced only 4,074 thousand barrels, while her consumption amounted to 53,000 thousand barrels.

The United States ranks as the world's leading producer, output of this country amounting to 61.33 per cent of world production last year. This country's output in 1938 was 1,213,254 thousand barrels.

WAIMANALO SUGAR.

Can you tell me if there is such a company as Waimanalo Sugar? If it exists, where is its stock traded?—O. E.

Answer: Waimanalo Sugar company operates in the Hawaiian Islands. The company has had an erratic earnings record, reporting losses in six of the last 10 years. The stock is listed on the Honolulu Stock exchange.

ARBITRAGE.

What is arbitrage?—P. J.

Answer: Arbitrage is the process of buying in one market and selling in another. The arbitragist has often been called the hawk of the market places. Whenever there is a price discrepancy between two markets he buys in the lower market and sells in the higher market. The arbitragist's actions tend to keep security prices in different markets at a fairly even level.

REGISTERED AND COUPON.

What is the difference between a registered and coupon bond? And what is a "registered coupon bond?"—W. B.

Answer: A registered bond has the name of its owner filled out on its face. It cannot be transferred from one person to another without endorsement upon the back from the party in whose name it is registered. The second party must then send the bond to the company's transfer office. The company then issues a new bond to the second party.

When a bond is registered, interest is sent directly to the person in whose name it is registered. He does not send coupons to the company for interest payment. In case the bond is lost, the interest continues to be mailed to the person in whose name it is registered. There is considerable red tape involved in selling bonds of this type.

Coupon bonds are not made out in the name of any individual. They have coupons attached, and these coupons are sent to the company when the interest becomes due. Ownership of coupon bonds is easily transferred. Most bonds are coupon bonds.

Registered coupon bonds are bonds in which the principal alone is registered. Interest is collected by detaching and presenting coupons for payment, as in the case of coupon bonds.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

The trend of the hog market was reversed yesterday, prices ruling steady to 15 cents lower. It was the first downturn in six days and was attributed partly to warmer weather.

Nearly all classes of steers and yearlings sold under pressure. Reductions of 10 to 25 cents were general after a few lots had gone at steady rates.

Supreme Court Refuses to Review Judgment.

preceding the 1933 banking moratorium. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, now chairman of the City National Bank and Trust company, headed the old Central Republic bank. The unpaid balance of the loan on July 31 amounted to about $43,000,000.

Judge Wilkerson entered the original $14,000,000 judgment against the Central Republic stockholders in 1937. Early this year the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here, in a 32 page decision, upheld Judge Wilkerson and at the same time criticized the RFC for lending such a huge sum "without adequate security and without full investigation." The court also termed Illinois law providing for double liability for stockholders as "very burdensome" and "seemingly unjust."

HOLDINGS ARE LISTED

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, who was chairman of the now defunct Central Republic Bank and Trust company at the time the $90,000,000 Reconstruction Finance corporation loan was negotiated, held only 52 shares of stock in his own name. His principal interest and that of his family were held through a family investment company. Gen. Dawes paid off the $5,200 liability on his personal holdings before the suit was decided by the federal court.

The Dawes family trust, Dawes Brothers, Inc., which held 9,876 shares of Central Republic stock, was the largest stockholder in the bank. In addition, members of the Dawes family personally held 652 shares, including Gen. Dawes' 52. Rufus C. Dawes had 252, Henry M. Dawes 238, and William R. Dawes 110 shares. Assessments against the Dawes family, including one of $1,156,000 against Dawes Brothers, Inc., have been paid.

Greenbaums Large Holders.

Ten members of the Greenebaum family were the next largest stockholders, having a total of 6,854 shares. The heaviest holders in this group were the Henry E. Greenebaum estate, with 1,619 shares; James E. Greenebaum, with 1,648 shares, and Moses E. Greenebaum, now deceased, with 1,650 shares. Assessments against these holdings have not been paid, Albers said last night.

Other holdings for which assessments have been paid, and the amount paid or the number of shares involved, include the following:

Dwight D. Wiman, New York, $25,200.

Frederick W. Woodruff, Joliet, Ill., $84,190.

Other Holders Listed.

Other stockholders originally listed as they appeared on federal court records, some of whom may have since paid their assessments, included the following:

Oliver E. McCormick, 20 North Wacker drive, 55.

Where The Times Circulation is Greatest

The principal circulation of The New York Times is within a region that accounts for more than 57% of the country's total reported bank debits, more than 54% of total bank resources, more than 80% of the country's life insurance assets, about 34% of the value of all American manufactured products, and over 38% of sales by wholesale establishments. No other region offers comparable sales possibilities for advertisers, general and financial—a fact proved over and over again by the results reported by advertisers in The Times. Add to these the country-wide prospects reached by The Times and evidence of The Times superior pulling power is complete.

Local Loan Gives You the Service You Want

75% of our loans are Signature Only Loans to employed men and women. LOCAL LOAN originated and perfected this salary loan service because the great body of employed people—young or old and regardless of occupation—are entitled to a simplified loan method.

Our aim is to offer you whatever plan will enable you to borrow most easily. LOCAL LOAN makes liberal Furniture and Auto Loans, but if you are steadily employed we prefer to make you a loan On Your Signature Only without mortgages or endorsers. You may borrow $25 to $300—

On Your Signature Only

You make your own repayment terms [repaying any time within 20 months], and you are charged only for the actual time you have the money.

When you deal with LOCAL LOAN you borrow without the knowledge of your employer, friends and relatives.

We cannot tell you all about our service in our advertisement. Just phone one of the following offices. Your loan request can be taken over the telephone so you can obtain the money more quickly when you call in person.

Can You Set Aside $1.34 to $1.52 Per Week FOR A $100 LOAN?

That's actually all you need to pay off in full a $100 cash loan, including all charges on a 20 month loan at Personal Finance Company. And we take no wage assignment.

$1.34 a week on the average is all you need to set aside for every $100 borrowed on Personal's new amazing "Special" loan plan of only 1¼% per month on the actual balance owed. This plan is for persons with a steady income or salary sufficient to meet payments promptly without undue credit strain and a good credit record. You don't need co-makers, life insurance or bankable securities.

For persons without established credit and employment ratings and who wish to carry a loan larger than 8 to 12% of annual salary or income, Personal offers its "Regular" loan plan. On this plan an average of $1.52 set aside per week takes care of everything on a $100 loan—the charge is based on 3% monthly on unpaid balances of $100 and less, and 2% monthly on unpaid balances over $100.

Loans up to $300 on either plan on your personal note, or with furniture or auto. Co-maker loans are also available on "Regular" plan. Seize this opportunity to save on loan costs. Come in or telephone today
